The President Hopes A Bad School Quarrel Cement Could Be Cheaper On Cutting Dog's Ears

—By Arthur Brisbane—

PRESIDENT HOOVER tells the United States Chamber of Commerce:

"While the crash only took place six months ago, I am convinced we have passed the worst and with continued unity of effort, we shall rapidly recover."

That will encourage many. And the banks, reducing interest charges here and abroad, will help. When money is cheap, capital looks to new enterprises, which means hiring labor.

Lowering the federal reserve discount rate to three per cent in the New York district surprised all who lacked advance information.

In accordance with our custom, we followed the British, lowering our rate when their's was lowered.

This gratifies England, which feared that a rate lower than ours would cause British gold shipments to this country.

New York has a public school book quarrel, based on religious differences which should have nothing to do with public schools.

The Rev. Lefferd M. A. Haughwout, Episcopalian minister, complains that a "Modern History," by Professors Hayes and Parker of Columbia College, shows bias in favor of the Catholic religion. An Episcopalian church paper calls attention to the fact that both authors of the history are Catholics. Prof. Hayes says he was, long ago, converted to Catholicism, but the charges that "Modern History" was intended to subvert government and serve the Roman Catholic Church are preposterous.

The really preposterous fact that religious questions, which should have nothing at all to do with public school management, are dragged into public school control.

In this case the book was withdrawn from public school use to avoid any possible misunderstanding, although the highest authorities in New York's public school system are Catholics.

The House agrees to the Senate's cement tariff, six cents per 100 pounds. The industry needs protection against cheap cement coming from Europe, sometimes as ballast.

But cement ought not to need protection. With unlimited raw material practically free, scattered over the country, cheap oil and coal for power and modern machinery, this country's cement industry should be as indifferent to foreign competition as is our automobile industry.

The late W. J. Bryan would be amazed to hear Congress discussing tariff protection for silver. He thought silver, at sixteen to one, could stand forever as gold's younger brother.

He did not foresee Chinese wars releasing Chinese silver hoards, or India stopping silver purchases that have stabilized mining for generations.

If it were not for moving pictures, with "silver screens" using tens of millions worth of silver yearly, more mines would close.

Certainly American screens should use American silver, and the tariff should see to it.

Robert Lubbon is arrested in New York for exhibiting three Schnauzer puppies with their ears clipped. New York's new law protects dogs' ears from mutilation. If good dogs could vote, they would repeal the law. Clipping the ears protects them when they fight, and only quarrelsome dogs are clipped.

A sad sight is a hound with dropping ears, lacerated in some quarrel.

If there were a society for prevention of cruelty to human beings it could be useful. It might forbid high heels that throw the body out of balance, cripple women in walking and prevent healthful exercise.

It would examine and condemn many things sold as human food, beginning with imitation chocolate, sold to poor children, made of clay found in Turkey, and flavored synthetically.

Russia combines common sense with social theories that do not win our "best minds'" approval.

On May Day, which is Europe's Labor Day, 1,000,000 workers passed through the red square in Moscow in a parade seven hours long.

And Russia trade unions, in honor of the day, presented to the government 46 fighting airplanes and nine armored cars for war.

Millions of Russians belong to the Volunteer Society for Chemical and Air Defense. Six million young Russians are studying aviation, and workers give from their scant wages to make their government safe from attack.

They have some foolish theories in Russia, but not our pet, foolish theory that we can make

STOCK SALES SET RECORD IN SLUMP

Some Losses Up to $17 in Unprecedented Two-Hour Saturday Session

New York, May 3—The stock market was depressed by a fresh landslide of selling today and suffered severe losses comparable to those of yesterday. The ticker was nearly two hours overtime.

After selling off from a few cents to about $17 a share in the first hour, the market rallied moderately, only to display renewed weakness just before the close.

Sales totaled 4,867,530 shares, the largest number for any Saturday two-hour trading session in history.

The previous high mark was made on December 8, 1928, when 3,749,800 shares changed hands. The largest Saturday volume in 1929 was on October 19, when 3,488,100 shares were sold.

100 AT NEW LOWS

While about a hundred stocks plumbed new low levels for 1930, the general level of prices was maintained well above those of the first of the year.

Rail shares appeared to have been well deflated in the selling of Thursday, and generally were more stable than other groups. Several leading industrials were well supported until the final drop.

The day's selling movement was carried along by the momentum developed in yesterday's decline, and could not be attributed to developments in the day's news.

The week-end business and trade reviews described conditions as fair to quiet, reporting little change from last week.

LOSSES UP TO $17

Westinghouse Electric was a conspicuous weak spot near the close, showing a loss of about $14. United Aircraft, which was bid up in spectacular fashion a few weeks ago, lost $14. Radio tumbled $9 in what was rumored to be the collapse of a pool operation.

Among the day's extreme losses, Vanadium and J. I. Case lost about $17 and $15 a share.

ALLEN ACTS ON WILSON'S REFUSAL TO QUIT

Police Head Demands Legislative Hearing; Governor to Drop Him Monday

Police Commissioner Herbert A. Wilson today refused to comply with the demand of Governor Frank G. Allen for his resignation He demands a public hearing before the legislative committee on rules on the charges of negligence, inefficiency and incompetency lodged against him by Atty.-Gen. Joseph A. Warner in his report of the Garrett investigation.

The refusal to resign and the demand for a hearing were contained in a letter sent to the State House at noon by the commissioner and addressed to the Governor. Its contents were telephoned to Governor Allen in Pittsburgh, and he answered the communication by declaring that he will remove Wilson from office on Monday at a special meeting of his Executive Council.

The Wilson letter bristles with charges against the conduct of the Garrett probe and defiantly defends the commissioner's regime as head of the Boston police department.

"The report as a whole," declared Wilson, "plainly reflects the controversial state of mind in which the investigation was conducted throughout. It is not a finding of fact, but a lawyer's argument."

The full text of the letter:

"I am in receipt of your excellency's letter requesting my resignation.

"It is impossible for me to comply with your request.

"I have faithfully performed the duties of police commissioner to the best of my ability.

"I am not conscious of any neglect or dereliction of my public duty.

REPORT GARBLED

"I cannot now take a step from which my acknowledgement of the justice of the criticism directed against me would be argued or inferred.

"I wish to call your attention to the fact that the report contains in many places garbled versions of the evidence; that material and undisputed facts and evidence have been suppressed; that the report contained a wholesale condemnation of physicians, and of officials, excepting members of the attorney-general's office, who have had any connection with the pension proceedings, contrary to all the evidence and the presumption of honesty recognized by all tribu-

WOMEN, CHILDREN BATTLE TO SAVE HOMES FROM WOODS FIRES

SMOKE PALL DRIFTS 25 MILES

Wrentham Schools Closed to Allow Students to Fight Flames

A fireman and three others men were injured, several buildings destroyed, and more than 15,000 acres burned over in southeastern Massachusetts in one of the worst forest fires in years, conquered early today.

The blaze, which threatened Wrentham and other communities, was brought under control when a heavy rainfall came to the aid of 2000 firemen, citizens and prisoners from the Norfolk prison camp.

The track of the flames extended from Plainville and North Attleboro at the Rhode Island line, to Stoughton and Sharon, driving wild animals into the streets of towns, and leaving the burned bodies of many rabbits.

Hoseman James H. McKinn, 39, of 37 Lyon st., Dorchester, of the Boston fire department, and three other men were injured when Engine 45 was in collision with a sedan on the Norwood turnpike.

ALARM IN PRISON

Alarmed by the great hill of smoke which he could see nearing the prison camp from the south, and worried also by the increasing smoke from the direction of Stoughton, H. B. Gill, superintendent of the Norfolk prison camp, telephoned to Boston asking that aid be sent. Chief Daniel F. Sennett obtained permission from Mayor Curley and went over the road with Engines 26 and 45 and Hoseman 45, centering activities in the Wrentham sector.

Fifty prisoners from the camp, in two trucks, were rushed to the fire, and, without extra guards, fought the fire with shovels.

This Plainville-Wrentham fire, while not as large as the fire which started in Edinburg, had the greatest number of men concentrated on it. State and town police, merchants, Boy Scouts and housewives fought with shovels, ploughs, brooms and hoses, in keeping the flames from getting into Wrentham.

BOYS BLAMED

The Stoughton fire, starting at noon, two hours after the outbreak of the Plainville fire, swept through the Dry Pond district of Sharon and Stoughton and burned two barns, one house and several henhouses, in addition to several hundred cords of wood.

Fire in Easton, believed to have been started by boys, swept over 700 acres of woodland near the Easton-Norton line. Firemen from Easton, North Easton,

Burning woods in the Wrentham and Stoughton sections gave the sky a vivid glow last night, while the clouds of bitter smoke filled every town for 25 miles as it rode the wind.

The Jordan Marsh rest home, in Wrentham, where employes of the large Boston department store go for vacation, saw the flames come to the yard before they were stopped. The occupants of the Wrentham Poor Farm were forced to turn out as the blaze roared its way to the very front door.

START BACK-FIRES

All along the back roads of the Wrentham section housewives moved their furniture while firemen of the house dug furrows and set backfires.

School children were dismissed for the afternoon and hundreds of boys fought side by side with the men.

TILSON FIGHTS DEBENTURE

Washington, May 3 (AP)—Representative Tilson of Connecticut, the House Republican leader, declared in the House today that he did not believe that President Hoover would approve the tariff bill if it contained the export debenture plan.

In a letter to Senator McNary the President had indicated that he could not approve a tariff bill carrying the debenture plan.

Representatives Hill, Washington, and Summers, Texas, both Democrats, defended the debentures.

Summers said it was not too strong to say that the economic situation confronting the farmers might drive them to revolution.

ANTI-DRYS TO BACK DRAPER

The Liberal Civic League, Inc., at a meeting today, endorsed the candidacy of Eben S. Draper, former State senator, for the Republican nomination for U. S. senator.

Former Sen. Draper is characterized as having recognized the failure of prohibition and advocates the repeal and a return to temperance and orderly government through practical regulation of the liquor traffic.

"It is our belief," the statement read, "that the Republican party is at least evenly divided on the prohibition issue and the probabilities are that a clear majority of the Republican voters in Massachusetts are in fact in favor of repeal."

The referendum vote of 1926, according to the league, clearly demonstrated that the demand for repeal is neither Republican nor Democratic in politics, yet a majority of the Congressional delegation from Massachusetts has remained hone fixed in its attitude.

"Massachusetts," the statement concludes, "demands that her representatives in Congress, the Senate and House of Representatives, chosen this year, shall truly represent her sentiment for repeal of the eighteenth amendment."

"As a step in this direction in choice by the Republicans of Massachusetts of a candidate for the U. S. Senate in the primary of this year, we cordially endorse the candidacy of Mr. Draper."

Are You Growing a Beard for Our Tercentenary?

Boston's blueblood took a chin survey today—and snickered.

It was all brought about by the suggestion of Frank B. Howland, assistant director of city celebrations, that descendants of Massachusetts Bay colonists grow beards for the July 15 pageant and parade.

Leverett Saltonstall, speaker of the House of Representatives and son of one of New England's oldest families laughed long and loud at the very suggestion.

"With all due respect to Director Howland," he said, "I must first ask for the recipe to nurture a facial decoration in that short space of time. If he can show me the secret, I might give it serious consideration."

TERMS IDEA FOOLISH

William S. Endicott, direct descendant of Governor Endicott, scoffed at the idea, though he is already equipped with a beard.

"I don't relish that sort of rot," he said. "I will not take part in the celebration anyway, inasmuch as I refused some time ago to emulate Governor Endicott at Salem. I'm too old for that sort of thing. I think the growing of beards for the occasion is a foolish idea."

Senator Henry Parkman, Jr., refused to take the suggestion seriously and declared he was at a loss for witty words that would express his sentiments.

"Of course, I wouldn't grow a beard if it were possible. I don't take the aggravation seriously. I wish I could think of something witty enough to say about it, but I am lost for words."

Congressman George Holden Tinkham, adorned for years with his famous beard, is almost sure to take part in the affair, according to Boston friends. Tinkham was in Washington today, but friends pointed out that he was always the champion of a full beard and is ready to lend a hand to any "preserve the beard" movement.

STRONG FOR BEARDS

Michael Sullivan, Dorchester's near-octogenarian, who has grown a beard for 55 years, heartily approved the idea but said it was impossible to sprout one in the short space of two months.

"Beards are grown, not manufactured," he said. "I have had the care of one for more than 55 years, and I think I can speak from experience. If I can help in any way, I shall be glad to lend my 'assets' to the occasion, if the committee thinks it would help. But the growth of a beard in two short months is out of the question."

EIGHT HURT IN AUTO CRASH

Eight persons were injured, three possibly seriously, when two autos crashed headon in Wilmington today.

Simon Ekset, 20, of Parkman st.; Theresa Thorne, 22, of Parkman st., and Agnes Edwards, 22, of Bartlett st., all of Charlestown, were taken to Choate Memorial Hospital, Woburn.

The others, treated by Dr. John J. McGinnis of Wilmington, are John E. Woods, 25, of Tremont st., Charlestown, driver of one of the cars; Henry J. Dunn, 22, of Sprague st., Charlestown; Theresa Peterson, 20, of 46 High st., Charlestown; Abe Ekket, 23, of Parkman st., and another girl. Simon Ekket was said to have driven the other car carrying his Thorne, his brother Abe and the unidentified girl.

Florida Woman, 112, Worries for Son, 70

Pensacola, Fla., May 3 (AP)—West Florida's oldest resident, census enumerators report, is a negro woman at Marianna, aged 112. Her principal concern, they found, is a son, aged 70, whose marriage recently was dissolved by divorce.

2 CITIES SHOW POPULATION INCREASE

Pittsfield and Attleboro Gain; First Boston Census Returns Show Loss

Two Massachusetts cities had large increases in population during the past 10 years, census returns made public today reveal.

Pittsfield, in the Berkshires, now has a population of 49,578, an increase of 7815, or 18.6 per cent since 1920.

Attleboro, the returns show, now has a population of 21,777, a gain of 2046, or 10.3 per cent since 1920. North Attleboro, with a population of 10,150, showed a gain of 912 or 9.8 per cent since 1920.

Brattleboro, Vt., it was announced today, has increased 5 per cent in population since 1920. That place now has 9745 inhabitants, an increase of 413 over the 1920 enumeration.

Other communities reporting increases in population are Marblehead with 8643 inhabitants, an increase of 1319 since 1920, and Topsfield with 934, a gain of 84 during the past decade.

While the tabulations of Boston's 22 wards have not been completed as yet, it is believed that the returns will show this community to have a population of more than 800,000.

To date only seven wards have made complete returns, and these enumerations show a loss of 2.27 per cent. It is believed, however, that this loss is due to the shifting of population from one section to another within the city limits, and that the 15 wards still to be completed will reveal the expected increase.

HOLYOKE FIRE SET BY BOY

Holyoke, May 3 (AP)—A 10-year-old Holyoke boy confessed to police last night that he set the fire Monday night which caused $1,000,000 damage and for a time threatened the industrial center of the city. The youth has been in the custody of police since Tuesday, when he was picked up as a suspect because of having set several other fires.

He will be committed to the Belchertown state school for feeble minded children.

The boy told police he gathered some paper boxes in the sheds of the Casper Ranger Lumber Company, where the blaze started, and set them afire. He watched firemen battle the flames for about an hour and then went home.

QUARRY GROUP WIN FIGHT

Massachusetts quarry men were elated today when they learned that their fight to have local granite used in the construction of the new building of the Metropolitan District Commission at Allston and Somerset sts., West End, was successful.

At first it was generally believed that Indiana limestone would be used, instead of granite.

The contract, which was awarded to Coleman Bros., the lowest bidders, today, calls for the use of granite and red brick in the building.

The contract price is $348,000 and construction must be completed within 240 days.

GERMAN BONDS FACING ROCKY ROAD IN U. S.

So French, English, New York Bank Rates Drop; Buying Public Suspicious

By B. C. FORBES

New York, May 3—Very spectacularly the monetary stage is being set for the appearance of the first offering of German reparation bonds. Without word or shadow of warning, France lowered its bank rate to 2½ per cent, the Bank of England named 3 per cent and the New York Reserve Bank 3 per cent., all reductions of one-half of 1 per cent. These sales are astounding.

This extremely drastic action suggests that the world's bankers feel that everything conceivable must be done to grease the way for the reparation bonds. Indeed, the interpretation is permissible that doubts are harbored in high places as to the marketability of these war-bred obligations.

BOND PROSPECTS HERE

What are the prospects for the bonds in this country?

Doubtless the offering syndicate, which unquestionably will be ultra-influential, will promptly and triumphantly announce that the whole issue was snapped up the hour it was offered. That is an ancient form of polite financial fiction. When such an announcement is made—and it nearly always is made—all it really means is that the underwriters and their associates have allotted the obligations not to investors but to dealers, to houses that buy only to sell. J. P. Morgan & Co. can be depended upon to take care handsomely of this phase of the epochal transaction.

WON'T RUSH TO BUY

My guess is that the rank and file of investors will not rush in to buy these German reparation bonds. The public has the idea that somehow or other these bonds are shot through with politics. Also, there is a widespread notion that they represent the spoils of victory over Germany and that some day the whole Young Plan may be upset, to the discomfiture of holders of German reparation bonds.

There is, too, a growing preference in this country for American securities. The average American has infinitely more faith in his own country than in any other country. He knows that prosperity is more common here than in any other land. He is aware that enormous profits have been made by those who have invested in sound American securities, especially common stocks, and notwithstanding the recent tragic experience, he still has faith that American securities are the most attractive.

U. S. AS DUMPING GROUND

The yield on these reparation bonds will have to be unusually generous in order to interest ordinary investors. Moreover, intelligent educational efforts will have to be put forth between now and the offering date. The public needs to be told very clearly and convincingly why it should put its money into these obligations rather than into choice American investments.

Europeans originally indulged in the fond hope that the United States would be made the dumping ground for billions and billions of reparation bonds. Europe has since been disillusioned, at least partly. Some of our foremost banking houses feel that they and this country have a reponsibility toward Europe and that they have no such feeling of responsibility.

It is up to our banking gentlemen to leave no stone unturned to insure that by the time the bonds appear they will be selling ex-ignorance and ex-prejudice.

Tercentenary Styles Barbers Kick At

The Goatee

Here's how Senator Henry Parkman, Jr., would look with a tricky goatee if he followed the plan of the Tercentenary directors to take on a facial growth for the parade July 15. He laughed at the idea of growing a beard.

Full Beard

Congressman George Holden Tinkham's luxurious facial growth, famous throughout the world, will bring him right into the forefront of the pageant and parade. His beard makes him easily identified in congressional circles.

Dundreary

Or maybe you prefer the Dundreary, or side boards, so dear to the English barrister or butler. Here's how Speaker Leverett Saltonstall of the House of Representatives would look with the new sil boards. (Staff photos.)

Who Interest You and What They Are Doing

Girl to Fly From England to Australia

London, May 3—Amy Johnson, 23-year-old aviation enthusiast, is contemplating a long distance solo flight hitherto unattempted by any member of the so-called weaker sex.

If all goes well she will take off from the Croydon Aerodrome Monday morning in an effort to establish a record for solo flight from England to Australia, "the land down under." The mark she has to shoot at is the 15-day record of Bert Hinkler, established several months ago.

Amy Johnson.

The audacity of the attempt is all the more striking when it is realized that Miss Johnson's longest flight hitherto has been one of 200 miles. But she is undaunted by her lack of experience and fully expects to shatter the existing record.

Aimee Finds Turkey Rough and Tough as Home

Constantinople, May 3 (INS)—There are as rough and tough sections in Constantinople as there are in America's largest cities—perhaps tougher—but Mrs. Aimee Semple McPherson, Los Angeles evangelist, strolled through the toughest section last night, and today was feted by the new sights in the Turkish capital.

Aimee McPherson

Covered with an ermine wrap, the titian-haired evangelist was seen at a native theater, where very Oriental dances were among the features.

Mrs. McPherson has been held in this city by the illness of her daughter following a fall on board ship.

Vilma Banky Quits Films To Be Real Housewife

Hollywood, Calif., May 3 (INS)—There is not room in one motion picture home for two careers and peace and happiness.

This in effect is the interpretation of the colony today placed on the announced retirement of Vilman Banky, beautiful Hungarian screen star, from motion pictures to become Mrs. Rod La Roque, housewife.

Said Miss Banky:

"I have just decided to quit pictures and become once and for all Mrs. Rod La Roque. I shall be happy. We will never part, I know. I am an American citizen now, too."

LINDY IS ON WAY TO NEW YORK

Miami, Fla., May 3 (AP)—Flying his specially built plane in which he established a new trans-continental speed record, Charles A. Lindbergh started northward from Miami today at 6:38 a. m., E. S. T. While he made no announcement it was understood at the airport he would head directly for New York without any stops, traversing the same route he covered on his journey here last week.

Washington, May 3 (AP)—Dwight Morrow, ambassador to Mexico and candidate for U. S. senator, watches the flights of his famous son-in-law, Charles Lindbergh, with the most intense interest.

Talking to newspapermen today he shook his head and commented whimsically:

"Well, I see by the papers that Col. Lindbergh was three minutes late in reaching Miami today."

Hoover Names Pratt as New Navy Chief

Washington, May 3 (AP)—Appointment of Admiral William V. Pratt as chief of naval operations, effective October 14, upon the retirement of Admiral Charles F. Hughes, was announced today by President Hoover.

Boston Pilgrims Off for Algiers

Gibraltar, May 3—Boston's pilgrims to the Eucharistic Congress arrived here for a short visit at the famous rock.

CABLEGRAMS FAKED IN NEW RUM 'RACKET'

Hub Victims Find Only Sawdust in the Bottles From Partners in Europe

A new "racket" is being worked in Boston on persons seeking liquor, Western Union officials revealed today.

The racketeers obtain the names of Boston men who are abroad, and those of business associates who remain here.

A cablegram is faked from a man in Europe to a partner or friend here saying the former has purchased a supply of fine liquor that a bootlegger has agreed to deliver in Boston.

Soon a stranger calls on the recipient of the "cablegram," and agrees to deliver the "stuff" at a specified place.

The victim instructed to go in a taxicab, arrives at the meeting place, turns over his money for a weighty package, and when he opens it later finds bottles filled with sawdust.

RUM SEARCH ON LINER UPHELD

Washington, May 3 (AP)—New York customs agents who set aside Treasury Department instructions yesterday to search persons leaving an incoming ship for the purpose of liquor discovery, were held today by Assistant Secretary Lowman to have been justified.

Lowman reiterated the treasury did not intend to allow customs agents to "slap the hips" of passengers leaving steamships or otherwise resort to indignities in enforcement of prohibition. As to the case of yesterday, he said:

"It was claimed high carnival was being held on a foreign ship in the New York port area.

"The revellers were said, in numbers, to exceed the passenger list by four to one.

"Under the law it is the duty of federal authorities to stop such affairs."

Rum Search of 7000 Visitors on Bremen

New York, May 3 (AP)—Resuming a practice abandoned some months ago customs guards last night searched all visitors leaving the North German Lloyd liner Bremen prior to her sailing.

Several pints and half-pints of liquor were seized. More than 7000 visitors were searched as they left the ship, the investigators emptying the pockets of the men and examining wraps carried by the women.

The domestic help problem is solved by taking a kitchenette apartment and that's how advertised daily in the For Rent columns.

the country safe by taking orders from Britain, and telling other nations how much we love them.

Europe's nations hate Russia, but you observe that they leave Russia alone.

Many opinions about Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow's prospects in New Jersey Senatorship fight.

The wets think he will be beaten because he can't be anything but dry.

Many feel that he will be successfully attacked as an advocate of the League of Nations. His opponent, Frelinghuysen, has turned wet and against the League Court.

However, predictions are dangerous.

Mr. Morrow might find a marvelous vote getter in his courageous young daughter, Mrs. Charles Lindbergh.

If she made an airplane and automobile tour over the state, saying simply to all the voters: "My father is a good man, and I hope you will vote for him," that alone might elect him.

And it wouldn't be necessary to drag in Col. Lindbergh.

Mr. Morrow is an able man. For pure business and prosperity reasons, New Jersey might well choose him.

He would get for his state as much as anyone could get for any state, and probably more.

Farmers who milk cows and wean calves will be interested to hear the milk news from big New York.

Prices down one cent a quart. Grade A milk will sell for 18 cents, grade B for 15 cents, the lowest prices in two years.

A surplus has caused farmers to cut prices 37 cents a hundred pounds. The farmer who does the hard work gets four cents a quart less. Dealers who hand the milk to consumers get from 11 to 14 cents for delivery.

KIDNAPED WOMAN REVEALS OPERATIONS OF MYSTERIOUS CULT

RITUALISTS IN SCANTY ATTIRE

Room Reeks With the Smoke From the Burning "Sacred Powder of the Spirits"

Buffalo, N. Y., May 3 (AP)—A tale of a mysterious cult, known as the Order of the Black Mask, and said to have headquarters in Buffalo, was being investigated today by police who heard the story told by Mrs. Elizabeth Mowrey, 24, of Richmond Hill, L. I.

Mrs. Mowrey was detained yesterday by Niagara Falls police as a material witness in connection with the arrest of Antonio Melidona, who was charged with kidnaping Mrs. Mowrey and keeping her a prisoner in an attic room for nine months.

The woman told police a story of secret trips from Niagara Falls to Buffalo to attend the mysterious ceremonies of the cult, but could not give the location of its headquarters here.

The ceremonies, she said, were practiced behind closely guarded doors, in a room filled to the point of suffocation with the smoke from a burning "sacred powder of the spirits," while the cult members wore only the scantiest of clothing during the ritual.

Papers in a foreign language were found in Melidona's rooms and translated. Police said they substantiated the woman's story of the existence of such a cult, but gave no details as to its operations here.

Immigration authorities were interested in the case because of the report that Melidona was liable to deportation.

CLUB PARADERS IN INDIA

Calcutta, Bengal, May 3 (AP)—Police with their batons injured several persons today in breaking up a procession in honor of arrival of V. J. Patel, former speaker of the Indian legislative assembly.

London, May 3 (AP)—Feeling is widespread that Mahatma Gandhi, leader of the civil disobedience campaign, would not be allowed to remain at liberty much longer.

Bombay dispatches indicated that the long awaited step might be taken by the administration when Gandhi fulfils either of two threats —to come to Bombay personally to lead his passive resistance movement, or when he moves on Dharsana to seize the government controlled salt depots.

BRITISH SHIPS IN COLLISION

London, May 3 (AP)—Lloyd's Gravesend wireless station said today the British steamers Maine, from New York, and Holywood, outward bound, collided at Longreach this morning. The Holywood was beached, seriously damaged.

The Holywood is a small coasting trade vessel, plying between London and Sunderland.

The Maine proceeded to Royal Albert dock with extent of its damage unknown here.

Boy Flier Is Only 70 Miles From Goal

Colton, Cal., May 3 (AP)—A flight of only 70 miles to Los Angeles remained today between Frank Goldsborough, 19, of Jackson Heights, N. Y., and a new transcontinental record for junior aviators. Goldsborough was halted here last night by darkness.

He began at Westfield on Monday in an effort to break the present record of 48 flying hours held by Dick James. According to the aviator's computations, he had spent 33 hours in the air when he landed.

Abbe Dies on Way to Catholic Congress

Carcasonne, France, May 3 (AP) —Abbe St. Laurent, attached to the episcopal administration of the Roman Catholic diocese of Montreal, who was en route to the Eucharistic Congress at Carthage, died suddenly today after a stroke. He was 37.

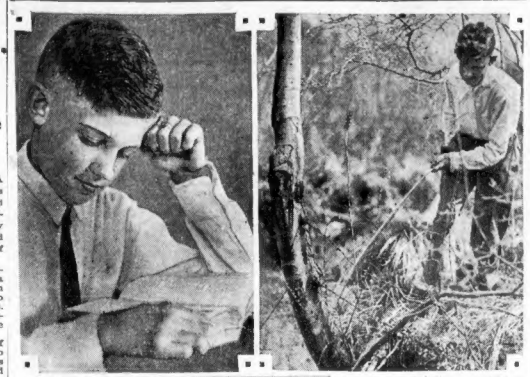

His sister and niece, who were members of a Canadian party to the congress, were summoned, but the abbe already was dead, holding in his hand the prayer book he had been reading when the stroke came.

Captured Priests, Feared Slain, Alive

Belfast, Ireland, May 3 (AP)—The Catholic priests, James Linehan and P. F. Laffan, who were captured by bandits at Rienlaochen, are alive and being treated well, said a cablegram received today from Fr. Quinlan, attached to the Chinese mission at Huan Yang.

The cable added that hopes were held for their early release. Previous Shanghai reports had said they were murdered.

To Graduate From High School at 12

Young Greenler, a fastidious student never misses a legitimate chance to get out in the woods or along nearby streams.

William J. Greenler, Jr., a West Boxford lad of but 12 years, will graduate from the North Andover high school next month. You see "Bill" with a smile what is a smile, as he was seen at his home, yesterday. He is still doing home work but he's also listed among the sure thing graduates for the June class.

Hoover Cancels Fishing to Fight for Parker

Washington, May 3—President Hoover today called off his intended week-end trip to his Virginia fishing lodge to be available to his leaders in the Senate who are struggling for the confirmation of Judge John J. Parker of North Carolina as an associate justice of the Supreme Court.

A rollcall to decide the issue of confirmation or rejection will be taken early in the week, possibly on Monday. Today the outcome was uncertain. Eight senators were conceded to be undecided and on these the persuasive talents of the sponsors and opponents of the North Carolina jurist were concentrated.

JOHN D. IN ADO OVER BOUQUET

Lakewood, N. J., May 3 (AP)—There was much ado at his estate yesterday when John D. Rockefeller lost a boutonniere made for him by a warm personal friend, Mrs. Theron McCampbell.

Mr. Rockefeller, as is his wont a couple of times a week, drove over to have luncheon with Mr. and Mrs. McCampbell at their stock farm in Holmdel, 30 miles north of Lakewood.

Mrs. McCampbell has a hobby of making buttonhole bouquets of artificial flowers. As Mr. Rockefeller departed after luncheon, she fastened a particularly dainty one in his coat.

Reaching home, he discovered his decoration was missing. After a search of the house and ground, it was found under the seat lining of his auto.

Switzerland Plans U. S. Tariff War

Geneva, May 3 (US) — Switzerland today made ready to declare a tariff war against the United States.

While the press continued to attack the 300 per cent American tariff increase on watches, the national chamber of commerce decided to boycott American manufactured goods, stressing automobiles.

Mermoz Plane on Way to Senegal

Kenitra, Morocco, May 3 (AP)—Jean Mermoz, French aviator, and four companions, who landed here yesterday on a flight from Le Bourget to St. Louis, Senegal, took off here at 7 a. m. today.

As quickly as possible after arriving at St. Louis they will take off on a South Atlantic flight to Natal, Brazil.

BOY COMPLETES SCHOOL IN 6 YEARS

Andover High Senior, Only 12, Finished Grammar Grades at 8

Completion of his grammar and high school course in six years is the enviable achievement of William J. Greenler, Jr., 12, of West Boxford, who will be graduated as valedictorian of his class at North Andover High school this June.

Billy is a sturdy lad, the picture of health and belies the common conception of the youthful prodigy. He is tall and well-built, and there is nothing of the bookworm about him.

Billy is a man's man, or rather a boy's boy.

LIKES SPORTS

His favorite sport is swimming and almost any day during favorable weather he can be found in one of the many "swimming-holes" in his neighborhood. Next to swimming, he likes fishing best, and is well acquainted with the various streams about West Boxford and their possibilities for the youthful angler.

Billy is a wide but by no means intense reader. His reading covers many fields but his tastes do not run in any particular direction. Like most boys of his age, he enjoys fiction. He does his share of studying, as his record shows, but, being a normal, healthy lad, does not care for it particularly.

Billy is the son of ex-representative and Mrs. William J. Greenler. His father is now an inspector for the state department of animal industry. His mother, who was Miss Mabel L. Hill of Stoneham, is a former schoolteacher.

WILL ENTER COLLEGE

According to his mother, Billy knew the alphabet when he was only 17 months old. Billy says he learned it from alphabet blocks and books. He said he started to read at the age of four, using a primer.

He intends to enter college but his father wants him to wait a few years because of his youth. He hopes to enter Boston College and study either law or medicine.

200 FISHERMEN DIE IN TYPHOON

Tokyo, May 3 (AP)—Fears that a typhoon which swept Southern Saghalien and Northern Hokkaido Islands had taken a heavy death toll among the fishermen were expressed today in dispatches to Bengo News Agency from Toyohara and Otaru.

The typhoon swept the area last night. About 100 persons were missing and were believed to have drowned. Bodies of 94 victims have been washed ashore.

Property damage was estimated at about $2,500,000. The storm struck just when the appearance of great schools of herring in Odomari Bay had drawn 2000 fishing boats, carrying 10,000 fishermen, to sea.

GIRLS ON 'DIET BOX' PICNIC

Equipped with bathing suits, wraps, and picnic lunches, 250 Simmons College freshmen and juniors held their annual May party at Nantasket Beach today.

One of the notable changes in this time honored institution was the substitution of diet lunch boxes for the old time picnic basket. Today the girls took only the lunch permitted to girls who would keep fit without acquiring surplus weight.

Elizabeth Kerr and Winifred Turner were in charge, Katherine Tidd, of White Plains, N. Y., is president of the Freshman class and Carol White, of Asbury Park, N. J., is president of the Juniors.

SENIOR CLASS ROLL HOOPS

In the annual May Day celebration at Wellesley College, Miss Louise Schmidt of McKeesport, Penn., won the senior hoop-rolling race from Power Court Hill to the chapel today.

More than 300 members of the senior class took part in the event, the winner having the additional honor of being the prospective first bride. She is understood to be engaged.

A feature of the exercises was the forming of the numerals 1930 by members of the sophomore class.

Trapped Thrush Stirs Tenants of Loop Skyscraper

Chicago, May 3 (AP)—A little brown thrush is causing a stir among the tenants of the 23-story State Bank building, in the loop.

The skyscraper is in the shape of a hollow square, and it was into this hollow square that the thrush flew three days ago. The thrush has been unable to find his way out of the enclosure.

An assistant fire chief, several firemen, some sage policemen and an agent of the Humane Society have tried every known device to get their hands on the thrush so they can set him free. The thrush, however, is unusually dumb or else very happy in his predicament. Even the use of flashlights and nets at night have been unavailing.

LOURIE'S LIFE IS TO BE RETOLD

A program that will represent every activity and interest of the late Judge David A. Lourie will feature the public memorial meeting tomorrow night at 7:30 in Temple Mishkan Tefila, Roxbury.

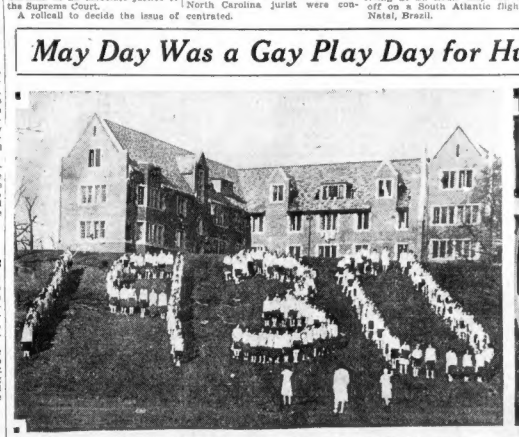

Judge Walter L. Collins, who knew the late judge intimately, will tell of his boyhood days. Frederick W. Mansfield, president of the Massachusetts Bar Association, will recount his legal career. Louis Lipsky, president of the Zionist Organization of America, will pay homage to the man he knew intimately as a Zionist leader. Atty.-Gen. Joseph E. Warner will remember his days on the judiciary.

Rabbi H. H. Rubenovitz will talk on the religious ideals of the man he knew as a leading member of his organization; and Mrs. Jennie Loitman Barron will tell why his achievements, ideals and principles will remain forever a lasting memorial.

N. Y. Police on Guard Against Tong War

New York, May 3 (AP)—Reports to police headquarters that the Hip Sing Tong was holding a secret meeting in Chicago to decide whether war should be declared against its rival tong, the On Leongs, in competition over gambling, resulted in a half-hundred police being placed on duty in New York's Chinatown today.

May Day Was a Gay Play Day for Hundreds Today at Wellesley

May Day was celebrated today by the girls of Wellesley College. Here we see the sophomore class forming the numerals of the senior class on Tower Hill. It proved to be a very attractive scene. The early hour did not deter a large crowd from gathering. (Staff photos.)

Even the dignified seniors unbended and went in for the hoop race with vim. The winner was Louise Schmidt of McKeesport, Pa., and a college legend has it the winner will be the first of her class to wed.

Hal Skelly in Plane Crash

New York, May 3 (AP)—Hal Skelly, stage and screen, actor turned a ground loop in landing his airplane at Armonk airport yesterday, but escaped injury.

The landing gear of the ship was smashed.

Sail for England

Miss Dana Sieveling, director, and Miss Miriam Winslow of the Dana Sieveling School of the Dance are sailing on the Laconia tomorrow for a visit to England.

MORROW WILL QUIT POST

Washington, May 3 (AP)—Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow announced today he would open his campaign for the Republican senatorial nomination from New Jersey without returning to Mexico City or entering the United States Senate at this time.

In an informal statement the ambassador to Mexico indicated he had yielded to the counsel of political friends from New Jersey and would submit his resignation from the diplomatic corps to the President immediately.

He plans to open his campaign within 10 days.

The ambassador added that he felt he should be available in this country to give such testimony and information concerning the naval treaty as may be required of him in hearings to be held by the Senate.

When the primary campaign is over, Ambassador Morrow will return to Mexico to take up a number of important matters pending.

Three Hurt as B. & M. Flier Crashes Auto

Georgetown, May 3—Three Lawrence men, on their way to work on the Newburyport turnpike, were injured today when a Boston bound Boston & Maine train struck their auto at the Andover st. crossing here.

The victims were James Healey of 15 Ames st., cut on the face and hands; Albert Tillotron, Congress st., cuts on forehead and John Duffon, Water st., injuries to right side.

Reception Given to Retiring President of State Federation

The official family of the State Federation of Women's Clubs was feted at a delightful tea and reception at the Women's Republican Club house, Beacon st., by the retiring president, Mrs. Azel A. Packard.

In full prominence was the silver tea service which the day before was presented by the women leaders of Bay State clubdom.

Mrs. Packard received, giving a smile and a tribute to each woman who stood by her and with her for two years of successful administration of one of the most powerful federations in the whole General Federation of Women's Clubs.

Sorry to see her go, but happy in the thought that for the next two years she will be the "contact lady" between the General Federation and State Federation when she becomes the Massachusetts director, the officers, district directors and heads of departments responded to her invitation to "take tea."

Mrs. Carl L. Schrader will succeed Mrs. Packard as president of the State Federation. Doubtless she will be known as "The Book Lady President" because of her inspiring book reviews and book chats before the clubs throughout the State.

British Club Will Hear Noted Speaker Wednesday Evening

"British Isles and Dominions Night" will be observed by members and friends of the Women's Republican Club of Massachusetts next Wednesday when a program, arranged by the political department, Mrs. Nelson W. Howard, director, will introduce as the principal speaker, Hugh Mackarness.

"The Persian Gulf" is to be his subject. Hostesses for the evening will be Miss Bertha Barnes and Mrs. Oscar Lenk.

Club Activities for Young Women to Be Discussed on Radio

"The young women in club life."

For a long time young women have frowned on club affiliations, thinking clubs the universities of middle-aged women. But today that thought has been completely dissipated and we find countless, yes, indeed, countless young women and young matrons joining clubs as the best medium for interchange of thought and knowledge, for the assimiliation of the best in knowledge, for social contacts invaluable and incalculable, for self-cultivation and for self-development.

It has come to be the natural thing to do when a young woman gets married that she might best fit into the community and give the best to the community.

Radio listeners will be told about the new club-consciousness of the young woman next Wednesday when Mrs. Lauren L. McMaster, chairman of the department of the American Home of the State Federation, broadcasts from station WNAC at 11 a. m. Mrs. Fred B. Cross, chairman of community service, will supplement Mrs. McMaster's talk with a discussion of "The Right Use of Leisure" at 11:20 a. m., reading the prize winning essay sponsored by the department.

Crystal Finds Place in the Modes of Spring

SOL SOKOL CREPE creation, is a Patou's version of a smart little frock assuring little danger of monotony in its outlines—(Sketched in Paris.)

From Paris Bureau, Boston Evening American.

Paris, May 3—We are all crystal gazers this year for crystal both as trimming and as an accessory is very much of the mode and so appears with frequency on the evening scene.

Crystal beads are being used on some dresses destined for success later in the season and some observers of the mode believe that in the crystal they can see a vision of all-over beaded frocks next Autumn and Winter. But sufficient for the day or evening frock is the beaded trimming thereof and so we may leave it for the nonce.

The white evening frock looks like repeating its triumphs this season and is already seen in pleasing numbers and variety with us, and we daresay with you too. For it is a graceful and pleasing fashion and one of perennial appeal and charm, and becomes us even if our complexions do not bear the sign manual of Old Sol.

The little black frock goes big here and nearly every designer is showing an individual interpretation of it thus assuring little danger of monotony or repetition.

We have had sketched for you Patou's version of a smart little frock which found instant favor with visitors to his new collection. It is black crepe Sol Sokol with a gilet, collar and undersleeves in tucked muslin trimmed with real Valenciennes.

The bolero bodice is ever so slightly circular at the edge and is draped in crossing folds at the front. Loose swinging inverted pleats give width to the skirt at front and back. We imagine that the sketch and the description will convey to you that the simple little frock is often a quite complicated affair.

White chiffon embroidered with crystal tube beads makes a delightfully cool and summery evening frock from Poiret. Two circular godets at the front reach to the instep while the side pieces of the skirt trail slightly and the back section even more so. A narrow buckle is placed at a moderately raised waistline.

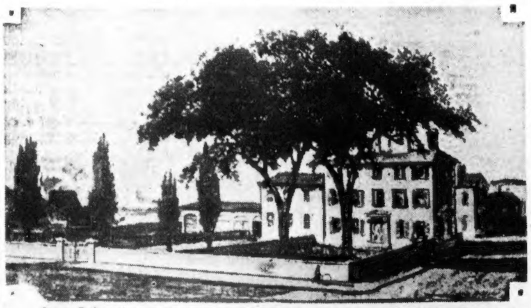

An interesting crystal bracelet, deep and flaring at the top, completes the sparkling effect.

CRYSTAL TUBE BEADS add much to this delightfully cool evening frock by Piorct. It is of white chiffon with trailing side pieces—(Sketched in Paris.)

Clip Here and Save

GIRL UNAFRAID : By Gladys Johnson

CHAPTER 49

Ridiculous . . . to be searching like this for something which couldn't be here . . . What could be printed in The Spy which could concern her? And yet, why had it been mailed to her, if not to wound?

Down in a corner, that column of sneering personalities called Through the Spyglass . . .

"The night has a thousand eyes—the day but one—" So runs the old verse, which is perhaps the reason the night sees so many more interesting things than does the day.

Apropos of which, Ye Spy saw such a touching sight a few nights ago. A young married man of this town calling on his former inamorata. Tender love scenes are so touching!

I shall not disclose his name, of course, for Ye Spy is never indiscreet, nor do we wish to cause trouble among those who sit in the high places, and this young man, not so long ago, married into one of our wealthiest families. Nor can one entirely blame him, for it is whispered that he was much enamored of this lovely blonde who is fair, though she does not belong to the social elect.

Be that as it may—this gentleman's call upon the lady of his secret choice, did not end until that hour when the milkman beginneth his rounds.

Tut! tut! K. What would the fair wife say!

Fortunate it is that this little love nest is hidden where one would least look for it. But Cupid is a sly fellow and can find his way even down among the busy marts of trade.

By the time Ardeth had finished reading this effusion, her face was white and cold. She turned to the mailing address on the cover. Only the curt, typewritten direction which gave her no clue as to the sender.

She looked up and found her eyes caught by the gaze of Ah Ling standing opposite in the doorway. And Ardeth knew, that in some fashion the contents of this paper were known to the Chinese girl.

Warm sympathy in Ah Ling's gaze. "That is a bad paper! I wanted to throw it out, Miss Carroll, but—" she shrugged, "sometimes it is better to know what our enemies are saying. Then we can be on guard."

Ardeth swept the paper into the basket as though it were a snake.

"It's vile. Why—who would put that thing in?"

Her mind went fearfully back to the night when Ken had come here—dazed and seeking comfort. Someone had followed him . . . someone had waited to see him leave . . . Some enemy, lurking about the small shop in the night. Hiding, perhaps in the dark alley, peering in at them.

The thought was horrible.

"Oh—a dastardly thing to do!" she heard herself saying in a low, intent voice, which she did not recognize. "A—rotten thing to do! Who would want to hurt me . . . Who would do such a thing?"

"The Spy." Ah Ling returned promptly with a wise look of her slant eyes.

"But who is he!" Ardeth blazed at her. "If I could find out I would . . . I would have him horsewhipped out of a decent community!"

Ah Ling shook her head with its waves of lacquered hair. The small ivory face was expressionless, her eyes were remote.

"No, Miss Carroll. You could not afford to do that. Neither you—nor any of the other people he has slandered. For the world would misunderstand. They would not applaud you for killing a snake. They would say you were admitting your guilt. Can't you see—to take offense at what is written is to admit guilt. That is why such a thing as that—can live." She poked contemptuously at the green sheet with one orange brocaded slipper. "It would be all the world needed to start it whispering. The world is not charitable."

"Ah Ling—Rosie! you know who The Spy is!"

"I know. I will tell you—for your own protection. It's Cyril Underhill." Little Rosie Ling's lips curled as she said it, for she hated him.

Adeth's eyes went wide for a moment.

"How do you know?"

The slanting eyes glittered.

"My cousin Lee works for him as cook. Mr. Cyril Underhill is careless! He leaves his papers about his apartment. If he thinks at all of Lee he thinks 'Oh, he is just ignorant Chink.'" The vermillion lips curled. "My cousin Lee is American born. He reads English as good as me—as you—though that so clever Mr. Underhill does not know that.

"He knows much, my cousin Lee. What this Cyril Underhill does. Who calls upon him—" she suddenly checked herself, slanted a sidewise look at the other girl. Made a little gesture with her hands.

"Well, I have told you. Because I like you a lot, Miss Carroll. But you will say nothing, of course."

Ardeth was silent, turning over in her mind the information she had just received. She did not doubt the truth of Ah Ling's statement for a moment. She knew the network of relationship which bound together San Francisco's Chinese. She knew the cleverness of these excellent servants who could hear and see all and say nothing—at last to no white persons.

Chinatown could ring with the affairs of Pacific avenue, but Pacific avenue would never guess it. It was Ah Ling's personal loyalty alone which had allowed even this much too seep out to her.

So Cyril Underhill was The Spy. Her face burned as she remembered the days he had been down here, petted and patronized by the very women he was secretly stabbing in the back.

She remembered him standing, dark and elegant by the Coramandal screen, reading excerpts from the scandalous articles he had secretly written, encouraged by malicious feminine laughter.

Did Cecile know he was The Spy? It would be like her to appreciate the spiteful humor of thus being behind the scenes. Or was Cecile deceived and worked as well? Was this man of no loyalties leading her on, too?

But Ah Ling was right! Ardeth thought with a sudden maddening sense of impotence. Her hands were tied with her knowledge. If she told this to Ken . . . her heart leaped with fright, Ken would kill the sneak. It would mean a scandal which would bring the world down about their ears.

To expose Cyril Underhill would release scandals whose ramifications led far back. An upheaval which would shake a city to its social depths . . .

No. Not yet. Wait! And in the meantime do nothing which would bring this scandal monger down upon her defenseless head.

DANVERS ALIENISTS SAY SULLIVAN WAS VERGING ON INSANITY

HOLDS GRAND JURY UP FOR MONTH

Doctors Say Patient Is Blue, Downhearted, Frightened and Near Collapse

nals where principles of law and justice prevail; that criticism of my administration of the office were made in proceedings to which neither I, nor the police department generally, was under charges; that in so far as the report is directed against me personally it consists of innuendoes, arguments and opinions which any fair-minded tribunal would reject as unwarranted and unsound.

"This report has been submitted to the general court which as yet has taken no action. I trust that when the matter is taken up by that body it will, in fairness, give me an opportunity to be heard, to offer evidence, and to meet argument with argument, and I would welcome any fair investigation by the general court of my entire official conduct."

When Governor Allen returns to Beacon Hill on Monday he will immediately issue a call for a special meeting of his executive council at noon, at which time he is expected to ask permission to dismiss the commissioner summarily on the charges of inefficiency, incompetency and neglect, as outlined in the Warner report.

TO GO DOWN FIGHTING

That move is anticipated by Comm. Wilson. From a source close to him today it was learned that he will go down fighting.

Wilson is expected to seek an audience with the Governor's Council on Monday, at which time he will make his first statement in connection with the Garrett case and voice the charges he is now preparing, said to blame political expediency for the conduct of the Garrett probe, Warner's findings and the demand for his resignation.

Failing to secure an audience with the council—and that body is in no way bound to hear him—the commissioner will appear before the rules committee on Tuesday, when the Garrett findings will be publicly discussed.

In any event, it is said, he will issue his statement to the press and it will contain, from all reports, all the bitter resentment he has been harboring in silence during the last few months.

His inefficiency, made obvious during the Garrett hearings, his negligence, more glaringly apparent, are not visible to his own eye.

This was indicated by his attitude yesterday during his stormy "on-the-carpet" conference with Governor Allen. He appeared actually and immeasurably surprised that anyone should consider that he would quit.

His determination not to accede to the Governor's demand, but to await the removal he now recognizes to be inevitable, is based upon his belief that resignation would to some extent be an admission of his shortcomings.

WILSON INCENSED

The commissioner, his friends say, fails to recognize any personal shortcomings in his attitude toward Garrett, shown to have been the "fair-haired boy" of the police department over a period of several years.

He is particularly incensed over the attorney-general's accusation that in his treatment of Garrett he made a self-sacrifice of the duties of his office and of his own respect.

Refusing to admit himself incompetent, he will charge that he was selected as the "goat" in a political move and that the Garrett investigation was but a means to the end of his own removal.

In this, his friends declare, he is absolutely sincere.

With his counsel, Frank Stewart, and with several of his closest friends, Wilson discussed the situation created by the governor's demand, and from some sources was advised to accept, as philosophically as possible the inevitable and to step out of the commissionership with as much grace as was left him in view of his public indictment.

This advice he scorned. His reply will be submitted only to Atty. Stewart before it is sent to the governor.

FOLEY FACES DELAY

Hope of presenting the Garrett case before a Suffolk grand jury next week faded today when Dr. George M. Kline, commissioner of the department of mental diseases, informed District Attorney William J. Foley that John F. Sullivan, star witness of the Warner investigation would not leave Danvers asylum before the end of this month.

Foley had asked Dr. Kline for a report on the conditio of Sullivan, who entered the institution on April 22 as a voluntary patient.

"I have been informed by examining physicians at Danvers that Sullivan is blue, downhearted and frightened and was clearly in a state of nervous breakdown verging on a stage of insanity when he was admitted," said Dr. Kline.

"The Danvers staff, however, would not say that he was insane then or is insane now."

Dist. Atty. Foley asked Dr. Kline if there was any way of predicting how long Sullivan would remain at the hospital and was told that in all probability the observation period would end 35 days from the date of admission to the institution.

Foley interpreted that to mean that Sullivan, if released at all, would leave Danvers toward the end of the month and would be able to appear at grand jury proceedings in the first week of June.

The Garrett case, declared to be comparatively simple by Damon E. Hall, who declined to prosecute it in the courts, is not quite so simple as Hall would make it appear in the unofficial opinion of the Suffolk County prosecutor's office.

While it is undoubtedly a probability that Garrett could be indicted on the basis of Sullivan's sworn testimony at the hearing, the very fact of the latter's presence in an asylum, in the light of conflicting evidence given at the Ritz conspiracy trial, handicaps the district attorney no little.

Whether Foley will elect to do the job himself, assign it to one of his assistants, probably Frederick M. J. Sheenan or Frederick T. Doyle, or whether he will make another attempt to secure a special prosecutor, he has not decided.

A formal invitation to avail himself of all the records in the Garrett probe was forwarded today by Atty.-Gen. Warner to Dist. Atty. Foley.

The invitation included not only the data used in the examination of witnesses at the investigation, but also information received by Warner, which, while pertaining to the conduct of Boston police officers, was outside the scope of the Garrett hearing.

A number of statements were secured by investigators of his department, Warner said in his communication to Foley, which might prove valuable in a grand jury investigation of the Garrett case.

While major attention in the Garrett case was focused upon the Allen-Wilson phase, and particularly upon charges the commissioner is said to be drafting, the choice of a man to succeed him and the most extensive reorganization of the police department since the famous strike of 1919 hung in the balance.

Also being held up were the grand jury proceedings, the status of the Garrett pension and the legislation which will be an outgrowth of the Warner findings.

STUDIES CANDIDATES

For the commissionership, Governor Allen is said to be still uncertain. Senator Henry Parkman, Jr., known to have been considered, said today that he would not take the post if it were tendered to him. Representative Eliot Wadsworth, former assistant Secretary of the Treasury and another rumored candidate, made a similar statement.

Governor Allen's move in calling former Atty.-Gen. Herbert Parker into conference with Wilson yesterday, was taken to indicate that the latter's son, Registrar George A. Parker, had been eliminated from consideration as the next commissioner.

Yet this may not be so, for it was learned that the former Attorney-General was not present at the conference by appointment, but had been called in during an emergency when Governor Allen learned he was at the State House on other business.

Registrar Parker appeared for some time as the most likely candidate for the job and may still be in that position. His army and state police training make him particularly qualified for the post.

The Governor, it is believed, will select a man with military training if it is possible, consistent with his belief that such experience is necessary to the man who must enter the job without sentiment to wipe out the last vestige of the graft and corruption exposed during the Garrett probe.

Such a man would be Brig.-Gen. Samuel D. Parker, who was mentioned as a possibility today for the first time. Gen. Parker headed the State Guard at the time of the police strike and was to a large extent responsible for putting the demoralized Boston force back on it feet. Discipline has been synonymous with his career.

In the halls of rumor several other names are being bandied around, among them Homer Loring, James J. Phelan and Sheriff John A. Keliher. They are remote possibilities, however.

SHAKEUP NECESSARY

Whoever is chosen to succeed the present commissioner faces the task of a complete reorganization in the department, as was indicated yesterday in Gov. Allen's letter to Wilson.

This reorganization, it is regretted but admitted in most quarters, will see Michael H. Crowley stepping out of the superintendency. His retirement on pension is forecast.

Capt. George W. Patterson must retire or find himself removed.

Lieut. Daniel J. Hines, second in command of the liquor squad, is also doomed, as are squad members whose guilt is apparent but must be established by the courts, according to the attorney-general.

Immediate filing of charges against Sergt. Arthur Timmons and Special Officer Arthur Tiernan, named as recipients of graft payments from John F. Sullivan, former Ritz proprietor, is expected with the naming of a new commissioner.

Putting the Stop to Garrett's Pension

The official stop on the pension of Oliver B. Garrett was put into effect by Mayor Curley as his initial move in connection with the case.

POLS IN HUDDLE OVER INNES

Boston politicians today are in a huddle attempting to interpret a cryptic references to the "Innes organization" in a statement of the Roosevelt Club endorsing George A. Parker, registrar of motor vehicles, for the post of police commissioner.

The endorsement made public by Robert M. Washburn, president of the club, reads as follows:

"The Roosevelt Club enthusiastically endorses George A. Parker for police commissioner. He is admirably fitted for the place by capacity and experience and is unallied with the Innes organization."

Mrs. Bixby Denies Deserting Husband

Long Beach, Cal., May 3 (AP)—Denial that she deserted her husband, Jotham Bixby, Jr., millionaire son of the founder of Long Beach, and went to New York, was contained in a cross complaint with a charge of desertion, on file here today in the name of Mrs. Bertha Kilgore Bixby.

Attorney for Mrs. Bixby said a property settlement had been made. She was understood to have received $1,000,000.

STIFF COURSE FOR PILOTS PLANNED

Graduates From Hub Flying Schools Will Be Ready to Go Anywhere

By GEORGE HAMBLIN

The modern art of teaching students how to fly has reached the stage where prospective aviators upon graduation from a transport pilot's course can go anywhere and do anything. This was formerly true only when a pilot had amassed several hundred hours of air time.

The two flying schools at the Boston Airport, operated by Curtiss-Wright Flying Service and Skyways, Inc., have their course so laid out that upon reaching the stage where the examination for a transport ticket is just a matter of course, and to be taken in stride.

DO CROSS-COUNTRY

Cross-country instruction is given to all students in this course, and also in the limited commercial course of 50 hours. The student is first taken out by his instructor to a point 50 miles or more away, with the student doing all the work.

The instructor picks the point to be flown to, and the student must needs plot his course on the map, making allowances for wind drift, and all the incidentals which might crop up.

Then the flight is started. The pilot acts merely as a check man, offering hints on the way, and handing out plenty scoldings if the student gets lost.

It remained for Curtiss-Wright, however, to pull a formation cross-country flight, with Valley Stream, Long Island, New York, as the objective, and five ships detailed to make the hop.

TELL DESTINATION

The students were selected, their destination made known, and the flight was on.

Alton B. Sherman, chief of student instruction with the company, was in the lead ship, flown by E. F. Whitney, and Students Bradley Dearington, Stanley Boynton, Henry Sturgess, Bill Tanner and Bill Tappan brought up the rear. Station Manager Harry Copland, Sales Manager Charles Pratt went along in Dearington's ship, bound to have a "free" ride, with someone else doing the work.

Record Breaker

Mlle. Lena Bernstein, French aviatrix, who shattered the women's endurance record at Le Bourget, Paris, yesterday, when she landed after being aloft 35 hours 46 minutes 75 seconds. The former record, held by Elinor Smith of New York, was 26 hours 21 minutes 32 seconds. (Associated Press photo.)

LETTERS FROM READERS

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Editor Boston American:

Do your readers know what makes many employes hot under the collar? Take it out in Toledo for an instance. In a single auto factory of that city, 24,000 men were dropped out of a total of 28,000. These men are out of work since the last months of 1929.

But this is the sting in this whole affair. The company meanwhile declared a dividend the first of this year of $900,000, meaning that company felt under obligation to its poor stockholders, but "nary" a feeling for the unemployed workers. Then to top the climax of the whole matter, the president of the company contributed $15,000 to the community chest of the city, a good-sized box of salve for his working conscience. This president was lately appointed an ambassador to a foreign country and spent $300,000 for rare tapestries to adorn his suite in a hotel in a foreign country.

What about the mothers, wives and children of those employes who have suffered. Have they no kick coming?

JOHN K. KELLEY.

Regrets Resignation of Mrs. Anderson

Editor Boston American:

The withdrawal of Mrs. Anderson, wife of Bishop W. F. Anderson of the Methodist churches in Greater Boston, from the Paul Revere chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution is to be regretted, especially upon the grounds given for such action.

One ground that the organization did not take any definite stand upon prohibition upset Mrs. Anderson.

To lug prohibition into every organization and for certain members to be fussed because their defense of it is not made an issue at every meeting that they attend is nothing short of blundering. I endorse prohibition, but I do not believe in waving it every time that I attend one of the meetings of the three organizations to which I belong.

In fact, we must allow latitude about prohibition. Don't attempt to spring it every time you attend a meeting of your club, because you are obsessed with it. Above all, don't get your back up and leave because other members will not accede to what may be your personal opinions.

Says Cows on Common Would Be Dangerous

Editor Boston American:

I was much amused to read in your letter column about cows chewing the cud on Boston Common. This was about 100 years ago. Before that, in 1661, I found out cows were often a menace on the Common. When Gen. Humphrey on his way home from reviewing troops came against a cow on the Common in the darkness, he lost his life.

Some years later, in 1678, eight Indians were shot to death on the Common, while a year before that, Old Metoonas, a noted Indian in his day, was killed in the same manner.

To see Boston Common, filled with unemployed men and women, holding down the benches as it is every warm day this season, and chewing the rag because they have no work, is not a winsome sight.

Selfishness Comes Secondary Today

Editor Boston American:

The statement of a well-known woman educator in a public address here that the world in America was getting more selfish can hardly be justified. This was quoted in your paper.

There is this to be said, that people are being judged by different standards than in the past. These standards are along the lines of greater service to others.

It is no longer in the language of a Vanderbilt the "public be dammed." No one would dare to say this today in any public way, as this phrase was used 25 years ago.

The public is rightly taking its place with the man of ability and means, who is always having on tap the consciousness of personal responsibility. Without the public, there would be no opportunity for any one to practice their ability. Men of prominence, of wealth, and knowledge, today, have the utmost respect for the opinions of the public. They keep their eye upon the public. It is today: "The Public Be Tested." Selfishness is secondary.

Warns Against Raid on State Treasury

Editor Boston American:

What can be designated as a bold raid on the treasury of the commonwealth of Massachusetts in behalf of certain groups of the employes of this state who now hold highly favored positions of financial security, is not opportune and most unfortunate at the present time.

Is it not a fact that this is not the time to make wholesale increases in salaries among the employes of this state, who have settled positions that are not subject to economic changes, with the ebb and flow of prosperity and depression.

The political leaders who are responsible for sponsoring this raid upon the state treasury at this critical period of industrial and commercial chaos and widespread unemployment should take notice. It would appear that these political leaders are indifferent to the interests of the people.

Quotes Dr. Eliot on Prohibition

Editor Boston American:

May I correct a wrong impression about what the late Dr. Charles W. Eliot of Harvard University said in reference to the Volstead Act. These are his exact words:

"I believe it may be advisable to amend the Volstead Law slightly, to permit the manufacture and sale of light beer; but beyond that it would be dangerous to go."

This is entirely different from what a speaker in Boston, advocating prohibition, said in a public address.

If you want accuracy, here it is, and always verify your references before making a speech is my candid advice.

HENRY FOLSOM.

Warns Against Adoration of Revolutionary Heroes

Editor Boston American:

The public are warned not to gush too much over the heroes of the Revolutionary War, that is looming up on the horizon of this tercentenary year.

No historian dares to tell the history of the corruption, political, military and financial scandal of the Revolutionary War. Historians are hiding much of this, covering many incidents over, stifling an order that makes us think and estimate our modern politicians in cities as real saints, without any veneer over them.

There is plenty of veneer over some of these so-called heroes of the past that are dubbed as leaders in their several generations, but deserve a less worthy name.

If the lights of the past could be turned on, we would see them as they really were, not as they are painted in one book. So don't gush over them. There is no need of this. Just take what they did and said often with a grain of salt.

Quotes Ex-Gov. Foss on Curbing Lawyers

Editor Boston American:

Former Governor Eugene N. Foss, of this state, recently told the writer of this letter that something must be done to keep down the increasing number of law students. There is a profusion of them that may sooner or later involve difficulties.

The governor added that while in his official position he vetoed a bill to increase the number of law schools in Boston. But under a succeeding governor, this school was born.

He told of a representative attorney holding a prominent position who sized up this situation and urged that law schools in this locality be closed for 10 years.

Nothing has been done and the increases of lawyers advances till the atmosphere is truly charged with legal talent of a great variety. Women entering this profession are yearly swelling the number of solons. Unless more troubles develop than have during the past year, lawyers will have to make trouble to keep their briefs lively.

I. T. O. A. Taxi Men Did Not Endorse Mulhern

Editor Boston American:

The Independent Taxi Operators' Association, known to the public as the "I. T. O. A.," has no connection whatsoever with the trade journal, Motor & Taxi News, edited by one Harry Wiseman, in which recently appeared an editorial which purported to endorse Joseph J. Mulhern for district-attorney of Suffolk County.

The press has stated that "independent taxicab owners, through their trade journal," had taken the above action. Lest any erroneous impression be created the Independent Taxi Operators' Association, the only organized group of taxicab operators in Greater Boston not connected with any company or corporation, has not endorsed Joseph J. Mulhern for district-attorney.

In justice to the present incumbent of the office of District-Attorney William J. Foley, who has always been a good friend of the Independent Taxi Operators' Association, and as a matter of fairness to the Independent Taxi Operators' Association, which I represent as attorney, I submit this open letter to the press of Boston.

RALPH SWARTZ.
Attorney for Independent Taxi Operators' Association.

PLAN RACE FOR FISHING TROPHY

Lunenburg, N. S., May 3 (AP)—The Provincial Legislature has appropriated $1000 towards the financing of a fishing schooner race off here this year during the fisheries exhibition.

The fisherman's trophy, emblematic of the sailing championship of the North Atlantic, is now held by the schooner Bluenose of this port.

The fishermen race committee of Gloucester, Mass., has expressed the hope that Capt. Angus Walters of the Bluenose may be persuaded to come to Gloucester this summer to race against the Gertrude L. Thebaud, recently launched Gloucesterman now on her maiden fishing trip.

Boston interests have announced their intention of entering a vessel in the races to be sailed off Gloucester.

Rhapsodies in Blue

TRENDS may come and go. Styles shift like drifting sands in the winds of fashion, but Ram's Head blue—deep, rich luxurious blue—is as lasting as the ages. Lasting in wear and color, Ram's Head blues in cheviots, serges or unfinished worsteds, give you that satisfying smartness you seek in a neat blue suit.

SEASON HAS SUSPENDED SENTENCE

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

SOMEBODY, somewhere, has jabbed a fresh needle into the local drama. Racing down the home stretch of a deleterious season, the weeks following Easter promised an early accumulation of empty playhouses. Things were not so good; obsequies were imminent. But the drama has denied the call of the graveyard; it may be ailing but there's life in the old girl yet. Hardly had the early signs of dissolution set in when the old Rialto sprang to life with gay promises of salvation knocking at the door.

* * *

FOLLOWING A WEEK of rest, the harried reviewer, already set for a summer of ease, will find himself facing a veritable flood of new attractions. For the local drama is not yet wrapped up, properly addressed and, positively, is not ready for delivery to the emptiness of high temperature and drafty storehouses. Mr. E. E. Clive of the always active Copley attended to the first details by embracing "The Ackroyd Mystery" as something desirable for the year's late comers in playgoing circles. To give this thriller its proper background, a great star has been taken into the Copley household — Mr. Lionel Atwill.

* * *

MR. CLIVE'S IS ONLY the first of a series of gentle gestures indicating a belated rejuvenation of the oral drama. With the departure of Ethel Barrymore from the Wilbur, there will come to this temple of the spoken word, Donald Meek in "Broken Dishes" a comedy that performed very well on its own account for the better part of the current New York season. Mr. Meek is no stranger to the Boston playgoer; his achievements may be measured in volume as well as in artistry. From the days of John Craig at the Castle Sq. to the seasonal flutterings at the Wilbur Mr. Meek's deeds as an actor are amply encompassed. The native sons may be expected to greet him royally.

IF THESE items were not sufficient to convince the theater's most solemn mourners, there are added inducements fairly struggling at the gates. That most persistent of all mystery plays, "Dracula," is to make its third appearance at the Hollis on Monday, May 12. While "Dracula" may be reasonably regarded as a relic of the days when "The But" and "The Cat and the Canary" furnished goose flesh for the multitudes, it has managed, without much trouble, to outlive all its rivals. Its opening performance at the Hollis will be made particularly interesting in the fact of its being the annual benefit performance for the three amiable young men who preside at the theater's main portals—Joseph P. Cook, Vincent T. Fetherston and Paul D. Spillane.

Stars Above Are Not the Only Ones That Are Resplendent These Footlight Nights

RACHEL HARTZELL
MISS HARTZELL aids the merriment in that uproarious comedy "Little Accident" at the Plymouth. This lively show remains in town but one more week. It has laughs galore.

ETHEL BARRYMORE
MISS BARRYMORE is as ever most excellent in "The Love Duel" at the Wilbur. She carries on all the Barrymore traditions. Her long road season ends in Boston next Saturday night.

BARRY O'NEILL AND FRANCINE LARRIMORE
AND THAT'S THAT! Mr. O'Neill may be proposing marriage to Miss Larrimore. Or they may be discussing the psychology of romance. They're in "Let Us Be Gay" at the Hollis.

CHANGE MADE FOR BETTER

Fred Niblo, director of John Gilbert's second Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer all-talking production, "Redemption," to be seen and heard at Loew's State next week, believes that the day of the irrevocably happy ending for movies is over.

"I have always contended that the ending of a film should be consistent with the type of story told," Niblo states. "There are many stories, of course, which should have their happy endings, but there are also many which should not. 'Redemption' is an example of the latter. Here is the tragedy of a man whose hereditary instincts force him to leave his wife and child to answer the lure of gypsy blood and who gradually becomes an outcast of society.

"To tack a 'Pollyanna' ending onto Tolstoi's drama would be to insult both the great Russian novelist and intelligent picture audiences."

FLORRIE LA VERE
MISS LA VERE shines brightly in vaudeville at the Scollay Square Olympia.

TWO SELVES FOR FOLK IN THIS CAST

The extraordinary Eugene O'Neill play, "Strange Interlude," will be presented next week at the Empire Theater in Salem by the Theater Guild of New York. Composed of nine acts, "Strange Interlude" requires its audience to be seated at 5:30 sharp, and to remain there until 11 o'clock, with a sort of recess for refreshments or dinner from 7:45 until 8.

Its theme has caused more discussion both pro and con than any other stage offering in years. In "Strange Interlude" O'Neill tells a story in plain, unvarnished language of a wife who foists on her husband the child of another man, as his own. But in the narration of this seemingly sordid tale O'Neill affords Nina Leeds, his principal character, many unique opportunities to run the entire gamut of human emotions so that she emerges one of the great personages of the stage.

The Theater Guild of New York is presenting the play in Salem with the same company that has been seen in Los Angeles, Washington and Chicago, for extended runs. It includes Ernest Glendinning, George Gaul, Elisabeth Risdon, Maud Durand, Erskine Sanford, Blaine Cordner, James Todd, Mary Holsman and Lester Hayward.

There will be only six performances of the play in Salem beginning Monday at 5:30 p. m.

Plays Remaining

Ethel Barrymore in "The Love Duel" at the Wilbur. (Second week.) In which a none too innocent young woman pays a heavy price for her man. The last week.

* * *

Walter Woolf in "Dear Love" at the Shubert. (Second week.) A grand opportunity for an industrious baritone—or is Mr. Woolf a tenor?

* * *

Francine Larrimore in "Let Us Be Gay" at the Hollis. (Third week.) The frivolous well-to-do show their stuff. It's a cheerful demonstration. The last week.

* * *

Fred Stone in "Ripples" at the Colonial. (Third week.) All the Stones, little and big, in a romping festival of music and fun.

* * *

"Dear Old England" at the Copley. (Fourth week.) Broken down nobility give up mansions for abandoned trams. The last week.

* * *

"Little Accident" at the Plymouth. (Sixteenth week.) All good things must end—and so "Little Accident." The last week.

* * *

John McCormack in "Song o' My Heart" at the Majestic. (Seventh week.) Transatlantic romance, with Mr. McCormack presiding over the high notes.

* * *

"Journey's End" at the Tremont. (Third week.) Soul-stirring stage play made into the year's most gripping film.

GOOSE-FLESH THE THING

Seated around a table in an English club sat Henry Irving, the noted English actor, with several of his friends. The conversation turned to Edgar Allen Poe. An assertion was made that there never would or could be a shocker to equal "The Murders in the Rue Morgue."

Sir Henry accepted the gage and foretold that the novel "Dracula," written by his secretary, Bram Stoker, would live and grow with age and prove to be the greatest of all mystery shockers.

"Dracula" is now more than 30 years old, yet it is the largest seller of its kind and one of the largest sellers each year. The strange part of it is that instead of decreasing, the sales increase, fulfilling the prophecy of the far-seeing actor. It comes to the Hollis on Monday, May 12, with several members of the original company that first appeared in it in London.

STAR 'CLICKS' MODEST 'WOW' AS HE DODGES THE CAMERAS

A very modest young man is Colin Clive, the first to interpret the role of Capt. Stanhope in the stage production of "Journey's End" and the one selected to play that role in the all-talking screen version now at the Tremont. He was playing the role at the Prince of Wales Theater in London and was rushed to Hollywood on a leave of absence to appear in the picture.

* * *

Colin Clive saw America for the first time on that hurried trip. He caught a fleeting glimpse of Gotham and was amazed. He got to Hollywood and was astounded. But he found it difficult to comprehend some American customs. Asked to pose for a picture when he arrived on the steamship Homeric, he smiled quizzically and asked "Why?" In Hollywood he did not attend one party. All of his time was devoted to playing his part in the picture, a new experience for him. His "seeing Hollywood" was devoted to walking up and down the boulevard when not working. His work finished, he started back for London.

Colin Clive

He dodged all the news cameras. One photographer said:

"We want a picture of you with a pretty American girl," he said.

"Then you would have to get me with every girl in America. They're all tremendously handsome," said Clive.

But now for the greatest surprise of all. A representative of a motion picture company offered him a contract at practically his own price.

"That's awfully considerate," was Clive's cordial response. "But I shall remain on the stage—for the present at least."

"What do you think of motion picture acting?" Clive was asked.

"Extremely difficult," was the reply.

"Why?"

"Well, it's extraordinary—typically American. And you Americans are indeed extraordinary people. So full of life and action; so full of youth. Cinema acting is just that. One plays a part and then one stops and the next day one goes on with the part."

SEASON ENDS AS RUSSIAN IS CHEERED

By MOSES SMITH

Not even a New England midsummer day prevented the fashionable Friday afternoon Symphony audience from attending in full number the last concert of the season. Probably the principle reason was its desire to do homage to Serge Koussevitzky, who in his six years as conductor of the organization has not suffered one whit of loss of popularity.

The applause that followed the Brahms C minor Symphony, ending the concert, was not so much acknowledgement of the splendid performance as a testimonial of gratitude to Koussevitzky. Time after time he was recalled, to the accompaniment of cheers and stamping of feet. Not even when he bid his orchestra rise to share the tribute—usually a sufficient occasion for ending the applause—did the audience stop. Koussevitzky went off stage only to be recalled again.

The program was no hastily assembled collection of old standbys, which a tired conductor might have been pardoned in selecting for a last concert. Besides the Symphony it included Ravel's "Rapsodie Espagnole," Weber's Overture to "Oberon" and "Lilacs" tone poem by Edward Burlingame Hill of Harvard.

The orchestral performance throughout the concert was on a very high level, remarkably because of the torrid conditions under which the men were playing.

Pops Opening

The Pop concerts will open their 45th season, with Arthur Fiedler as their new conductor, on next Wednesday night, in Symphony Hall.

The Pops will as usual be made the more sociable by the serving of refreshments at the tables which cover the main floor, and are set in the refreshment room for balcony patrons. The orchestra will consist of 80 Symphony players.

Mr. Fiedler announces the following programs for the first two nights:

WEDNESDAY

Pomp and Circumstance... Elgar
Overture to "Mignon"..... Thomas
Rosenkavalier Waltzes... R. Strauss
Fantasia, "Aida"..... Verdi
Siegfried's Rhine Journey from "Gotterdammerung" Wagner
Tambourin Chinois..Kreisler
Bolero ..... Ravel
Selection, "New Moon"... Romberg
Whispering of the Flowers, Bion
American Fantasy...Herbert

THURSDAY

LENA DALEY
MISS DALEY is a big bright star in "Rarin' to Go" at the Gayety next week.

REAL BOSS IS THIS GIRL

Some women are born to direct as well as to act. Francine Larrimore may not know it yet but the chances are that some day she'll turn into an actor-director and to some good purpose.

"I call myself a stage-doctor," she said. "I can't begin things but I certainly know how to help them along."

In her official position as overseer in the current production of "Let Us Be Gay," which is now at the Hollis, Miss Larrimore not only takes care of her own property and the property of everyone else but she has her finger in everybody's pie. Not only does she create the star role of the gay divorcee in a most effective way but before the curtain goes up she has to see to a thousand and one things which you might naturally suppose a leading lady would be allowed to ignore. She has charge of everything back of the curtain.

Miss Larrimore sees to the lighting, the stage settings, the curtains, the direction back stage.

TRAVEL TRIP FOR DRAMA

Ethel Barrymore ends her 82½ weeks' season and her 14,236 miles tour in the Wilbur in Boston next Saturday. Even for Miss Barrymore, who is accustomed to extended playing periods, this is a record.

Beginning in Syracuse, N. Y., on October 4, 1926, she has acted practically continuously since that date. She has presented two plays, G. Martinez Sierra's "The Kingdom of God" and Lili Heitvany's "The Love Duel." Of the former she has given 335 performances and of the latter she will have given 282 performances before the close of her season, a total of 617 performances, with an estimated audience total of over 800,000 people.

She has appeared in most of the major cities of the United States between the Atlantic and Pacific coasts and has established new box office records in several theaters.

FILM STARS SHINE IN BIG FUN FROLIC

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

ENOUGH IS NEVER too much when it's a matter of sparkling film fun. "Paramount on Parade" steps up mirth's amplifiers by introducing no seeming end of clever performers in a mirthful round of laughter-producing skits. The folk range from the tiny Mitzi Green to the tall lanky Maurice Chevalier —between these two are all the bigger and lesser lights that draw salaries on the Paramount lots. Because of excellence of conception and direction, this movie frolic becomes the best of all the screen revues, being bright, breezy and at times brilliant.

* * *

"PARAMOUNT ON PARADE" is the current offering at the Washington St. Olympia and the Uptown. It deserves to do big business for a number of reasons. It is unusually pleasing entertainment. It is farce, it is satire, it runs comedy's gamut; it develops many surprises as it leaps again and again from the beaten path. It has the asset of good acting; quite a large percentage of its people conduct themselves as if they knew they were in stellar company when cast with the magnificent Mr. Chevalier and the marvelous little Miss Green. It has variety, and some of the musical numbers are very tuneful. Some of Paramount's best directors had a hand in this joyously exuberant achievement of the studios; and Miss Elsie Janis had general supervision, so that she too is to be included for the passing out of the bouquets.

Maurice Chevalier

* * *

AMONG THE PERSONALITIES in addition to those already mentioned are William Powell, Clive Brook, George Bancroft, Evelyn Brent, Ruth Chatterton, Jack Oakie, Leon Errol, Skeets Gallagher, Stuart Erwin, Harry Green, Helen Kane, Warner Oland, Eugene Pallette, Lillian Roth, along with such fandom favorites as Buddy Rogers, Nancy Carroll, Gary Cooper, Clara Bow, and a good many others. The girls are pretty and dance, and the thespians really do act, having been given something worth while to act in. It is all vastly pleasurable, the cock-eyed world show know.

* * *

BEST OF THE many good things are the jobs turned in by the never-failing Mr. Chevalier and the wee Mitzi. Mr. Chevalier's skits reach a higher level than the rest, but it is not to be forgotten that each and all have cinematic merit and are not mere stage imitations. Those alloted to Mr. Chevalier have a delightful subtlety. One of these is the "Origin of the Apache Dance," which exudes humor, with a rare snap-of-the-whip finish. Another is the Paris park sequence wherein Mr. Chevalier mimes in his inimitable fashion, and sings as few other comedians can sing.

MITZI GREEN has written her name up for stardom by her work here. For this tiny maiden shares the headline honors with the grown-up (and great) Mr. Chevalier.

JAMES CRUZE TO MAKE FILM OF EUGENE O'NEIL'S STORY

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

(Copyright, 1930, by Universal Service)

LOS ANGELES, May 1—A scant year ago a Eugene O'Neil play would have been summarized as too highbrow for the movies. But today with spoken lines, nothing is too profound for the screen, not even George Bernard Shaw. "The Straw," a play by the great O'Neil, has just been acquired by James Cruze who promises to do right by the author of "Strange Interlude."

Lola Lane and Glenn Hunter will play the leads. It is a big responsibility for Miss Lane, who is a newcomer. Hunter is a stage actor of many years' experience. Perhaps one of these days we will have O'Neil and Shaw out here in Hollywood. What with Frederick Lonsdale, Louis Bromfield and Sidney Howard luaching at the Embassy and various studios, nothing is impossible.

Louella Parsons

• • •

REGINALD DENNY, chief male charmer in "Madame Satan," will play opposite Grace Moore in "Jenny Lind." Maybe I should say sing opposite her for he has a number of songs. Cosmopolitan, who will produce "Jenny Lind" for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has been unusually busy on the story which Hans Kraly and Claudine West are writing. Sidney Frankling will direct and John Meehan is writing the dialogue. I hate to brag, but remember we hinted this a little while ago.

• • •

THE HOLLYWOOD GIRLS who count Maurice Chevalier as their favorite matinee idol, will be pleased to hear he is returning to Hollywood. His next picture, "The Little Cafe," will be produced right at the Paramout Western studios. Ludwig Berger, chosen as Chevalier's director, has been re-writing "The Little Cafe" which was produced in Paris years ago and later served as a musical comedy. Herr Berger is a musician of no mean ability, furthermore, he is a dreamer with one of the finest minds of anyone who has ever come to Pictureland. He and Chevalier, between them, ought to turn out a good picture.

I HAD A LITTLE TALK with Col. Tim McCoy a few months ago and he was very eager to come back and make pictures, but some way he hasn't had a chance since the advent of sound pictures. He has now been engaged by Universal to play the starring role in a silent serial with Aileen Ray in the leading feminine role and Francis Ford, pioneer actor, in an important part. Universal is calling the serial "The Indians Are Coming" and Henry McRae will direct. The only sound will be a synchronized musical score to be made on its completion. I am curious to know if there is any town where silent pictures are shown profitably. I noticed traveling on trains and motoring around through the country that even the smaller theater is advertising talking pictures.

A LITTLE REST has worked wonders for Dorothy Mackaill, who is coming back to Hollywood feeling like her old self. Dot has come up so smilingly that Warners handed her the role in "The Office Wife," which Constance Bennett was originally slated to have. Seems as if Miss Bennett who is under contract to Pathe, cannot finish her Fox obligations in time. Then, too Connie is in a great hurry to get to Paris. She is still trying to get out of her contract with Pathe so she can make two or three pictures a year independently and release them through United Artists.

EVER SINCE WE received the caustic call down for neglecting James Hall, we have been keeping an eye on the young man. Being human we hate to be scolded. Warners have just signed James Hall on a new long term contract. His first, temporarily called "Married Men," is based on a story by Jack Townley called "Two Time Mary." Harvey Thew is writing the adaptation. I understand it is Warners' intention to groom Jimmy Hall for bigger and better things.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD collected at random: Eric Von Stroheim's small boy swimming at John Farrow's beach house. Janet Gaynor, an attractive little bridesmaid, getting the last kiss from Irene Mayer before she departed on her honeymoon. Mrs. Louis J. Selznick and Norma Talmadge conversing at the Mayer wedding. Ramon Novarro singing and dancing in "March of Time." Gloria Swanson lunching with six guests at the Embassy. Edwin Carewe lunching at the Ambassador and discussing "The Spoilers." Buddy Rogers and Mary Brian dancing at George Olsen's night club. The club getting many of the film people after the theater. Fifi Dorsay eating garlic and lamenting that it made her love scenes less effective. That's all today.

GUEST STAR FOR COPLEY

It has been several seasons since Boston has seen the work of Actor Lionel Atwill, whose last appearance here was in "The Outsider." It is good news to learn that for his forthcoming production of "The Ackroyd Mystery," Manager E. E. Clive has secured the services of Mr. Atwill for an important role. "The Ackroyd Mystery" is an adaptation by the English playwright, Michael Morton, from the novel by Agatha Christie, and the part allotted to Mr. Atwill will give him every opportunity to display his rare ability. It is reported to be an exciting thriller, which comes to America for its first performance after a run of one year at the Prince of Wales Theater in London.

Lionel Atwill

Its engagement at the Copley Theater opens on Monday evening, May 12, and will enlist the full strength of Mr. Clive's company in support of the star.

Success Reported by Professional Players

The Professional Players announce that after one month of endeavor they have "gone over the top" set for themselves in the matter of obtaining subscriptions for the series of worthwhile plays to be given at the Plymouth, under their auspices, next season. Each of the six plays to be presented will run for four weeks. The first Mondays of each engagement are now almost fully subscribed, and these performances promise to be occasions of social, as well as artistic, importance.

VOICE HEARD WORLD OVER

While John McCormack is spending a vacation on his estate, Moore Abbey at Monasterevan, County Kildare, and in the various capitals of Europe, his screen-self will encircle the globe. Without any stretch of the imagination it can be said that the great tenor during his vacation will appear before more people from the screen than he has ever sung to in his whole career on the concert platform.

At the present moment, "Song O' My Heart," his first Fox-Movietine picture, is exhibiting in Boston, New York, Philadelphia and Hollywood. This month it will open in such widely removed centers as London, Sydney and Melbourne in Australia, Berlin, Paris, Vienna, Rome, Buenos Aires and Dublin.

IN THE SPRING CUPID MAY GO CUCKOO

Bert Wheeler

How are famous comedy teams formed? Gallagher and Shean, Kolb and Dill, Wheeler and Woolsey, the Two Black Crows, Amos and Andy and many others have found national favor in partnership. What chain of circumstances brought these teams together, is a question asked by many. Robert Woolsey and Bert Wheeler, principal funsters in Radio's laugh-a-minute picture, "The Cuckoos," now at the New B. F. Keith's, sprang into screen prominence as the leading comedians of "Rio Rita." Florenz Ziegfeld brought them together. Veteran actors of the stage, they had known each other for years, but had never thought of forming a team. Ziegfeld saw possibilities in teaming them and cast them in the original stage production of "Rio Rita," in which they played for three years.

GOES FLYING BUT NEVER IN PLANE

Spangleland's brightest stars glitter at Boston Garden in the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus. They are Alfredo Codona and his dainty wife, Lillian Leitzel, called the world's greatest aerialists, are conspicuous figures on the program of the Big Show.

Lillian Leitzel is without dispute a star of stars. There has never been, probably never will be, "another Leitzel," which is the showman's way of saying that she is supreme in her artistry. She performs scores of one-arm revolutions from a point high in mid air.

Alfredo Codona leads the Flying Codonas in their daring act. Intrepid and graceful, "The Adonis of the White Tops" performs what no other aerialist even attempts, a triple somersault while flying from one side of the tent to the other, to be caught in the hands of his brother.

Alfredo Codona and Lillian Leitzel are just as charming, just as gracious in their life back of the scenes as they are daring and death-defying in their twice daily performances. Since their marriage two years ago, their life has been a honeymoon of the road.

BRIMMING FUN AT HOWARD

Claire Dupont

Fun and plenty of it will be offered on Monday by the Old Howard's Own Burlesquers. The new attraction is "Blushing Widows," with new bits and scenes that show the originality of the producer. Billy Koud, Fred Binder, Mike Sacks, Opal Oakley, Adeline Parks, Ruby Foreman, Pearl Adams, Vera Walton and Lucille Carroll are stars. Other favorites include Charlie Wesson, Harry Cornell, Harry Connors and Eddie Cook. In the continuous bill the vaudeville will offer the Four Uessems, the clever juggler, Lawton, and Stuart and Gardner. The pictures offer C. B. DeMille's "Dynamite," with Kay Johnson; Conrad Nagel in "The Thirteenth Chair," and comedy features. The midnight show comes on Friday.

Western Lassie

MARY BRIAN
MISS BRIAN has the feminine lead in "The Light of Western Stars" at the Fenway.

'RARIN' TO GO' AT GAYETY

Divided into two divisions, a white and a black, Ed E. Daley's "Rarin' to Go" comes to the Gayety on Monday. The corps of white entertainers, headed by Joe Yule and Lena Daley, present the first portion of the show, assisted by numerous other competent people, and by a chorus of comely youngsters.

Joe Jordan and his "Sharps and Flats" are given the headline position in the colored section of the offering. Playing, singing, swaying, they set a pace that keeps the balance of their cast up and doing continuously.

Popular request, according to the management of the Gayety, has made it advisable to hold over Miss Joan Lee for a second week. Miss Lee will sing some new songs and dance some new dances.

This will be the Gayety's first black-and-white offering in three years. The usual daily matinees will be given, and there will be a midnight show on Thursday.

Jungle Beauty

GYPSY RHOUMA
Mlle. Rhouma is Tondeleyo in "White Cargo," much discussed film now at the Park.

BIG SHOW AT THE SCOLLAY

With three headline acts and four other big time offerings on the bill of the Scollay Sq. for the week beginning next Monday, this playhouse is keeping its promise of bigger and better vaudeville. Moss and Frye top the program with "How High Is Up?" Florrie Levere will be seen in "Celebrities," assisted by Edith Handman and Harry Denny. Hooper and Gatchett complete the triple headline billing with "Maneuvers."

LIKE FATHER, LIKE SON

Many years ago when Fred Stone's father ran a barber shop in Denver, Colorado, Fred would hang around the place and practice tap dancing, much to the disdain of the elder Stone. One day a bill poster came into the shop and hung a big poster in the window which announced Eddie Foy in "Hambima."

"If you must be an actor," the old man instructed the boy, "I want you to be like that fellow Foy—he's my favorite."

It was years later, while Montgomery and Stone were playing in Chicago in "Chin-Chin," that Fred was walking through the lobby of tht Briggs Hotel when he ran into Eddie Foy, who was holding his three-year-old son, Eddie, Jr., by the hand.

"If you must be an actor," Elder Foy urged to the Little Foy, "I want you to be one like this fellow Fred Stone," he drolled in his characteristic manner as he slapped Stone on the back.

And now to the 1930 production days of "Ripples," the musical extravaganza which Charles Dillingham is presenting at the Colonial, and which brings Fred Stone back to the stage for the first time since his aeroplane accident two summers ago.

The great clown comes face to face with a good-looking youth who was the outstanding hit of last season in "Show Girl." His name is Eddie Foy, Jr., grown into manhood and fulfilling his dad's wish, playing the leading juvenile role opposite Dorothy Stone in "Ripples."

CLUBWOMEN ON STAGE

Before an appreciative audience a splendid performance of "The Queen's Husband" was given yesterday afternoon at the Copley, by the Professional Women's Club. Prominent artists and clubwomen comprised the cast, ably coached by Miss Marie Ware Laughton. The affair was the club's annual spring show, proceeds of which will go to the clubhouse fund.

Those having prominent roles included Mrs. Gracia B. Moody, Arlington; Mrs. Nelson W. Howard, West Roxbury; Mrs. Evelyn B. Kinsman, Winthrop; Mrs. William V. MacDonald, Bay State rd.; Mrs. Charles H. Innes, Mrs. Malcolm B. French, Brookline; Mrs. Maude M. Tibbitts, Winthrop; Mrs. Betty Butters, Belmont; Mrs. Malcolm E. Nichols, Mrs. Grace E. Cole, Somerville; Mrs. Grace W. Gulesian, Mrs. Caroline L. Lyle, Mrs. Wallace Starr King, Brookline; Mrs. Charles F. Gettemy and Mrs. Jane K. Roulston.

RADIO STARS ON STAGE

The famous "Roxy Gang" of radio stars make an appearance in the flesh at the Keith-Albee this week. The group includes John Griffin whose rich tenor voice still delights radio fans. Adelaide De Loca, an Italian girl who has deserted the opera for more modern forms of musical entertainment, is promised on this week's program. So, too, does it bring Jeanne Mignolet, likewise a convert from grand opera, educated for the classical forms of music in Belgium and France. Radio fans are invited to request their favorite selections and the ever popular ones with which the "gang" has become identified in their broadcasting activities.

John Griffin

"Songs of Yesterday and Today" is the appropriate title of their vaudeville offering.

Boy Scouts Appear in Martin Johnson Film

Boy Scouts will take more than ordinary interest in the showing of "Across the World with Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson" at the Repertory, for a large part of the film is devoted to an account of the experiences of three scouts who visited the famous explorers in their African camp and for several weeks shared the dangers and excitement of life on a lion hunt safari.

The three scouts were selected from all the troops in the United States for their ability to write and on their records as scouts. All of their expenses were paid and on their return they wrote a book about their adventures which has had a big sale.

TRAFFIC SIGNALS FOR 'DEATH CORNER'

General Alarm for Wakefield Fire

"Death Corner" Gets Lights

Here you have a view of the corner of Center and Corey sts., in West Roxbury. This intersection has long been known as a "death spot" because of the number of automobile accidents. The view was made as Traffic Commissioner Joseph Conry viewed the traffic activities yesterday. Mr. Conry has promised to put into action plans that will bring a traffic light system so that children and grown folks will have the fullest protection. (Staff photo.)

Eaton Calls Himself a Fool

Bright-haired, vital, alive young Anne Murdock had been three years at the Eaton Advertising Agency when her opportunity came—the opportunity to become Eaton's personal secretary. To work with a man of Laurence Eaton's breadth and power was something to dream of, for Anne had ambitions beyond a suburban home with Ted O'Hara, who was on his own rung of the ladder. The only beauty Anne Murdock saw in her own home was that of her sister, Kathleen, who had lately deserted that home for a career in the chorus. But Eaton overhears a conversation between his secretary and young O'Hara, which leaves him wondering whether he may not have to surrender his efficient assistant to Cupid. Anne senses this and declares that she has no dreams whatever of matrimony. Eaton sends Anne on a business trip to Chicago.

CHAPTER XIX

Eaton stood where she had left him, frowning, ill at ease, angrier with himself than he had ever been with her. What a fool he had been; what a stupid thing to have done because his sex pride had been wounded!

He'd acted like the sort of man he'd always condemned. Taken advantage of their respective positions, taken advantage of an intimate evening in a quiet room to—to make love to his secretary. Well, not make love exactly. But to express upon unwilling lips his anger and his sudden desire and his male urge for supremacy.

To imperil himself like that, to risk losing the best secretary a man ever had!

"Confound it all!" said Eaton.

But he was disturbed to realize that all that evening the memory of the soft, warm lips beneath his own persisted. He swore his way through a tasteless meal and went to his club to find a poker game in progress. He played distractedly; he drank himself into a bad head and went home in the early hours of morning—still remembering.

Oh, he'd known for months how much she attracted him, but as long as he kept away from her it hadn't been dangerous. But now—

He liked her too much to hurt her. Yet it had been a good many years since he had been so stirred.

Their meeting on the following morning was formal. And after that it was easier for Anne to keep to her resolutions, for Eaton, unconscious of them as he was, was ready to help her.

MOTHER WORRIED

And then something happened that pushed Lawrence Eaton temporarily into the background of Anne's thoughts. For when she arrived home one evening, her mother met her and drew her aside with a troubled expression.

"I'm worried about Kathleen," said Mrs. Murdock.

"What?" Anne peeled her wearily.

"Nothing and everything. She'd not been out for over a week, so I ran into town today—Jim had asked me to go and see Sara, who is miserable," explained Mrs. Murdock, "and then I went down to the flat. That Lola was there. I don't like her; she's good for nothing. She couldn't be influencing Kathleen. She was nice enough," said Mrs. Murdock grudgingly, "but while I was there one rang up on the phone—some one named Dolly—and they had a talk. It was about 'Jerry,' and they were talking and so a fellow named George. I wish you'd find out what's it all about. I don't like it at all."

"Oh, it's probably nothing," said Anne easily. "What difference does it make? Kathleen's bound to meet men, mother."

"Don't I know that? But what kind of men?" asked Mrs. Murdock. "I heard that Lola say, 'Well, I can't tell her to stay away from him, can I?' If he's your property, why don't you manage it?' I didn't like the sound of that. Perhaps it's a married man!" offered Mrs. Murdock in a sepulchral whisper.

Anne thought a moment. Then she said evenly:

"I'm going to the theater with Betty tomorrow evening. I'll spend the night at Kathleen's. I've a key, you know. Don't worry, Mother, Kathleen can take care of herself."

PATTED HER BACK

She patted the little woman on the back and went up to her own room. Could Kathleen take care of herself? Could any woman—in love? She had once thought herself so much wiser and more self-contained than her younger sister. But she thought so no longer.

After theater Anne went on to Kathleen's and was there alone in the gaudy little apartment until the first of the strugglers, Lola, came in. Although the two had nothing in common, they were on good terms. Anne had been to that.

"Well, if it isn't Anne!"

"In person. That's a pretty frock, Lola."

"Like it? Want it?" asked Lola, always generous when on the crook. "Take it if you do. Too tight for me, anyway."

"Thanks a lot, but it's not my color. Too much red in my hair. Home early, aren't you? Kathleen's out. She gave me a key."

FOUR TOWNS BATTLE FLAMES

Wakefield Fire Believed Set; $25,000 Loss in the Hay and Grain District

A general alarm fire, believed to have been of incendiary origin, today swept the hay and grain storage warehouse of Curley Bros. on Main st., Wakefield.

Driven by high wind, flames and sparks shot across Main st., blocking traffic and necessitating a call for help from Melrose, Stoneham and Reading.

The two and a half story wooden building, containing hay, grain and building materials, was badly damaged and a one and a half story shed in the rear, filled with hay, was destroyed. The loss is estimated at $25,000.

It was the second fire loss in a few days suffered by the same firm, a hay shed 500 feet north of today's blaze having been burned on Thursday with a loss of $10,000.

Fire and police officials believe today's fire was started from the railroad side, the buildings being near Wakefield Junction station of the Boston & Maine railroad.

Church Spire Struck by Lightning and Burned

Holyoke, May 3—Struck by lightning the 135-foot steeple of the First Congregational Church here was badly damaged by fire and the organ in the auditorium was damaged by water. The loss is $18,000 to $25,000.

Firemen had difficulty in fighting the blaze due to the height of the steeple. It has been struck by lightning six times in recent years.

MALDEN FAMILY IS MISSING

Malden police today were confronted with the mysterious disappearance of six members of a local family, who went motoring last night and dropped out of sight, leaving a 16-year-old girl behind.

They are Mr. and Mrs. August Nonkes and their son, Albert, of 86 Maplewood st., their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. George Van Mielo of 56 Durso st, and the latter's infant son, George, one year.

The only member of the family who did not take the trip was Lena Nonkes, who was attending a moving picture show when the trip started.

Student Flyers Pilot Planes to N. Y.

Five planes piloted by students of the Curtiss-Wright Flyeing Service School at East Boston airport were among the 74 aircraft which flew over New York city today in connection with the opening of the annual air show at Madison Square Garden.

The planes are piloted by Stanley Boynton, William Tanner, William Tappan, Bradley Dearington, and Henry Sturgess.

Aid Harvard Scrubwomen

To aid the 20 Harvard scrubwomen discharged late in 1929 by the university, a group of students will give a benefit dance in Brattle hall, Cambridge, on May 14.

N. E. TEXTILE BOOM IS SEEN

Steady Improvement of Business Reported at Engineers' Banquet

Business conditions in New England textile industries are constantly improving and are already well on the way to complete recovery, according to Ray M. Hudson, industrial executive of the New England Council, speaking before the American Society of Mechanics at the Hotel Statler last night.

The banquet, attended by more than 100 mechanical engineers of the textile division, was a part of an extensive program arranged this week during the Textile Machinery Exposition.

"There has been a noticeable improvement among New England textile manufacturers during recent months and complete stability will again be reached within a few years," Hudson said.

OPTIMISTIC OUTLOOK

"Modernization of methods for cheaper production, maintainance of fullest employment possible, and continuance of normal buying, are factors that will hasten New England's return to business normalcy."

Other speakers introduced by Toastmaster Henry M. Burke, chairman of the textile division, were Ralph E. Flanders, vice-president of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers; Lincoln Bayliss, Cotton Manufacturers, and Franklin W. Hobbs, president National Woolen Manufacturers.

"Business depression following the stock market crash was the result more of emotional excitement and hysteria than of ruined business and with the enormous wealth still in reserve we are sure of stabilization," he said.

STUDY PROGRESS

Commendable in the textile industry today, said Bayliss, is the growing tendency of mill agents and operators to study the progress of the finished product after it leaves the plant. The need for merchandising experts and managing engineers is even greater than for mechanical engineers, he said.

Bayliss concluded with a plea for frank and open discussion of production problems among business executives.

"Research is the great problem of textile problems in New England," declared Hobbs, who outlined the history of a bill now before Congress which would place a fund of $1,500,000 at the disposal of textile research engineers.

Shipmates Blamed for Robbing Sailor

Three "friends" for whom Archibald Cartre bought supper and drinks in Lynn last night, expressed their gratitude by robbing him of $40 and beating him so badly that 14 stitches were required to close wounds on his face and scalp.

Patrolman George Kennedy found him unconscious today in a vacant lot near the wharf where his ship, the S. S. Frieda, was docked. Carter blamed three shipmates, Charles Hogg, Robert McClure and Ralph Gordon, who were arrested on robbery charges.

DWYER WIDOW GETS CITY AID

Mrs. Franklin B. Dwyer, widow of the slain Dorchester policeman, will receive $1600 a year from the city of Boston for the support of herself and her three children.

She is the first recipient of aid under the new State law providing for such emergencies.

Under the law she had her choice of accepting relief under the city retirement system, which would have paid her $2500 outright and approximately $820 a year, or under its new statute, which provides for payment of $1000 for herself and $200 for each child, without any cash outright.

Mayor Curley gave Mrs. Dwyer his personal check for $100 yesterday afternoon and called the attention of the citizens of Boston to the financial condition of the family.

United States Senator David I. Walsh heads the list of speakers scheduled to be broadcast next Saturday evening on the program to aid the Dwyer fund being raised by the Dorchester Board of Trade.

Hub Junior Typos Will Have Dance

Boston Junior Typographical Union, of apprentices employed in the composing rooms of newspapers and job offices of Boston, will have its fifth annual dance, next Monday evening, in the Music Box ballroom, Huntington ave. One of the features will be a "collegiate contest," with gold prize awards. Committee in charge consists of James T. Donovan, chairman; Michael G. Greene, John M. Dillon, Michael "Joe" McSweeney, Fred Inglieh, Edward Bassett, Thomas Griffin, James Higgins, Charles Madigan, Charles O'Connor, Edward Townsend, John Grainger, Francis Roberts, Francis McDermott, William J. Pierce, Raymond C. Stiles and J. F. Higgins.

Lose Pound-a-Week Menu

DIET NO. 17

A safe and sane diet, which should reduce weight at the rate of one pound a week, prepared by Dr. A. I. Ringer, consultant on metabolism for the Medical Information Bureau of the New York Academy of Medicine, is appearing daily in the Boston Evening American. Here is the seventeenth day's diet:

BREAKFAST
Grape fruit
Two poached eggs
Thin slice of bread
Tea, one cup, with milk (no sugar)

LUNCH
Shrimp salad, without dressing
Salad of shredded apple and celery, without dressing
One boiled potato

DINNER
One plate of beef bouillon
Moderate portion of roast leg of mutton
Asparagus salad
Two tablespoonsful of green peas
Thin slice of bread
Coffee, one cup, with milk (no sugar)

Diet Hints

Vegetables should play an important part in the reducing diet. Those with a small amount of carbohydrate are the most desirable.

The vegetables included in the Boston Evening American "safe and sane" reducing diet mostly contain less than 5 per cent of carbohydrate. There's no objection to eating vegetables with 10 or 15 per cent carbohydrate if the amount is reduced by one-half or one-third.

Besides the vegetables, the daily diets appearing in the Boston Evening American include moderate portions of meat and fish. One slice of bread or a potato should appear on each lunch and dinner menu.

Cast Stone Makers Ask Aid of Governor

The use of Massachusetts cast stone for the exterior of the proposed new Metropolitan District Commission headquarters has been urged upon Governor Allen in a communication forwarded to him today by the Cast Stone Manufacturers' Association of this city.

The association suggests that estimates of its product should be taken for all that part of the exterior of the building which has been specified as granite or Indiana limestone.

Miss Lane, E. Boston Teacher, Is Buried

Funeral services for Miss Laura M. Lane, for many years a teacher in Plummer school, East Boston, were held today from her home, 541 Eliot st., Milton, and with a solemn high requiem mass at St. Angela's church, Milton.

Rev. Edward MacGuire was celebrant, assisted by the Rev. John Hignell, deacon, and the Rev. Edward Houlihan, sub-deacon. More than 300 teachers from the Boston schools were present. Burial was in New Calvary cemetery.

CLUE TO PRISON FARM FUGITIVE

The fact that a prisoner had escaped from Norfolk state prison farm was revealed today, after William J. Biggane, 35, of Needham st., Dedham, reported to Dedham police an encounter with a housebreaker.

Awakened by barking of her pet dog, Mrs. Biggane heard someone at a window and aroused her husband, who sprang from bed and ran to it. In the darkness outside he could see nothing but gleaming teeth, and struck at them, through the glass, cutting his right hand.

The intruder vanished and Biggane went to a doctor's office where seven stitches were taken in his wound. He then notified police.

Because he saw no face and only the teeth in the darkness, police decided Biggane had struck at Walter Gladham, who, they had been notified, escaped from Norfolk an hour earlier.

A general alarm was sent out and at daybreak a search for the fugitive was begun.

FIRE CHIEF FOX REACHES GOAL

The man who said he would rather be right than President had nothing on Henry A. Fox, newly appointed chief of the Boston fire department, whose promotion takes effect the 26th of this month.

The present assistant-chief has always said he would rather be chief of the Boston fire department than President of the United States and now his ambition is realized.

At the same time, it was only his second greatest thrill, he declared at his High Rock way, Allston, home, the first having come when he married Miss Clara Bradbury in November of 1897. He will assume his new duties on the retirement of Chief Daniel F. Sennott.

CONRY AGREES W. ROXBURY CHILDREN IN PERIL

Boston Evening American and Board of Trade Win 2-Year Fight for Lights

Through the efforts of the West Roxbury Board of Trade and the Boston Evening American, Center and Corey sts., West Roxbury, long regarded by pedestrians as a death spot, is soon to be equipped with traffic signal lights.

For more than two years, during which time two persons have been killed and 25 others, nine of them children, have received serious injuries by being struck by automobiles, the business men and citizens have been waging a battle for the provision of protection at this dangerous corner.

STUDY LOCATION

That the demand for signal lights is soon to show some result, was apparent today when Traffic Commissioner Joseph Conry paid a personal visit to the spot and discussed with Gregory Prior, treasurer of the Board of Trade, the possible location of these traffic lights.

After watching more than 400 school children crossing the street on their way to the Olney school, Traffic Commissioner Conry agreed that there was a constant danger to these children until some sort of protection was provided.

MOTORISTS SPEED

The dangerous corner is located practically in the center of what is a long S type curve on the main highway leading to Providence from Boston. Motorists, because of the width of the road, both to speed in this section, adding to the danger to the pedestrian.

One of these killed recently at this spot was Benjamin E. Perkins, vice-president of the Atlantic National Bank. Perkins was killed while on a Saturday night shopping tour when he stepped between two parked automobiles.

Employment Record Shows Improvement

The records of the State public employment office, 25 Pearl st., for April show an encouraging improvement in the number of persons called for by employers, and the number placed, as compared with the preceding month, it was announced today.

The demand for automobile repairmen and automobile painters exceeds the supply of competent men available. There is also an increasing demand for experienced shipyard mechanics. The building trades experienced painters are scarce, but there is a good supply of carpenters, electricians, plumbers and steamfitters.

Doctors' Day Brings Applicant for Job

One result of the widespread notice given to Doctors' Day, sponsored by the New England Medical Center here last week, is a letter from a young doctor of Chicago seeking information about New England towns lacking medical men, with a view to establishing himself in practice here.

J. J. White Leads Harbor Bowlers

Rogers and Webb Team Captain Scores 100.13 Burt Poole Second With 98.88

Bachrach Photo
John J. White

Averaging over 100 during the entire series, John J. White, youthful auditor of Rogers & Webb, won the individual high mark of the Boston Steamship Bowling League, which has just finished a winter of bowling.

The captain of the Rogers and Webb team stood first with 100.13, while Burt Poole, traffic manager of Norton, Lilly & Co., was next, with 98.88. The third man was Capt. O. S. Pinkham, port captain of Rogers & Webb, who is recovering from an automobile accident in Newburyport.

Augustus Reardon, of Patterson, Wylde & Co., who died recently, would have been awarded second place, with 99.15, had he lived.

Dollar Bowlers Champs

Fred Bamberg, of Mystic S. S. Co., secretary of the league, announced that the Dollar Line won the league championship, with 81 victories and 31 defeats. Rogers & Webb was second, with 79 and 33, but carried off not only the individual high total, but also the high pinfall.

Eddie Connell, passenger agent of the Dollar Line, had the highest single string with 143. Frank Shea, export manager of H. P. Lambert Co., bowling with the Newfoundland-Canada team, rolled a score of 134. Eddie Donavan, pier superintendent of the Dollar Line, had the third high single with 130.

Mystic S. S. Co. had the high team single string total with 582, while Rogers & Webb won the high team three-string roll with 1537.

Individual Scores

Eddie Connell, Dollar Line, 98.08; Frank Burns, Luckenbach S. S. 97.40; Eddie Johns, Mystic S. S. 96.96; Eddie Donavan, Dollar Line, 96.3; Lou Ross, Dollar Line, 96.25; Capt. O. S. Pinkham, Rogers & Webb, 96.24; John Long, Luckenbach, 96.13; Lou Mann, Patterson, Wylde Co., 95.82; John Lang, Norton, Lilly Co., 95.69; Bill Mirick, Newfoundland-Canada, 95.19.

Capt. Mort Nickerson, Mystic S. S., 95.01; John North, Luckenbach, 94.86; Bill Leonard, Rogers & Webb, 94.8; John Murray, Norton, Lilly Co., 94.65; Joe McDonald, Rogers & Webb, 94.58; Tim Lucey, Dollar Line, 94.53; Walter Sorensen, Doane-Commercial, 94.06; Frank Shea, Newfoundland-Canada, 83.92.

Walter Duffy, Mystic, 93.46; Al Wood, Mystic, 93.12; John Forsyth, Mystic, 92.77; Nick McLaughlin, Rogers & Webb, 92.12; Henry Whightman, Norton, Lilly Co., 91.69; Bill Barnes, Newfoundland-Canada, 91; Carl Carlson, Newfoundland-Canada, 90.65.

Percy Eden, Dollar Line, 90.38; Fred Young, Patterson, Wylde Co., 89.99; Bob Potter, Patterson, Wylde Co., 89.90; George McKenna, Mystic, 89.47; Ray Hamson, Patterson, Wylde Co., 88.75.

Win Hardy, Doane-Commercial, 88.63; Joe Scalata, Norton, Lilly, 87.65; "Hello" Taylor, Doane-Commercial, 87; Roy Dolliff, Newfoundland-Canada, 85.49; "Books" Smith, Doane-Commercial, 84.72.

Longshoreman's Gazette

CARL MORRISON, Editor

Vol. 2 No. 3

This item is a "scoop" on the bridge editor. Our feature man learned of "the twin foxes" of Stone & Downer Co., who are known as the "bridge hounds of Boston."

Referring to Joe Desmond and Bernie Costello, our writer says:

"These twin foxes specialize in beating steamship and leather men. Maybe their system is telepathy or poker face bluffing, but these two boys have bowled over everyone to date. Their latest victims are Bill Cameron, of the White Star line; Emil Bernard, of Martineau & Burke, leather dealers, and 'Old Man' Tougas, of the C. B. Flynn Leather Co. We understand several players are secretly in training to drive the foxes into their holes."

Stormy Seas to Come

This year ocean liners are proving popular for young honeymooners. One ship had 10 such couples and featured a honeymooners' dinner dance.

Twigg, the Boatman

W. J. Twigg, known as "Twigg, the Boatman," has our idea of a good job. He's always catching something. His job is to catch the lines thrown ashore by steamers, and he probably does this service for fully two-thirds of them. He has a voice like a Nova Scotia second mate, and has no telephone at home because he can be heard across the city.

Coffee Imports Gain

Recently the Gazette pointed out that rubber imports had jumped from 1307 tons to 17,277 in 10 years, and that woodpulp had increased from 40,687 to 232,686 in the same period. We shall give more such evidences of port gains from day to day. The first item is about coffe, which swelled from 2784 in 1920 to 22,798 last year.

Our Amos and Andy

The Buck brothers are well known in the harbor. Mike and Pat are sometimes called the "Amos and Andy" of the waterfront. This "incopulated" pair get off some wisecracks of an original nature. Mike was fishing. He got a bite.

He called for help. His brother and others came along. The fish got away. One man commented that the fish must have been a whale. Pat had his answer ready.

"Sure and it was a whale we we used for bait."

Important Meeting

That New England export conference to be held at the Hotel Statler May 14 is of vital importance to Boston. Fully 25 organizations are sponsoring this gathering, including the Chamber, the N. E. Council, the Boston Export Round Table, and several local and national groups. Charles E. Spencer, Jr., vice-president of the First National Bank, is chairman.

P. S. The tickets are only $10.

Another Safety Rule

As part of the safety campaign in the harbor, we are calling attention to Rule No. 4 of the Boston Marine Safety Code, drawn up by steamship officials, longshoremen, insurance men and employing stevedores, under direction of Commissioner P. J. Monahan.

This rule reads:

"When a ship is lying at a dock, there shall be provided a safe means of going to and from that ship. All persons going to and from the ship must use this equipment. Short cuts overside via cargo slings, safety nets, etc., ARE PROHIBITED."

Here Comes the Cub

Our breezy cub reporter has another harbor hobby:

"I learned that Joe P. Wiley, of A. C. Lombard Sons, was a major in the U. S. Army during the World War, and was with a fighting outfit. Like the mailman who goes on a hike on his day off, Major Joe simply cannot keep away from the Somerville armory. His hobby is fighting the war over again, and he likes to help the National Guardsmen."

"some say he was the greatest of them all"

Turn back the years with James W. Reardon in his interesting series of articles

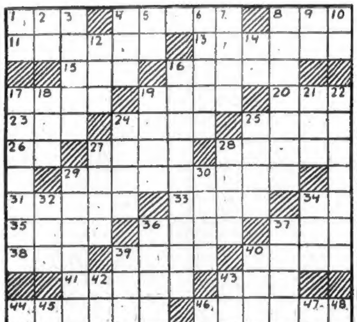

"FIFTY YEARS OF BOSTON"

This week he tells a tale in his own inimitable way of a day long before this present era of talking movies. He tells of Edwin Booth, whom many considered the greatest stage star of them all; beloved Lotta Crabtree, and other famous players.

Don't miss this series—it is an education in itself.

Herewith is the solution of yesterday's puzzle

ASK PROBE OF CHICAGO POLLS

Chicago, May 3 (AP)—The cry of frauds echoed today back from the April primary election.

Described by Fred V. Maguire, chairman of the election board, as "the cleanest ever conducted in Chicago," it was this primary that gave to Congresswoman Ruth Hanna McCormick in her battle with Senator Charles S. Deneen for the Republican senatorial nomination. James Hamilton Lewis, former Senator, won the Democratic nomination without the semblance of a campaign.

Many irregularities were found upon opening the ballot boxes of 18 scattered Cook County precincts, the April grand jury reported to Chief Justice Denis J. Mormoyle of the circuit court.

It disclosed no names, but it reported that in one precinct "a principal candidate for the United States Senate was deprived of 80 votes and an opponent given 91 more votes than voted."

NULTON NAMED AS NEW NAVY YARD HEAD

One of the most brilliant officers in the American Navy, Admiral Louis M. Nulton, commanding officer of the battle fleet, has been named to succeed Rear-Admiral Philip Andrews, as commandant of the Boston Navy Yard.

The change will not become effective until around June 15. In the meantime Rear-Admiral Andrews will continue to act as commandant of the yard and the first naval district.

Admiral Nulton is a native of Winchester, Va., where he was born on August 8, 1869. He entered the Naval Academy in September, 1885, and was graduated with honors in the class of 1889.

In 1925 he was made commandant of the Naval Academy at Annapolis and was then assigned to the battle fleet with the rank of vice-admiral, and during the absence of Admiral Clarke at the naval conference in London he was given the rank of full admiral and placed in command of the United States fleet.

DETROIT PRISON ABANDONED

Universal Service

Detroit, May 3—This city's house of correction, a fire-trap, built nearly 70 years ago, will be abandoned.

The prison, which housed from 500 to 700 prisoners, was composed of wood-frame buildings. The closing of the prison and the removal of the felons to the house of correction farm outside the city had been demanded in a campaign waged by the Detroit Times for the last few years.

With the recent holocaust in the Ohio State penitentiary, the Detroit Times added new force to its demand for the closing down of the fire-trap, with the result that the City Council ordered the evacuation of the prison yesterday afternoon.

Prince of Wales Wins Promotions

London, May 3 (AP)—It was understood today that the Prince of Wales probably would receive promotion in both army and navy during this year.

There were reports that he would be gazetted a major-general in the course of the next few months and possibly promoted to the rank of rear admiral in the near future.

Favorite Sister of Novelist Dies

New York, May 3 (AP)—Mrs. Carolyn Frevert, the sister at whose urging the late David Graham Phillips left newspaper work to become a poular novelist, died last night after a brief illness.

CHURCHES

Celebrates

The Rev. Harry Belmont Hill of the First Methodist Church, Temple st., who will complete four years' ministry tomorrow on Beacon Hill. He has doubled his membership in this time.

COMMUNITY CHURCH

Morning services at Symphony Hall, which have been held throughout the winter, will come to a close tomorrow morning, when the Rev. John Haynes Holmes takes for his subject: "H. L. Mencken: A False Prophet or True?" This service opens at 10:45.

ST. STEPHEN'S

Fr. George F. Fox of the Oblaten will preach at St. Stephen's Church, Hanover st., during the annual novena. This is the fifth anniversary of the sainthood of St. Theresa of the Child Jesus and the Holy Face. Services begin May 8 and continue until May 16.

ARLINGTON ST. CHURCH

Dr. Samuel A. Eliot of the Arlington St. Church will preach tomorrow morning on "Some Merits of the Commonplace." Those who remember Dr. President Charles W. Eliot have still vivid impressions of his oft repeated talk on the glory of a commonplace fisherman of the Maine coast.

CHAPLAINS TO MEET

The third conference of chaplains under the auspices of the Massachusetts Federation of Churches will be held next Thursday at 25 Beacon st. Among those to address them will be Dr. A. Warren Stearns, commissioner of corrections for the commonwealth of Massachusetts.

BEACON TEMPLE

The Sunday School of the Temple enrolled 400 children this past season, and Rabbi Samuel J. Abrams sees a possible 500 for next season. Closing exercises will be held on June 8th.

HERE AND THERE AMONG THE CHURCHES

UNION CHURCH

The Rev. Herbert Jump of the Union Congregational Church, Columbus ave., will close his "Good Will" excursion into various sections of Boston and the surrounding territory with a visit to the Sherborn Reformatory next Thursday. A company of about 50 people will make the trip.

METHODIST MINISTERS

Monday morning, at Wesleyan hall, Boylston st., Mrs. Lucia Mead will address the Methodist ministers on "National Dangers of Defense" and some specific matters in connection with the London peace conference.

PRESBYTERIANS.

Three divisions of the Presbyterian Church in the United States will become one soon if the Presbyterian general assembly to meet at Cincinnati May 29 agrees to proposals and the recommendations of the department of church co-operation. A bulletin just issued declares:

"Complete organic union with Reformed Church in America (Dutch Reformed) complete organic union with the United Presbyterian Church, and possibly complete organic union with other branches of the Reformed and Presbyterian family, will be recommended to the Presbyterian general assembly at Cincinnati May 29 by the denomination's department of church co-operation and union, through its chairman, Dr. J. Ross Stevenson of Princeton, N. J."

STATE FEDERATION

Miss Grace Coleman Lathrop was re-elected to the presidency of the New England Council of Federated Church Women at the ninth annual meeting held last Wednesday in the rooms of the Twentieth Century Club. Mrs. Henry A. Eldridge of Rhode Island, vice-president; Mrs. David A. Harrington, vice-president: Mrs. L. M. Bindford, vice-president for Maine.

AT TRINITY.

There will be a coronation service tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock at Trinity Church, Copley sq., when 300 girls belonging to the order of the Fleur de Lis, Inc., will gather to crown Miss Jean Marshall.

BAPTIST CLERGY.

Four more meetings have been scheduled for the Baptist ministers who meet Monday mornings in Chipman Hall, Tremont Temple. Next Monday the Rev. William S. Ravenell will speak on "The Challenge of the Disagreeable."

LINCOLN PARK

The Rev. John Shade Franklin of the Baptist Church, West Newton, will preach tomorrow morning on "The Fellowship of the Upper Room," and in the evening on "World Witnesses of Christ." The Easter cantata, "The Resurrection," will be repeated by request.

N. E. FRIENDS' CONFERENCE GATHERS

All members of the Society of Friends in New England are invited to attend a conference on "The Individual, Society and the Law," to be held in the Phillips Brooks House today and tomorrow. Tomorrow morning will be the regular hour of worship in Andover hall. At 11:45 Mary H. Gove will talk on "The Life and Work of Elizabeth Fry." At 4 o'clock at the Phillips Brooks House Elizabeth March of Richmond, Indiana, will give an address on "Friends and Military Training." In the evening Augustus T. Murray of the Friends Meeting, Washington, D. C., pastor of the church where President attends, will give an address on "The Christian Attitude Toward Law."

Tonight in the same hall at 8 o'clock, Dr. Warren Stearns, commissioner of correction for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, will talk on "Sociological Aspects of Crime."

Rev. H. H. Hill Begins Fifth Year

With a congregation doubled and church and charitable gifts trebled, Rev. Harry Belmont Hill of the First Methodist Church begins his fifth year with courage and faith that finer things are just ahead of him. Tomorrow in the morning Mr. Hill will preach an anniversary sermon on "The Church in the Heart of the City." This old first church has a history her people are proud of, and they point to the fact that at least five of the clergymen who have preached there have later become bishops.

Big Prohibition Rally at Tremont

Wednesday evening next will see hundreds of men and women who belong to the Prohibition Loyalty League gathered in Tremont Temple to listen to outstanding speakers of national reputation, and to make preparations for the great prohibition meeting to be held in the Boston Gardens May 27.

At Tremont Temple among the speakers will be Dr. Richard Cabot, Mrs. Henry W. Peabody and Dr. Robert Watson. All will be urged to stir up their friends to come to the Gardens.

Tremont Temple With New Pastor

The first question the new minister, the Rev. J. Whitcomb Brougher, D.D., LL. D., of Tremont Temple proposes to ask, and possibly answer is "Can the Christ Life be lived in Boston?" Services in the morning will begin at 10:25 and in the evening at 6:50. At this service Dr. Brougher will ask another hard question to answer "Can a California preacher be happy in Boston?"

FOR SPORTS—CALL LIBERTY 4000 | SATURDAY, MAY 3, 1930 | FOR SPORTS—CALL LIBERTY 4000

Boston College and B. U. Battle at Heights

William F. Carey, millionaire president of Madison Square Garden Corporation, was discussing the boxing situation at the Boston Garden with Tack Hardwick, Sheldon H. Fairbanks, Alex MacLean and Frank Bruen when Mr. Boston dropped in on him.

"We have been talking about the boxing situation in Boston," said Carey after greeting Mr. Boston. "I would like you to remain and listen to what we have to say."

Jack Conway

"Has Al Wall resigned as director of boxing at the Garden?" queried Mr Boston.

"Yes," replied Carey. "He has gone with the Queensboro club in New York. We have given Alex MacLean complete charge of boxing. MacLean knows boxing, is thoroughly honest and in time will put the sport on a paying basis here.

"The boxing end of the Boston Garden has not been as costly as it has been reported. I do not believe our losses will go more than $15,000 for the year. This is not bad when one considers the slump that boxing has been in throughout the country. New York has been the only city where any considerable amount of money has been made in the boxing game during the indoor season.

"We are confident that MacLean will build up some new cards in Boston and that with time conditions will be very good here. Boston is one of the finest boxing cities in the country and deserves the leading attractions.

Campollo to Show in Braves Field Bout

"Vittorio Campollo, giant South American heavyweight, will appear in action at Braves Field during the coming summer," asserted Frank Bruen. "Campollo has improved a great deal. A year from the coming summer I look for Vittorio to be battling the winner of the Sharkey-Schmeling bout for the heavyweight championship of the world.

"The other day Campollo dropped into the New York Garden and told me he would like to tackle the loser of the Sharkey-Schmeling match in September and that he would be ready for the winner by next year."

"Who would Campollo oppose if he appeared at Braves Field?" queried Mr. Boston.

"Gagnon, Maloney, Schaaf or some other equally good heavyweight. Vic never picks his men. He has always been willing to take on outstanding rivals. His matches with Heeney, Scott and Risko prove this to be true."

MacLean Believes He Will Develop Boxers

"I believe the diamond belt tourney at the Garden will develop some good boxing talent," advised Alex MacLean. "We have received entries from all parts of New England. Boys who never before received an opportunity to do their stuff in Boston are battling for the various belts.

"During the past few years very little effort has been made to develop new boxers in Boston. Only those boys who had made the grade received an opportunity to do their stuff. In time they either got knocked off or the public grew tired of seeing them in action."

Jack and Max Have Fans Steamed Up

"The interest in the Sharkey-Schmeling bout which is being promoted for the milk fund proves that there is keen interest in an outstanding boxing attraction. The advance sale for this show is already close to $300,000. I look for the gate to hit a million dollars.

"You will find that this bout will boom boxing. The men are evenly matched and the battle should be a furious one. The winner will also be recognized as heavyweight champion of the world. The boxing game will prosper with a heavyweight leader. This class has been in a jumble since Tunney relinquished his title."

Fairbanks Looks Ahead to Outdoor Season

"Once the Sharkey-Schmeling bout is out of the way, our outdoor bouts should draw big crowds," said Sheldon H. Fairbanks. "Just now everybody seems to be planning to go to New York to see Jack and Max toss punches. Interest in boxing is as great as ever, but one must give the public high class attractions. Some of the recent shows did not rate drawing big houses."

Mr. Boston told the gathering he felt Fairbanks hit the nail on the head.

"Give the public real fights and they will patronize them," said Mr. Boston.

GREATER BOSTON COLLEGE STARS IN TITLE TRACK MEET

Al Morang, Northeastern star jumper, who is favored to win high jump in Greater Boston intercollegiate meet at Stadium. Morang is expected to clear 6 ft. 6 in. today. He was N. E. A. A. U. indoor champion last year.

Babe Didn't Like Personal Touch

By AL DEMAREE

Former Pitcher New York Giants

A favorite method of goat-getting in baseball, which at times can be very funny, is to make sport of another's physical appearance. This is still practiced today, but I believe a verbal exchange between Hans Wagner and Rollie Zeider best illustrates it. Both Wagner and Zeider had very bowed legs.

"You couldn't catch a pig in an alley, with those legs, Honus," taunted Zeider.

"Rollie, your folks must have been so poor that you had to use a beer barrel for a hobby horse when you were a kid to get those legs of yours," was Honus' snappy comeback.

Even Babe Ruth is not exempt. A rival team was calling him all sorts of names, including "Big Ape."

Babe sought his tormentors out in their clubhouse after the game.

"I don't mind you calling me a big fat so-and-so, but cut out that 'ape stuff.' That's personal," explained the Bambino.

If a player has an unusually large nose he is generally greeted with "If I had your nose full of nickels I'd get out of baseball and start an automat or a telephone company."

Junior Soccer Cup Draw Announced

At a meeting held last night at Revere, the junior cup first round draw was released, as follows:

St. Augustine B vs. St. Anthony's at Lawrence. Maccabees vs. Irish-Americans at Dorchester. Victoria B vs. Red Lions at Roslindale. Quincy Carsons vs. Bunker Hill Celtics at Quincy.

HARVARD TEAM LEADS MEET

Harvard placed 36 varsity qualifiers, 18 freshmen and amassed 49½ points to lead going into the finals of the Greater Boston Intercollegiate track meet at the Stadium today.

M. I. T., with 13 varsity qualifiers, 12 freshmen, and 14 points was second. B. C., Northeastern, B. U., and Tufts finished after Tech in that order.

A full program of varsity events, and eight events for the college yearlings completes today's program.

As expected, the Crimson proved strong in all the varsity events. Captain Tom Mason, Art Watkins, Frank Nissen, and Jack Hawes all won their respective heats in the 100.

Vernon Munroe and Frank Shea of Harvard took firsts in the varsity 440, while Dave Cobb had no trouble winning the varsity 880.

Frank Marduller and Red Record of Harvard won in the 120 high hurdle trials, with George Wilczewski of Boston College second to Record.

Vonckx Wins in Hammer Throw Trials

Paul Vonckx of Harvard won the hammer throw trials with a heave of 157 feet. Upton of Harvard was first in the discus, Rowe of Harvard took first in the broad jump, and George Wilczewski of B. C. won the shotput over George Kuehn of Harvard. Otherwise, the field events were completely Crimson tinged.

M. I. T. proved unexpectedly strong to win second place, and is picked to finish in that position after today's racing.

Northeastern has one sure first place coming to them today in their high jumper, Al Morang, who is good for 6 feet 3.

Farrell expects that his Harvard tracksters will amass as many points as all the other colleges put together when today's tally is taken.

Monte Works Out With Jack Sharkey

Flanked by the greatest heavyweight stars in the game today, Al Friedman of Roslindale and Joe Monte of Brockton, rivals since their days in the amateur ring, will be at the top of their form, when they clash in their second professional meeting at Mechanics Building Monday night, May 12, under the direction of the Argonne A. A.

For the past few days, Monte has been working with Jack Sharkey, American heavyweight champion. The latter has started his training for his match with Max Schmeling and the training sessions are equally as important for him as they are for Monte.

Harvard Golfers Win

Harvard varsity golf team defeated Boston University, 6 to 0, in match play yesterday over the Albemarle course.

George Bennett, Harvard, is shown clearing the bar at 11 ft. 3¼ in. to win the final in the pole vault. Saunders of B. U. was second, while another Harvard man, Clark, tied him with a leap of 10 ft. 11⅞ in.

IRISH HORSES AT FRAMINGHAM

John R. Macomber, Bayard Tuckerman and Augustus Goodwin, noted horse fanciers, get together this morning at the Meadowbrook Hunt Club in Framingham for the schooling of horses.

A dozen jumpers, some of them newly arrived from Ireland, were scheduled to go through their paces today.

The three men mentioned are among the foremost horsemen of the country and have been instrumental in bringing many of the finest of the Irish hunters to the United States. The Irish horses now are considered the best hunters in the world.

To buy and transport these valuable horses involves a tremendous outlay of money and time. Horse enthusiasts owe a debt of gratitude to men of the stamp of Goodwin, Macomber and Tuckerman, who see to it that the very best in horse flesh is brought to the United States.

HORSE SHOW AT WINCHESTER

Winchester started its annual all-day horse show this morning at Harry Good's riding school, West Medford, with a record-breaking entry of more than 350 nominations, representing more than 60 exhibitors.

The proceeds of the show will be presented to the Winchester Hospital.

One of the feature events will be a competition for five-gaited saddle horses, with five of these highly trained equines entered.

Bradley and Tucker of Milford have two entries in this class, Cha Hanooga and Red Lion. They will be forced to their best by Florence F. McCreery's Nebo, E. H. Hewitt's Sandy and Albert Pickens' Bobby Jones.

Thirty classes make up the carefully arranged program, and every event is well filled, with nearly all the foremost Greater Boston stables well represented.

COLUMBIA CREW DERBY CHOICE

Derby, Ct., May 3 (AP)—The Blackwell Cup regatta, first of the season's three or four rowing classics, will be held on the Housatonic herelate today with Columbia defending championships in all four divisions of competition against the challenge of Yale and Pennsylvania.

Despite the general impression that Columbia's first string eight is not quite as powerful as the 1929 boatload, the Lions rule slight favorites in the varsity event of two miles.

For Yale and Penn the regatta will mark their first appearance of the season. Yale, under the able coaching of Ed Leader, has turned out another fine eight. Penn is conceded little chance of beating out either Columbia or Yale.

Tech Crews Race Princeton Today

Princeton, N. J., May 3 (AP)—Princeton's four crews make their season's rowing debut today on Lake Carnegie against the rowing representatives of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, who already have two races under their belts.

So far as the varsity event goes Princeton will be a slight favorite. The Engineers may have a better chance in the other three races. Coach Bill Haines of Tech has developed good junior varsity, freshman and lightweight eights, good enough perhaps to down the [illegible] representatives in those divisions.

Sarazen Complains Over "Cut Prices"

Chicago, May 3 (AP)—Gene Sarazen, former national open champion, believes golf [illegible] have become better in the [illegible] years for everyone except professionals.

"One of the principal money making mediums for the pro is his shop," said Sarazen, who is in Chicago playing in a vaudeville act with Johnny Farrell, another former open titleholder, "but you'd be surprised at the number of golfers who know somebody who is able to get them a price on equipment.

"Exhibitions don't pay as well as they did," Sarazen added. "The average person interested in the game would a lot rather play it than watch it.

"The heavy-money tournaments seem to be our biggest hope," said the star, who won the $25,000 Agua Caliente open.

TUFTS CLASHES WITH BOWDOIN

Tufts and Bowdoin, ancient rivals, will meet on the diamond at the Tufts Oval this afternoon in what looks to be one of the best games of the season.

The Tufts lineup will have Adams and Arlanson as a battery; [illegible] first base; Verge, second base; [illegible] shortstop; Ockert, third base; Lupien, left field; [illegible], center field; Tobey, right field.

Carnera Boxes Three in the Same Evening

Seattle, Wash., May 3 (AP)—Primo Carnera, giant Italian heavyweight, appeared in an exhibition bout against three heavyweights here last night. He boxed with Leo Hanson of Seattle and one round each with Sailor [illegible] of the U. S. S. New York and Bob Frazier of Seattle. He jarred all three with heavy punches.

Boston College and Boston University will collide at University Heights this afternoon in the first of two games to settle the diamond title of the Hub.

The Terriers, with Capt. Norman George on the bench and Roland Weafer, star pitcher, with a sore arm, are expected to come out on the losing end of the contest.

Boston University would have been a favorite to cop at the Heights today were it not for the injury jinx which stalked into their ranks early this week to deprive them of two of their best athletes.

Lefty Lojko is due to be Coach Joe Gilmore's selection in the B. U. box today.

Long John Dixon, the Norwood boy, who is captain-elect of B. C. football, will start for Boston College. Dixon has been pitching good ball this season, and is improving with each game.

Eagles Win From Syracuse, 8 to 3

Larry Gibson, who made his comeback with a vengeance, will be in right field with Captain Pete Herman in left. Gibson smashed out a double with two on against Syracuse and his hit broke up the ball game.

The Eagles played errorless ball while defeating the Orange, and showed a good deal of power at the plate. Were it not for Regan's inability to move fast in right field Syracuse would have scored but one run. The final tally was 8-3.

12,000 Fans See Night Ball Game

Des Moines, Ia., May 3 (AP)—Apparently only the turnstile approval of baseball fans now is needed to make night baseball under artificial lighting a success.

The Des Moines and Wichita (Kan.) clubs of the Western League last night demonstrated before nearly 12,000 spectators that merchantly the game may be played as well under powerful lights as in the sunlight. Des Moines defeated the league-leading Wichita case 1 to 6 by a wild first inning which netted 11 runs.

Schmeling's Arrival Tonight Will Start Fight Ballyhoo

EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

CONDITION OF GERMAN IS QUESTIONED

By DAVIS J. WALSH.

New York, May 3—The blast of the old calliope, silent these several years since Tunney turned gentleman and Dempsey turned smart, will ring out anew in the next 24 hours, summoning the yokel that is in all of us to come a-running and see the big show.

Max Schmeling, the [illegible] challenger for the heavyweight championship that the fatherland has sponsored, will arrive on American soil either late tonight or early tomorrow morning.

Many had [illegible] that these million-dollar [illegible] with Dempsey. But it seems they are to be born again with Schmeling, a personality so [illegible] that his name retained [illegible] interest even when he withdrew himself to a point 3000 miles from the fount of all notoriety, New York.

Schmeling Plans to Go in Training Immediately

Schmeling, always a man of purpose, will not tarry long here. He will remain over the week end to get his feet reacquainted with the macadam and then he will depart for his training camp at Endicott, N. Y., there to remain until the day of the contest.

Sharkey already has been undergoing some [illegible] up in Boston. This [illegible] of several points in which the American nominee has beaten the gun on Schmeling.

Schmeling hasn't been under the lights since the Paulino fight almost a year ago. He was ready to go through with Sharkey last September, but the New York commission put the flower on him because he would have no [illegible] of Phil Scott and so under something of a cloud he left the country.

German Clubs Plan Big Reception to Boxer

Schmeling's condition will be a ripe topic upon his arrival. A boatload of sport critics will go down the bay to meet him and will look him over.

The German's reception, even if it has to be staged under cover of darkness tonight, will be as elaborate as those usually tendered visiting potentates. It is planned at a time when the scheduled arrival of the New Yorker, on which the fighter is crossing the ocean, was set for this morning.

The combined German societies of New York have chartered a boat on which their representatives plan to meet Schmeling in the lower bay and chaperone him to the pier. They also have hired a queue of motor cars to act as a guard of honor for his journey through the streets to his hotel.

SOX LOSE TO INDIANS; 8-3

By JOE CASHMAN

The Red Sox are in a very charitable mood these days. They gave away their second game of the week when they lost the opener of the series with Cleveland, 8 to 3, before a Ladies' Day crowd of [illegible].

It was expected that the natives would cease playing Santa Claus for a spell after allowing Philadelphia to score four runs without a hit and beat them in the ninth inning on Monday last, but they were almost as generous to the Indians.

After acquiring a two run lead in the second inning as a result of Phil Todt's mighty home run following a pass to Regan, they handed the visitors two runs on a platter in the fifth.

And after taking the lead again in their half of the fifth, they gave away three more markers in the eighth and forced Horace Lisenbee to retire in favor of Charlie Ruffing, who was "off" once more and allowed three counters in the ninth.

The natives could do little with the stick against Wes Ferrell, ace of the enemy flingers, who started, or Ken Holloway, who replaced him in the eighth, but the chances are that the Indians, though they hit him freely, would never have scored on Lisenbee had he been accorded good support.

They were never in a position to tally until Goldman doubled with two out in the fifth, and the stanza appeared over when Ferrell hit a soft fly to right.

Webb didn't have to move to make the catch, but he ran back, then in, and after getting both hands firmly on the ball, dropped it, letting Goldman score and Ferrell reach second. Morgan followed with a single to send the tying run home.

Lisenbee went along smoothly thereafter until Averill came to bat for Ferrell at the start of the eighth and hit to Rhyne for what looked like an easy out. The shortstop fumbled the ball and Averill reached first.

Then Umpire Van Graflan added to the Sox troubles. With the count two strikes and no balls on Morgan, Lisenbee threw the most perfect strike of the afternoon.

The arbiter called it a ball and Morgan hit the next pitch for a single. Burnett sacrificed and Jamieson singled to send both runners home.

PIRATES TAKE BRAVES INTO CAMP, 3-2

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 3—The Pirates evened up the series with the Braves by winning the second game, 3 to 2.

Ray Kremer and Ben Cantwell were the opposing flingers in Friday's game. Cantwell went the distance but Kremer had to be yanked in the ninth in favor of Petty when the Tribe rallied.

The Pirates made a run in the first when Flagstead walked, stole second and came in on Paul Waner's single.

The Braves tied it up in the third when Cantwell reached on Bartell's error, went to second on a wild pitch and completed the circuit as Richbourg singled.

Pirates Put Over Winning Run in 4th

The Pirates took the lead again in their half when Grantham, P. Waner and Comorosky singled in succession and made their final and winning tally in the fourth when Bartell tripled and scored on Hemsley's double.

The Braves could nothing more against Kremer until the ninth, when they almost won the game. Robertson, Berger and Neun singled in a row, which allowed Robertson to score. Then Maguire was safe when Hemsley fumbled his sacrifice and the bases were loaded with nobody out. Petty was rushed to the mound to face Randy Moore, batting for Spohrer, and McKechnie switched to Rhiel. He hit to Petty, forcing Berger at the plate and being doubled up himself at first. Then Petty fanned Clark, batting for Cantwell, and the Pirates were saved.

ROLFE LEADS AT MARLBORO

Fred Rolfe of Marlboro was leading a field of more than 100 starters in the three-day open golf tournament at the Marlboro Country Club today. His card of 43-41 for 84 was a stroke better than those of Kellenberger of Winthrop and H. B. Baker, Jr., of Attleboro.

Justin Smith of Leominster, a 14-year-old caddy, had a wide lead on the net, scoring with 92-24-68. The concluding play this afternoon isn't likely to effect the leaders because of the high win.

Bates Adopts Three-Year Ruling

Lewiston, Me., May 3 (AP)—The three-year ruling for track and field athletics will go into effect immediately at Bates College, Oliver F. Cutts, director of athletics, and Track Coach Ray Thompson announced today.

This will eliminate all freshmen, including Arnold Adams, star quarter-miler, from the coming New England intercollegiate meet. The action was taken to make the Bates athletic policy conform with that of the Intercollegiate Amateur Athletic Association.

Amherst Subs Rally to Beat Aggie, 8-3

Amherst, May 3—A ninth-inning rally netting five runs enabled the Amherst freshmen to defeat the M. A. C. Cubs, 8-3, yesterday.

Rhode Island Beats Conn. Aggies, 85 to 50

Kingston, R. I., May 3—Rhode Island State College scored an easy victory over Connecticut State College on the track, 85 to 50.

Winthrop Wins From Rindge, 17-9

Winthrop high school baseball team pounded Rindge Tech of Cambridge for a 17 to 9 win at Russell Field, Cambridge, yesterday afternoon.

Hard hitting by Winthrop was the feature of the game, with Anzosca's circuit clout in the seventh with the bases loaded most noteworthy.

Bourn Wins From Hardman

Burnham, Somerset, Eng., May 3 (AP)—T. A. Bourn, Sunningdale, won the English native golf championship today, defeating C. E. Hardman, Manchester, 3 up and 2 to play, in a 36-hole final match.

Bourn, who since his visit to the United States last year has adopted the style of Bobby Jones for tee shots and the stance of Walter Hagen for putting, was one of 16 players provisionally named for the 1930 British Walker cup team but was not named in the final selection.

Hardman is 40 years old but a newcomer in the championship class.

Bourn was two down at the 16th in the morning but he squared the match at the 18th and had all the better of the concluding round.

L. G. H. Lee won the men's hard court singles title, defeating E. C. Peters in four sets, 6—3, 2—6, 6—4, 6—4.

Parker to Hurl for Exeter Today

Exeter, N. H., May 3—George Parker of Hopedale, last year's sub to "Bobby" Coombs, will work on the mound against the Harvard freshmen today.

Amherst Pitcher Hurls No-Hit Game

Princeton, N. J., May 3—Pitching a no-hit, no-run game in which only 29 batters faced him, Al Nichols, Amherst's pitching ace, kept the Princeton batters in check while his mates hit four times off Sid Waud, Tiger hurler, to win the game, 2 to 0.

Waud also turned in a very creditable performance, keeping the Amherst hits well scattered and striking out three men.

Nichols, however, had the Tiger batsmen completely under control, permitting only five to reach first base, two on walks, two on errors, and one on a fielder's choice.

He struck out seven men, and in all but two innings, retired his opponents consecutively.

Harvard meets Syracuse on the diamond at Soldiers Field today. Charlie Devens is slated to do the pitching for the slugging Cantabs, while Kelley will go to the mound for Syracuse.

Harvard's newly-found hitting streak makes them a favorite to defeat the visitors. Syracuse received an 8-3 setback from B. C. yesterday, which indicates they are not as strong as Coach Mitchell had expected them to be.

The continued absence of Sam Batchelder from the Crimson line-up gives Rex Fincke the catching assignment for Harvard today. Otherwise, Mitchell will start his regular first string nine.

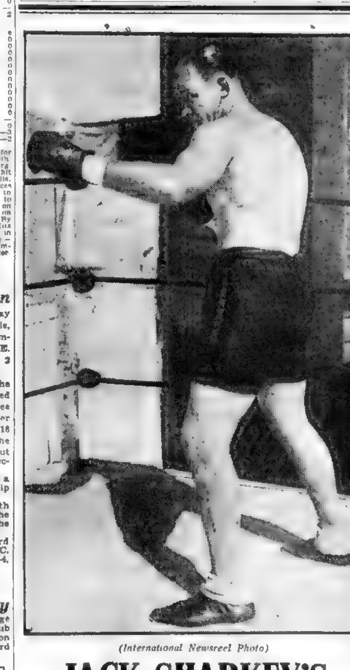

Cornell Drops to Fifth Place

New York, May 3—A three-run rally in the ninth enabled Columbia's baseball team to defeat Cornell, 8 to 7, in an Eastern Intercollegiate League game here yesterday.

The defeat dropped Cornell into fifth place in the standings with one win in three starts. Columbia holds fourth place with two wins and three losses.

Suburban League Games Top School Baseball Card

MALDEN AND B. C. H. NINES CLASH TODAY

Three important Suburban League ball games top the school diamond card today.

The Cantab rivals, Cambridge Latin and Rindge Tech, play at Russell Field this afternoon. Newton high goes to Brookline, and Somerville plays at Everett.

The latter team was handicapped last week by the absence of Coach Denny Gilden, but the mentor will have charge of the Everett nine today.

Charley Fitzgerald takes his Boston Latin nine to Brockton and Huh team faces one of the hardest games it has played this year. That Shoe City team is strong and has a good record.

A trio of Mystic Valley League games are slated, with Woburn playing at Watertown, Wakefield at Winchester and Arlington at Melrose.

B. C. H.-Malden Game Best on Program

One of the best games of today is the Boston College high at Malden tray. The Eagles probably will start Fallon on the mound against the Blue and Gold nine.

Fallon is one of the best of the season's school pitchers, but he must be at his top form to keep the Malden batters in check.

George Reaman is likely to fling for Malden and he can give the visitors a lot of trouble.

Other school games
BASEBALL
Bridging at St. John's Prep.
Concord at Needham.
St. George's at Milton Academy.
Haverhill at Medford.
Wentworth at Boston.
Lynn English at Revere.
Roxbury Latin at Hummer Academy.

New Bedford at Mansfield.

Tilden Defeats German Star

Milan, May 3 (AP)—Big Bill Tilden, the American veteran, defeated Daniel Prenn, German champion, 6—2, 6—2, 6—4, and Baron H. L. deMorpurgo of Italy won from Jacques Brugnon of France, 6—7, 6—1, 6—4, today in the semi-finals of the Italian tennis championships. Tilden and deMorpurgo meet tomorrow in the finals.

Jester Signs

Nelson Potter, the young catcher recently in the Washington Senators, has signed with Hagerstown of the Blue Ridge League.

Diamond Pick-Ups

For seven innings of the first game with the Indians, it looked as though Tom Oliver's run of games in which he has hit safely, would come to an end. He had been up three times without being able to produce a safety. With two down in the eighth however, he hit a Texas leaguer which dropped for a double and ran his game total up to 11.

The advent of a new club at the Fens hasn't caused any umpire changes. Connolly, Van Grafien and Stergwan are still on the job.

There was no hard luck connected with the three runs Cleveland made off Charlie Ruffing in the ninth. Neither was there any jinx trailing "Big C" when the A's knocked him off the mound earlier in the week. He looked great in the South, but he hasn't shown a thing since the race started except in that 13-inning game at Washington, which he lost, 4 to 3.

Lisenbee would probably do better if he were kept on the bench during the opening games of every series. He is a very smart pitcher who relies on his brains more than anything else to win, and he would be likely to see enough to enable him to beat any team by looking it over once from the sidelines. He is handicapped when he has to start an engagement.

The Cleveland club has a lot of respect for the White Sox. The Indian players say that the Pale Hose look strong in every department of the game, are playing great ball for Donie Bush and should cause a lot of trouble in the American League race this year.

Johnny Goldman, Cleveland rookie, looks like one of the best fielding shortstops who has broken into the big leagues in several years.

He accepted seven chances without an error in the first game and made the most difficult of them look easy. He is not rated as a strong hitter but he came through with one lusty double.

Who Is Wrestling Champ? Gus and Shikat Claim Crown Pair Should Fight It Out

By DAMON RUNYON

New York, May 3—If somebody should suddenly haul off and ask me the name of the present heavyweight wrestling champion of all the world, I would have to stammer around quite some, and put plenty of er-er-er-er, and several wells into my reply. And I doubt if said reply would be greatly illuminating.

As a matter of fact, I do not know who is the heavyweight wrestling champion of all the world. I have heard that the culprit is Gus Sonnenberg, the Dartmouth Viking man who is built like a draft, pickering thud, and who disposes of his opponents by butting them like a William goat. I have also heard that the guilty man is one Richard Shikat, a Prussian.

Damon Runyon

You can take these contradictory reports for what they are worth. I have no personal knowledge on the subject. Maybe Sonnenberg is one-half champion and Shikat one-half title holder.

I have been unable to locate my only wrestling operative, X-33, otherwise Mr. Gene Fowler, lately, as he is busy writing a number of new sequels to "Trumpet in the Dust," and when Mr. Fowler fails me, I am completely lost on wrestling.

Sonnenberg and Shikat Might Settle Question

MR. FOWLER IS the only man of my acquaintance who can get really heated up over a wrestling contest. Of course there must be others. I saw the good M. Jacques Armand Curieyeues, the wrestling entrepreneur, prowling around the offices of the New York Boxing Commission the other day looking very prosperous.

Had the thought occurred to me I would have asked M. Jacques about the heavyweight wrestling champion, but he would probably have said Shikat.

Then the next man I asked would have said Sonnenberg, and my confusion would have been increased. I hear that M. Jacques would like to have the matter settled by having Sonnenberg wrestle Shikat with himself as the promoter to insure a square deal to the customers, and I am in favor of it. I mean I am in favor of a square deal to the customers.

As I understand the situation and the numerous wrestling pressagents will undoubtedly correct me if I am wrong, Sonnenberg is recognized in some places as champion and Shikat is recognized in other places.

For example, the great state of Pennsylvania has placed the official seal on Shikat, and he is champion of the Keystone country from Emporium to Darby Creek.

I believe that the vast empire state of New York also recognizes Shikat's claim to the championship, but in Massachusetts if you spoke of the Prussian as champ, the citizens might run you bowlegged, for in those parlous parts they think the hard headed Sonnenberg is the title holder, in spades.

Mondt Offered Gus $50,000 to Meet Shikat

SHIKAT HAS frequently challenged Sonnenberg, if I am to believe the Prussian's pals. On one occasion, it is said, "Toots" Mondt, who manages Shikat, offered to give Sonnenberg $50,000 cash money to wrestle, but Gus wouldn't accept.

This "Toots" Mondt used to be a wrestler himself, and the fact that he could even think of that amount of money, whether he had it or not, shows that wrestling is a remunerative dodge.

Shikat bases his title claim mainly on his victory in a wrestling tournament conducted in Philadelphia last year for the purpose of developing a champion. The promoters holding that Sonnenberg had no claim to the title.

Gus didn't compete in that tournament, of course. Jim Londos, the Greek, and Shikat met in the tourney finals and Shikat won.

Oddly enough, Shikat's present manager, "Toots" Mondt, was heaved in 42 minutes by Shikat in a wrestling bout, which is said to have decided "Toots" to manage Shikat.

"Toots" allowed that he never before encountered a man as good as Shikat, and "Toots" was no mud turtle at that wrestling business.

He beat Joe Stecher and Stanley Lewis out on the coast just before the Philadelphia tournament, breaking Lewis' arm. It is said, in a private bout, and causing him to forfeit $5000 he had posted for a title bout.

Shikat Is as Colorful as Max Schmeling

SHIKAT IS as picturesque and colorful in his own line as is his fellow-citizen, Max Schmeling, in the manly art. The wrestler was born at Koenigsburg, in East Prussia, where his father was a landscape gardener.

When the war came on, young Shikat joined the army and was on the Kron Prinz one of the battleships bottled up at Jutland.

He never wrestled before he became a sailor, but presently he was champion of the German fleet. After the war he became a professional wrestler under the direction of a German sportsman by the name of Albert.

Six years ago this chap brought Shikat to this country with Hans Steinke and a wrestler named Doestal. Albert went broke and sold Shikat's contract to Rudy Miller, who took Shikat to Chicago and then to the West Coast.

At this time Shikat wasn't an hot as a grappler because he knew little of the American catch-as-catch-can style, but on the coast he beat Ed Santel, a good man at the all around grips game, and Santel later tutored Shikat.

Then the German won 20 matches on the coast where wrestling goes big. He beat Wladek Zbyszko, Dan Koloff, and a number of others and he repeatedly challenged Strangler Lewis, then the champion.

Finally, Shikat went home and got married, returning in time to take part in the Philadelphia tournament. "Toots" Mondt, not only backed this tournament, but took part in it.

The promoter was Ray Fabian, who later made the arrangements for Mondt and handle Shikat whose contract with Miller had run out.

Mondt Figures to Make a Million

MONDT HAS TURNED OUT to be a very clever manager. You know one of these big wrestlers, properly handled, can make more than a top-notch fighter. Mondt thinks he will gross a million with Shikat before he gets through.

The wrestler's name is properly spelled Schikat. He is not yet 30, is 6 feet 2 inches tall and weighs 224 pounds. He is accounted a corking showman, and showmanship is 50 per cent of wrestling so I am informed.

Shikat is returning to Europe for a tour under the auspices of Dick Lean, who is the M. Jacques Armand Curieyeus of Europe. By the way, M. Jacques says a match between Shikat and Sonnenberg in almost any man's town would draw upwards of $250,000.

And that ain't hay!

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON
"Golf's Greatest Teacher"

While the driving swing, like any other golfing swing, is an action as a whole, it does, for purposes of study and understanding, devide into parts or sections. While I urge the student to think of the action as a whole, and constantly to use himself making good swings, never bad ones, it is nevertheless true that a man cannot wish himself perfect swings.

But there is the vast difference. If he thinks good swings and sees himself making good swings, he most assuredly will grasp the various parts and detail more understandingly and also he will see correct details work into his own play much more easily. One rule that often works well is that if you see yourself making good swings, then learn how to start a swing correctly, often the rest of the action takes care of itself. A very good foundation beginning of your driving this season therefore might be to think of yourself, each time, as making a perfect swing, then take care to start your swing slowly and easily. I predict progress for you if you just do that.

How Long are You Likely to Live?

"On or about such and such a day you will die—unless you do something to change the conditions that are killing you."

Medical scientists now believe that inside each human body is written more or less accurately the date of that body's death. Accidents may cut short a life prematurely—careful living may succeed in lengthening life beyond the predicated span—but aside from that doctors may make sane and scientific deductions from the signs of death or breakdown which the body discloses.

These masters of "prophetic medicine" can delve into the secret of the body's workings, discover where energy is being wasted or machinery is breaking down—and accurately forecast how long the patient will live—if habits and conditions of life remain unchanged. Read the details of this astonishing discovery—next Sunday in The American Weekly.

Stolen Russian Art Treasures Bought for Almost Nothing

Valuable old paintings, statues and priceless historic relics are being smuggled out of Russia and sold to boarding-house keepers, cabaret owners and even taxicab owners for a fraction of their real worth. Ignorance of values, lack of appreciation of art on the part of those now in official authority have produced an extraordinary situation. And it makes interesting reading—this story of the topsy-turvy, Alice-in-Wonderland upset of things in Soviet Russia—next Sunday in The American Weekly.

Found—Bones of Boadicea—Old Britain's Fighting Queen

In a sandstone coffin, just outside of London, has been unearthed the mighty skeleton of a woman six feet seven inches tall. They are believed to be the bones of heroic Boadicea, the blonde warrior queen who killed 80,000 Romans and almost freed England from the clutch of Emperor Nero. Back of this important archaeological discovery is the amazing story of the barbaric queen, who, with blazing eyes and streaming yellow hair drove her chariot along the battle line and wreaked vengeance on the Roman hordes. Especially interesting to lovers of history. Next Sunday in The American Weekly.

WHEN GIRLS GET HOME-SICKNESS AT HOME

Wisdom of Adopting Life in Flat Discussed

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
An Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

FROM TIME to time girls write me letters about the wisdom of leaving homes which they begin to find intolerable. A flat, the expenses of which are to be shared by one or two more girls, looms as a sort of promised land.

Beatrice Fairfax

Very often the old home which seems so deadly, so destructive of happiness or opportunity is a motherless one. The gentle soul who "understood" and acted as a buffer state between all the contending elements has passed and a nolder sister, an aunt or an-in-law presides over the establishment that represents anything but neutral territory.

Before me is a letter written by a girl who says her mother is dead and two older sisters make life a "hell on earth" [illegible] up the receiver when [illegible] Cinderella's friends [illegible] telephone [illegible] to their father, and they [illegible] insult her and her friends without cause.

Naturally, Cinderella wants to go away from a place [illegible] made so dismal [illegible] she wants to go and live with a girl friend who has that [illegible] flat. But Cinderella is [illegible] to be married and expects to have a home of her own within [illegible] month. And [illegible] very frankly for me [illegible] going to tell her to try to put up with the disagreeable [illegible] till that happy day when [illegible] proudly out on the arm of her husband.

Marriage is a pretty serious business—though you mightn't think so from the way people hop in and out of the divorce court. It looks better, in fact, it is better form for a girl to be married from her parents' home, if either parent is living, than from a girl friend's flat.

In this important venture she steps off on the right foot when she marries from her own home and there can't be any whispering as to why Mary Smith or Emily Jones was married from a girl friend's apartment when she had a perfectly good home of her own. She doesn't wish to herald it to a gossipy world that her sisters made it too hot for her. There are always inquiring friends to ask the reason WHY?

So, among the good wishes I send to Cinderella is that of endurance, particularly as she will not have to endure long.

Again, girls, with both parents living, write to say that they cannot stand their homes. They want to go away because they are homesick at home. Their parents do nothing to make life pleasant; they aren't modern; they don't approve of latchkeys; they're grouchy and discourteous when young friends appear.

Making due allowance for the state of mind of young people who [illegible] themselves thwarted, parents are implored to remember the time when they themselves were young. To remember that youth is the time of home-making, that if they [illegible] the door of opportunity, their children will hold them responsible when it's too late to remedy such mistakes.

Girls and boys would do well to keep in mind the fact that some day they too will not be modern, that [illegible] to those whom [illegible] in their [illegible] hard to bear when the third generation appears.

Time [illegible] no respecter of persons as someone has said. We, too are the ancients.

Just One Girl

DRAWN BY Nell Brinkley

"But how many persons I won in just that one!"

An astonished husband speaking. How many sides to the pretty creature that he thought had just one face. One soul. One LOOK. One line. One wish—to be an angel to him.

"There's just one girl in the world for me," sang he before going up the old gray stone church steps.

And now each day he wonders which of the many he mated with will sit at dinner with him TONIGHT. Will it be cool snow-queen, hurt over something that poor John is in a stage of total anesthesia to, so far as he knows? Or just naturally cool because sometimes she feels chilly toward the whole world? And that's one personality.

Will it be mou'nful? A bedewed, clinging vine, a tearful baby who needs a fellow, and needing him so makes his heart turn a double cartwheel with sympathy?

Will it be kitt'nish that which there is no more delicious-er time at the dinner table when a pretty wife decides to flirt with her own husband in exactly the manner she might with a handsome stranger? If she was the kind to do that, of course.

Will it be meek an' mil'? Adaptable. Amiable as fresh cream. Tickled to do anything he likes to do? A charming little person this!

"Just one girl in the world for me! Who—how many in one?"

Still and all, life would drag with a girl with only one face after this little feminine Lon Chaney I've gotten used to!"

—NELL BRINKLEY.

Overdoing Devotion

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

THERE IS probably no fear which is so [illegible] and so devastating [illegible] mother and child as [illegible] where parents have lost one or more children and then finally have another. This child is without many exceptions, the recipient of too much and too studied attention and care. There is always present the fear that he too may be taken away, and all [illegible] and regulations and precepts are cast to the winds in an effort to just have him alive and be a part of the family.

Constance Cameron

A mother said to me a while ago, "I don't care if I do spoil Kenneth. We lost two boys, and I'm going to keep him if I have to be with him every moment of his life."

Kenneth will take his luncheon with no one but mother. No one can dress him or play with him to his satisfaction except his mother. He shies away from other children, and his mother encourages it. They play roughly at times, and Kenneth might fall and break a leg, or get hit on the head with a ball or fall into one of the other thousand and one accidents which the mother has constantly in mind.

It is a pretty sentiment, this slave-like devotion to a child, but Kenneth is going to kindergarten in the fall. That is inevitable, and Kenneth's readjustments will be painful to himself and his teacher and his classmates.

Every child, when he enters school, nursery school or kindergarten, unconsciously turns to the teacher as a substitute for his mother. And when the mother has been all things to a child, letting him absorb her very life, it surely makes the teacher's job a very difficult one.

A child such as Kenneth doesn't know the meaning of the word "competition," and competition is the big factor in life.

Mrs. Beeckman Advises

By MRS. BEECKMAN

Seating Two Girl Guests of Honor

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. I am going to have a luncheon for 12 guests including two guests of honor, engaged girls. How shall I seat these two guests of honor without offending either? My table is oval.

2. Is it proper to have candles on a luncheon table [illegible] centerpiece with [illegible] cups? [illegible]

Seat the [illegible] of honor next to you, one on [illegible] the left. If one is perhaps a bit older than the other, seat the older one on your right. Or if you want to give the more honored seat on your right to the one whom you have known longer, this will be correct. As a matter of fact, since you are honoring both, neither one will, I am sure, see any distinction between them as to seating arrangement.

2. It is better form not to have candles on a luncheon table. However, sometimes, when there is otherwise not enough light, we do use candles. But they should not be used for the luncheon table if we can avoid it.

Instead of a crepe paper centerpiece it is better taste to use a glass or silver pottery bowl to hold the [illegible] centerpiece. And use silver or glass nut cups.

Picking Up Gloves

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. This is not exactly etiquette, but do you think a rather dark blue and a bright red would clash? (I caused a lot of commotion by sewing a set of red cuffs and collar on a sort of royal blue dress).

2. Is it proper, or permissible, when a girl drops a pair of gloves or something, unseen by her escort, to tell him about it, or just pick them up herself?

R. E. F.

I could see—in my mind's eye—that this might be a very questionable combination of colors! Of course it is difficult for one who has not seen the exact shades to pass judgment on the combination—but it does sound a bit more like a striking combination in a banner than one that we would choose for a dress. And if the combination caused a "lot of comment," it probably needs revision. Nowadays we have become so ensemble-conscious that we have to be more careful than in older days when not so much attention was paid to color-combinations.

2. I don't see much point in a girl's making such a fuss about picking up something that she has dropped. It seems the natural thing to do to pick up what we have dropped, and not call for assistance in such an unimportant detail.

Margaret D., West Somerville. It is much to acknowledge the bow even if you are uncertain of knowing the person.

Kathleen, Manchester-by-the-Sea—Urging food upon a guest at the table when a certain dish has been declined is not good manners.

Kenneth R., Portsmouth, N. H.—In eating steamed clams it is right to lift them in the fingers by the heads.

Good to Eat

If you watch the little things carefully you'll find surprisingly enough that the big things take care of themselves. Nowhere is this more true than in the art of home-making.

Martha Lee

Dinner should be the gayest of the three meals. A few dishes served in a simple and leisurely manner will make it seem like a feast. Accessories mean much. Quick dinner rolls or tea biscuit will round out a plain meal, croutons transform soup, dumplings turn a brown stew into a company dish. The right salad will brighten any dinner, and a delicious dessert insures a happy ending.

Few appetites can resist the allure of home made baking powder biscuit. A mound of these delicately browned morsels, honey or home made jam and tea or milk will often tempt where a more intricate meal would fail to cajole the jaded palate.

Buttermilk biscuits are easy to make and truly delicious.

BUTTERMILK BISCUIT

INGREDIENTS

Two cups flour, 1 tsp. salt, [illegible] tbsp. shortening, [illegible] tsp. soda, [illegible] cup thick sour [illegible] or buttermilk.

METHOD

Sift together salt, soda and flour. Work in shortening, add milk gradually, mixing to a stiff dough. It may not be necessary to use all the milk. Place on a floured board. Knead until smooth. Roll to one half inch in thickness. Cut with a small round cutter and bake in a hot oven, 450 F. 12 to 15 minutes.

Faithfully yours,

Martha Lee

NEW FASHION has suffered the criticism that it is all planned for the slim young thing. Yet the last Paris Openings proved that the new mode is certainly not designed exclusively for the young of the land, either that fashionable foreign land or our own.

• • •

THERE ARE designers, of course, who cater exclusively to the 20-year-old. But others like Vionnet, Louiseboulanger and Maggy Rouff find it profitable and evidently enjoyable, as well, to plan for the smart "woman."

• • •

IT IS SMART to be feminine this season. But there is a way to smartness other than through girlish frills and furbelows that look kittenish except when youth wears them. There is a certain dignified femininity to be striven for if your figure is mature and which is quite as charming as the other form of femininity.

• • •

THIS DIGNIFIED femininity is beautifully exemplified in Vionnet's designs. Vionnet's lines are always lovely, and attractive silhouettes for the well proportioned woman are her specialty.

• • •

THE FROCK pictured is graceful and slenderizing, fashioned of silk crepe, with Beauvais embroidery, in lovely pastel tones. A short cape and surplice line are youthful style features. A brimmed black baku hat is worn; black and white accessories of jewelry, gloves and buckled pumps, with a smart bag of black patent leather and white kid. A costume one could feel comfortable in on the street when the weather called for no coat, and ideal for a not too formal social afternoon.

• • •

A variety of accessories might be chosen by the really smart older woman for wearing with such a frock as this, displaying the same qualities of dignity and chic as those shown.

• • •

THEY MIGHT include a pin-seal bag with handsome basket handle of the excellent crystal. A crystal clip pin, possibly to be worn at the point of the V on the frock. And kid suede slip-on gloves in white. A gardenia might replace the clip pin since an emphasized black and white effect is both flattering and style right.

• • •

A POINTED comment on the importance of ensembling is a new necklace that fits the V neckline of the frock. It is black and white Harlequin fashion. The black is onyx and forms one side of the piece. The other side is of matt crystal. Other combinations almost equally as effective are pink with black, orange, yellow and coral. In black and white it is another smart example of the [illegible]

Miss Fairfax Says—

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Son of House Likes Her

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a maid living with a very good family, and they are very nice and considerate to me. They have a son and daughter, and I have grown to be very fond of the boy. I'd like to have him for my friend. He told his sister that he likes me. I'd appreciate your advice.

WAITING.

I am afraid, my dear child, that you will not like what I'm going to say, but I must tell you that a great many girls who have let themselves drift into love affairs with the gentlemen of families with whom they are living have come to grief. You are perhaps thinking of two very conspicuous exceptions where young millionaires married maids in their mother's households. But for the few who make these brilliant marriages there are the nine and 90 who break their hearts and suffer in silence.

A Dangerous Love Affair

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am [illegible] and fast falling in love with a man who [illegible] and who loves me. He [illegible] already married but his marriage is unhappy. Isn't it all right for me to call myself engaged and let him get a divorce, so that we can be married?

BRUNETTE.

You are on very dangerous territory, my dear Brunette. Unless you check it immediately, this affair of yours with an irresponsible married man is likely to be a calamity for you, for the wife, perhaps even for the inconstant husband himself. It is quite possible that this man is by no means as unhappily married as he implies that he is while making love to you. Don't be a home-breaker yourself and don't let susceptible married men occupy their spare time philandering with you.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Bored ladies affect the countenance of the graven image. What for and why? The interesting face is one that shows fleeting expressions, changes, [illegible] and shadows. Do You Know That—

The City of London still contains 32 churches designed by Sir Christopher Wren, the architect of St. Paul's Cathedral.

There are 41,000 acres less of agricultural land in England and Wales than there were 12 months ago.

Public-houses in London close at 10 p. m. except in Westminster and Holborn, these districts have an extra hour as they are regarded as the pleasure centers.

The volcano of Stromboli, a small island in the Mediterranean, holds the record for activity. It has been in almost constant eruption for at least 21 centuries.

Scientists have worked out tables by which the height of an historical person can be estimated by measuring one or two bones.

If your hair is red you have about 90,000 hairs on your head; if black, 103,000; if brown, 109,000. For one person with red hair there are nearly 40 with brown.

LOWER MONEY PLAN TO AID BUSINESS

By FRANK H. MELOON

Federal Reserve board is doing everything possible to keep money available at low rates with the hope these rates will aid in the business recovery. Even by doing this it comes in for censure. As high an authority as Dr. Benjamin M. Anderson, former Harvard instructor, now economist of the Chase National Bank, opposes the idea of "coddling business" with low money rates.

Benj. M. Anderson, Jr.

"The merchant and manufacturer will consider interest as one element in cost, and when costs are low they will buy more and produce more, other things equal, than they will when costs are high, in a given state of the market. But money rates are only one element in costs, and in almost all cases a very minor element in costs. Costs include, for the merchant, the wholesale prices of the goods that he must buy, his rentals, wages and salaries, advertising, taxes and a variety of other elements," says Dr. Anderson.

* * *

"He is primarily interested in profits, and profits are the difference between his costs and his receipts. To the manufacturer, costs consist of the prices of his raw materials, wages, taxes and rentals, interest on fixed investment (a fall in the rediscount rate does not affect the contract interest rate on 30-year bonds!) and a multitude of other special elements. His activity is governed by the prospect of profits, namely, the difference between his receipts from the sale of his product and the total of his outlay. The interest rate on money borrowed from the banks is usually a relatively small factor in this.

"The quicker readjustments take place in prices, costs, wages, rentals, and, above all, in the rectification of industrial unbalance, the better off the business situation is and the quicker the revival comes.

Claude A. Jagger, Wall St. writer, declares that, if it was the purpose of the Federal Reserve to lower its rate at a time when it would not inspire a new orgy of speculation, it appears to have chosen the right time.

The next "Coffee Party" of Brown's Letters, Inc., will be held at the offices, 169 Devonshire st., on Tuesday, May 6, 12.30 to 1.30. Mr. Cooper, president of Frank Irving Cooper Corporation, will be the speaker. His subject will be "The Business Part of an Architect's Office." Architects, contractors and others connected with the building industry are invited to attend. The Brown's Letters, Inc., sessions were designed to promote construction activities in line with the Hoover program for bringing about general business betterment.

One New York and Boston Stock Exchange house explains the recessions in the rail group as due to the lack of a short interest.

Probable length of time over which the 3 per cent call money rate in Wall Street will prevail, offers a fertile field for financial conjecture. On the lone previous occasion when call money ruled at 3 per cent, it lasted for a little over a half year. This was from August 8, 1924, to February 27, 1925. It was accompanied by "times" that were by no means to be called "bad."

If the "noise survey" in New York is to be linked up with safety methods, it will not pay too much attention to the test of two score different types of automobile horns held in the Bell Telephone Co's. laboratories. These tests appear to have been mainly stressed regarding irritation. For our part we would prefer being irritated to being hit by an automobile.

Here is a remarkable Boston record. In summarizing the response to its recent stock offering, President Matt B. Jones' New England Telephone & Telegraph Co. found that only 175 shares were not taken up, out of a total of 221,703 shares offered for subscription—about 8-100ths of 1 per cent. Under the single payment plan 6373 subscriptions, totaling 211,504 shares, were received, and under the instalment plan 598 subscriptions, representing 10,024 shares.

Another proof that advertising pays. All shipment records of Frigidaire Corp. were broken April 29 when 214 carloads of electric refrigerators left the factories consigned to 46 states and five foreign countries. The previous best day's record was on May 31, 1929, when [illegible] carloads were shipped. Two weeks ago the Frigidaire Corp. began a million-dollar newspaper advertising campaign to run 10 weeks. It was predicated upon a record-breaking first quarter and a 100 per cent increase in show room visitors.

STOCKS DRIVEN TO NEW LOWS IN WALL ST.

New York, May 3—New lows were sustained on the New York Stock Exchange today, when fresh selling waves swept over the market.

An initial decline was followed by a rally, then by renewed selling around the close. The tape ran over an hour behind the market.

New 130 lows were set by about 100 issues, but the general price level remained above that at the start of this year.

Losses of around $14 a share soon appeared for United Aircraft and Westinghouse Electric. J. I. Case Threshing lost about $15.

Sales were reported close to the 5,000,000 share mark, the largest for any Saturday session in history.

The selling was a continuation of the movement which developed yesterday, and was scarcely attributable to anything in the day's business news, although the week-end reviews were not of a character to cause much encouragement.

Retail trade was said to have been stimulated a little by warmer weather, but wholesale activity remained quiet, and steel operations showed some slackening. Furthermore, renewed although moderate weakness of commodity prices were reported.

The lateness of the ticket caused extreme nervousness in speculative circles, and swelled the volume of selling in the late trading.

Trading in the first hour was in enormous volume, blocks of 5000 to 30,000 shares changing hands. The blocks, it was stated in brokerage circles, represented weakly or nervously held stock, shaken loose by the severe break late yesterday.

Weakened marginal holdings, and the holdings of a few large pools whose managers had become discouraged, or who were unable to get further banking accommodations, were dumped on the market.

Curb stocks went tumbling along with the stocks on the "big board." Cities Service, a spectacular feature of the curb in the crash last fall, dropped about $8 a share to around $30.

During the first hour, brokers hoped for a substantial rally before the close. It was stated that a few large pools had been forced to liquidate, and that when this liquidation was completed, bear operators would probably hurry to cover their short commitments and cause a substantial rebound.

The large volume of freightened liquidation from all sources which poured into the market in the last hour, however, reassured the bears, and permitted those who desired to cover to do so without bidding.

PENN. CO. HAS PROFITS UP

New York, May 3 (AP)—The Pennsylvania Co., holding company for the Pennsylvania Railroad, reported net income for the year ended December 31, of $9,023,174, equal to $3.62 a share, compared with $7,007,837, or $2.81 a share, in 1928.

Follansbee Brothers of Pittsburgh, manufacturers of forged steel products, reported net loss of $99,072 for the first quarter, compared with a net profit of $402,572, equal to $1.98 per common share, in the like period last year.

Certainteed Products Corporation and subsidiaries showed a net loss of $550,564 for the first quarter, against a net loss of $533,575 for the first quarter in 1929.

American Commercial Alcohol reports net earnings of $179,349, equal to 45 cents a share, for the first quarter, compared with $390,449, or 74 cents a share, for the first quarter last year.

Macomber Head of Charlestown Gas

In connection with the acquisition of Charlestown Gas & Electric Co. by Eastern Gas & Fuel Associates, Alexander Macomber, formerly treasurer, has been elected president, and an entire new board of directors has been elected to supersede the former board. The new board includes the following: H. Lee, W. F. Rust, Walter C. Beckford, Eugene H. Bird, Dana D. Barnum and Edward M. Farnsworth, Jr. Samuel K. Phillips has been elected treasurer and Richard F. Murphy was made assistant treasurer and clerk.

Charlestown Gas & Electric will continue to operate as a separate corporate entity. There will be no change in its general policy.

Big New Building Projects Figured

The following is a list of some of the larger projects now being figured which have not been previously mentioned, according to Brown's Letters, Inc., construction reports, who have plans and specifications on file in their office:

Tavern, Montpelier, Vt.—Architect, W. Macy Stanton, Philadelphia.

Employees' Building, Belchertown. Private plans.

Police station, Reading—Architects, Adden, Parker, Clinch & Crimp, Boston.

BOSTON STOCK PRICES ARE RUN LOWER

Prices were generally lower on the Boston Stock Exchange in week-end trading. Losses in most issues averaged between one and two points. Boston Edison sagged 4 points at 260.

Mohawk, after setting a new low, closed the day for a fractional gain. Quincy Mining sagged over a point.

Other issues off a point or more included Eastern Steamship, Greif Bros. "A," General Capital, Maine Central, Pacific Mills, Venezuelan-Mexican and New River pfd.

New England Telephone was down 2. New Haven appreciated 2. Tricontinental Oil eased over 2.

Railway Light & Securities was off 3, along with United Founders. United Shoe was down 1⅝ at 61⅞.

U. S. Electric Power set a new low, off 1⅜ at 15½. Waldorf eased over 2.

Homer Skeels of Montpelier, general counsel of St. Johnsbury & Lake Champlain R. R., was elected its vice-president and general manager, succeeding President Edward S. French of the Boston & Maine Railroad. Mr. Skeels had previously succeeded Mr. French as president of the Montpelier & Wells River Railroad and the Barre & Chelsea Railroad.

Wheat Values Drop to a Low Record

Chicago, May 3 (AP)—Affected by stock market depression, wheat values suffered an early drop today to a new low-price record for the season. May wheat quotations fell to within a small fraction of $1 per bushel, but afterward rallied sharply. Opening ⅜c off, wheat tumbled a little further and then rose unsettled, starting ⅜-1c down and subsequently showing gains. Oats held firm, provisions declined.

Deere Co. Reports Excellent Business

Chicago, May 3—Deere & Co. has started construction of six new buildings to take care of increased production necessitated by the excellent business the company is experiencing. Two of the buildings, to cost about $116,000, will be added to the Moline plant for use as foundry buildings. The remaining four buildings, to cost $300,000, will be built at the Waterloo plant for production of tractor wheels.

Reichsbank Due to Cut Money Rate

Berlin, May 3 (AP)—The reduction of the discount rate of the Reichsbank to 4½ per cent within a few days was regarded today as probable in reliably informed financial circles. The rate is now 5 per cent. Announcement, it was said, should be forthcoming not later than next Wednesday.

Advice Is Free

Before you buy or sell stocks or bonds, you ought to secure unbiased expert advice. Send your investment inquiries with stamp to Frank H. Meloon, Financial Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston. All replies are made by mail direct.

A SPECULATION

M. K., Brighton—I shall appreciate information on Mohawk Carpet Mills and your opinion of a purchase of the stock.

Ans.—Mohawk Carpet Mills, incorporated 1920, is a consolidation of two concerns established many years ago. Dividends in varying amounts have been paid from 1923; current $3 annual rate from December, 1929. For year ended December 31, 1929, earnings were $3.02 a share, contrasted with $3.11 in 1928 and $4.37 in 1927. Unofficial estimates are that unless business increases in the next two months, earnings for first six months of 1930 will show a decided recession from those of corresponding 1929 period. At recent levels a yield of 12 per cent indicates a broad degree of risk. The stock is a speculation.

MUST DECIDE

T. S., Boston—I am a speculator, in moderate amounts. I bought 50 shares Congoleum-Nairn at 19. Shall I take a small loss or hold?

Ans.—You must make the decision. We never advise speculators. Dividends suspended on Congoleum-Nairn common in 1921 have not been resumed. The stock is a mere speculation. The company is the country's largest manufacturer of felt-base floor covering. For year ended December 31, 1929, earnings were $1.28 a share, compared with 83 cents in 1928.

GIVE FACTS

J. L. Smith, Lynn—I am a reader of your paper and should like to have your opinion of a purchase of Borg-Warner.

Ans.—Borg-Warner is an important factor in the production of automobile parts and accessories and through subsidiaries manufactures electrical refrigerators and agricultural equipment. Adjusted to reflect stock dividends paid during 1929, earnings for that year equaled $6.04 a share, compared with $6.47 in 1928. Dividends of $4 a share annually maintained from July, 1929, have been supplemented by stock dividends of 2 per cent each January 1, April 1, July 1, and 50 per cent August, 1929. Earnings for the future are largely dependent upon developments in the automobile industry. Without knowledge as to your circumstances we are unable to determine what you should buy.

LIQUIDATION ON BIG CURB ENORMOUS

By JOHN L. COOLEY

New York, May 3 (AP)—Enormous liquidation of Curb stocks carried prices of leading issues down 2 to 10 points in a stormy two-hour trading session today.

Sales aggregated 1,537,100 shares, the largest of the year, and the heavy volume had pushed the ticker 42 minutes behind the market at the close.

The pressure was insistent from the openngi gong, when several large blocks were offered at sharp concessions from yesterday's closing prices.

Bear traders pursued their advance as resistance proved weak and continued to pound away, especially at the utilities, throughout the session. Covering operations toward the close were of slight consequence.

Electric Bond & Share, opening with a 16,900 share block at 102⅛, off 3⅛, slumped with few attempts at a rally and closed at 95⅞, off 9⅜ on the day.

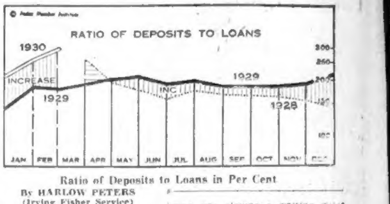

Cities Service was another target for the short interest. The initial transaction was a block of 40,200 shares at 37⅛, nearly a point lower, but the decline from the opening level was steady and a final drive in the last quarter hour hammered the price down to 30½, a net loss of 7½ points.

American Superpower and Niagara Hudson Power displayed moderate resistance in the earlier dealings but likewise succumbed to the final raid, falling 4¼ and 1½, respectively.

American Gas & Electric lost 5, Middle West Utilities 3⅜, United Light & Power A 2⅞ and United Gas 3⅛. United Power & Light was firmer, yielding only half a point net.

Oils and industrials were heavy. Investment trust stocks were sold in large volume as traders sought funds for impaired margin accounts on this market as well as on the big board.

Deposit-Loan Ratio Up

Ratio of Deposits to Loans in Per Cent

By HARLOW PETERS
(Irving Fisher Service)

A period of lessened business activity can bring about some unusual conditions, as witness the development of a "borrowers' strike" that blossomed into notable proportions during February. The ratio of deposits to loans in 12 Federal Reserve banks during that month reached the figure of 292 (i.e., deposits were almost three times loans).

The "borrowers' strike" served to show that the average business man was playing a waiting game in planning his program for the rest of 1930. He was holding his present stock, and failing to approach his bank for money to expand.

This, of course, was not true of most large corporations like Westinghouse, American Telephone and Telegraph, Ford and many others, but applied mostly to the modest producing or selling unit.

Money was easy, with few takers.

Ticker Talk

By WALL ST. SPECTATOR

With the rediscount rate at 3 per cent, a world-wide easy money situation, an improving prospect in important industries, better co-operation between the government and industrial heads in working for the business revival, and from the stock market standpoint the shake-out in fast-traveling stocks well on the way to completion, the market should now give a better account of itself.

It is time to look for a rally in the better grade of industrial stocks, a list of which is given in the next paragraph.

Pivotal Stock Leaders

One of the leading wire houses in the street which turned from its temporarily bearish stand on the market just a few days ago, to a definitely bullish attitude, regards the market as being distinctly in a buying range. It lists the following issues as the stocks which will lead the upturn, namely U. S. Steel, General Motors, American Can, General Electric, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Radio, and Consolidated Gas of New York.

Tobacco Stocks

This group of stocks has shown consistent growth in recent years, with the total consumption of cigarettes representing a gain of 12.3 per cent over the total in the previous year. Reflecting the substantial sale expansion, earnings of the principal producers increased markedly despite large advertising expenditures. Aggregate income surpassed by a sizable margin that for 1928, and the outlook is for further gains in both sales and profits during the current year. With the price situation comparatively satisfactory, most of the leading manufacturers should in 1930 experience record-breaking incomes. Leading tobacco stocks which are in line for better market levels in the near future include American Tobacco, Liggett & Myers, and Reynolds Tobacco.

Chemical Stocks

This is another list of issues which the financial district professes to see a definite forward trend. The first quarterly results for this year show that the industry as a whole is making progress in the face of subnormal general business conditions. Stocks in this group which should warrant attention include Air Reduction, Allied Chemical & Dye, Mathieson Alkali, Union Carbide & Carbon, and Columbian Carbon.

"M-K" Pipe Line Co.

Vice President Edgar Tapper of Frank P. Parrish & Co., in Boston declared Missouri-Kansas Pipe Line Company is to build a pipe line 725 miles long to serve northern markets which have just been opened to the company. He said that the 725 miles of 24-inch steel pipe to be delivered by the National Tube Company, United States Steel subsidiary, is not only the largest order for this type of pipe ever placed but the largest single order for any kind of pipe ever placed. Delivery of two miles of this pipe a day is to begin May 10 and within a month delivery will be increased to four miles per day. It will be necessary for the steel company to increase its capacity to supply this order, and the amount of pipe to be furnished will absorb the entire pipe capacity of the United States Steel so that until this order is filled no other major pipe line can be built.

Mr. Stupper said that although surveys for the pipe line have been made, and that eight contractors will begin work on different parts of the line this month, it is still impossible to announce the destination of the line because of the difficulty which would then arise in securing the remaining necessary right-of-way. He said, however, that this $38,000,000 line can be built in one year and that within three years the line will be operating at a large profit.

Northerns' Merger Outlook Is Poor

New York, May 3—Attempts to consolidate Great Northern and Northern Pacific Railways will probably be abandoned. Announcement to this effect is likely to be made before the end of this month. Many obstacles to the merger have arisen. Among these is the condition laid down by the Interstate Commerce Commission as a part of its approval of the unification, that the Burlington be divorced from the joint control of the two Northern lines.

Other obstacles are the general feeling in the Northwest that the two roads should not be permitted to merge, and the pending congressional legislation aimed to prevent railroad consolidations generally and the Northern consolidation in particular.

Prices Are Steady in Cotton Market

New York, May 3—Cotton futures were steady today. May, 16.36; July, 16.51; October, 14.90; December, 14.95; January, 15.05. New contracts—October, 14.60; December, 14.67; January, 14.73; March, 14.8[illegible]

PARAMOUNT'S EXCHANGE TO BE 4 FOR 5

In connection with proposed acquisition of the Famous Players Canadian Corp., Ltd., Paramount Publix Corp. has made application for listing on the New York Stock Exchange of 304,000 shares no-par common stock which it will issue in exchange for 380,000 shares of the Canadian company's capital stock (or voting trust certificates therefor). Offer of exchange is on the basis of four Paramount for five Famous Players Canadian.

Famous Players Canadian Corp. is engaged in the operation of theaters throughout Canada. Either directly or through subsidiaries it owns, leases or operates about 200 theaters. Total assets as of Aug. 31, 1929, the close of its fiscal year, were $25,717,298.

Net income for the 1929 fiscal period, after all charges and taxes, amounted to $2,044,223. This is equivalent to $6.72 a share on the Paramount stock which is offered in exchange. On the average number of shares outstanding last year Paramount earned $6.36 a share.

The offer of exchange is favorable to Famous Players in that a larger return per share will be had. The Canadian company pays dividends at a $2 annual rate, whereas Paramount is on a $4 annual basis.

APPRAISAL OF STOCKS OFF

The market appraisal of 100 leading common stocks declined $391,457,000, or 1.1 per cent, in April to $34,466,240,000 at the end of the month, according to Frazier Jelke & Co. This is the first decline recorded in any month since November, 1929.

Of the 13 groups represented in the 100 issues, seven gained and six lost ground. The biggest decline, $465,339,000, or 21.6 per cent, was recorded in the mining group.

Exclusvie of this decline, which results from the recessions experienced by only seven issues, the entire group registers a small gain. Other losses were 7.8 per cent in the motors, 7.4 per cent in the rails, 6.5 per cent in the steels, 6.3 per cent in the railroad equipments and 5.8 per cent in the chemicals.

The largest gain for the month was in the amusement classification, which appreciated 9.3 per cent. Other gains were 9 per cent in the oils, 7.4 per cent in the foods, 5.1 per cent in the utilities, 3.8 per cent in the chain store issues, 1.3 per cent in the miscellaneous industrials, and 1.2 per cent in the electrical equipments.

At the end of April the amusement group was selling at $1,039,023,000 compared with $461,498,000 on November 13, 1929, showing a recovery of 125 per cent, the largest registered by any single market classification. The smallest gains since November 13 have been in the railroad equipments, the motors and the mines.

SIDELIGHTS ON WALL STREET

—By Julius G. Barnes—

Steel Products Price Lowering

LOWERING of steel prices forecast here has already been officially inaugurated. Thus far the reductions are limited to a few products, but the tendency will probably bring about general lowering of all products in the general steel line. This unsatisfactory state of affairs induced the large-scale liquidation of Steel common and other steel shares principally by interests who previously had been exceedingly bullish on Big Steel. The selling the last two days, however, has not been as good in character as the liquidation of early last week, when it was stated here that associates of Myron C. Taylor, chairman of Steel's Finance Committee, were liquidating their stock. The technical position of the stock was improved by the weaker selling and a rally at least was warranted.

In his latest decline the market, instead of leading, has been following the business trend.

* * *

Fox Dividend Status Settled

IMPROVEMENT which occurred in Fox Film upon announcement of the cash dividend basis was in reflection of relief that the doubt concerning the payment has now been dispelled. Apparently the new management is confident that earnings of the corporation will be ample to sustain this rate, since the scrip is also being retired. The hopes for betterment in the Fox situation are based on expectations of substantial economies to be derived from the virtual internal reorganization, and also by the company's freedom from financial difficulties.

* * *

For some reason or other Union Carbide, one of the strongest stocks fundamentally, was selected as a particular target of a strong bear crowd.

* * *

Recent Selling of Oil Stocks

There is no denying that the setback in the oil stocks was one of the most discouraging developments of the past week. In the case of Standard of New Jersey, the weakness was due to heavy selling by one house which had taken on an enormous line much lower down in price. The Standard of California recession is in part explained by liquidation of a line of 25,000 shares by an individual who desired the proceeds for use in another direction. The Pacific Coast remains the most bullish section of the country with respect to the oil stocks.

* * *

Attempting to Hold the Copper Shares

INTERESTS who at various times have been identified with the copper shares are once again friendly to this group in the theory that the "worst news is out." The past record of various participants in this sentiment is featured chiefly by bullish advices first, when the stocks were running wildly upward, and, later, when the stocks were swinging downward and each time reached new lows. That the coppers harbor large short interests is evident from their recent action. It is said tha a huge pool has been organized in Kennecott.

Liquid Carbonic Has Gain in Earnings

Liquid Carbonic Corp. reports for six months ended March 31 net profit of $291,027 after interest, depreciation and taxes, against $283,116 in the same period last year.

ARMY AIR TACTICS TOLD FROM SKY

Rickenbacker, Husing and McNamee Open New York Air Show

ELABORATE entertainment for radio listeners has been planned by officials of the New York Aviation Show which opens this noon at Madison Square Garden. Important events in the progress of the show for the next week will be carried by Columbia Stations. Today's opening event was a noon-time description of army air maneuvers over Mahattan. This was detailed by Ted Husing, Graham McNamee and Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, talking by two-way radio telephone with Capt. Frank Hawks who will be in the Garden.

Col. Lindbergh is scheduled to speak tomorrow night at 8:30 from the show over Columbia stations. Other personalities of the air who will be heard are Clarence Chamberlain, Amelia Earhart, Ruth Elder, Capt. Lewis Yancey, Trubee Davison, Ruth Nichols and Roger Williams.

At the Radio Dial

By THE RADIO EDITOR

HOLLYWOOD has made two separate screen versions of the stage success, "Sally," which brought Marilyn Miller to the top notch of her popularity. The first version, a silent picture, employed the talents of Coleen Moore in the role made famous by Marilyn. The second version, made as a talkie, brought back the original interpreter of the part. It is said that Marilyn Miller's salary checks amounted to more than $100,000 during the progress of the screening. Tonight, she takes part in a radio version of the piece during the Del Monte hour. This is heard on the N. B. C. Red Network at 8:30. The condensed version of the revue will retain the principal musical numbers, important dialogue and comedy. Supporting the star will be a company of actors and singers.

Marilyn Miller

WALTER DAMROSCH devotes his musical period during the General Motors broadcast to the four movements of Brahms' Second Symphony. This will be heard on WEEI and stations of the N. B. C. Red Network at 9 o'clock. The symphony retains a note of joy and exaltation throughout. It is the composer's most popular long work, and has much of the lightness which characterizes his lovely waltzes.

FRENCH Colonists of early New England will be discussed by Hon. J. C. Joseph Flamand, French consul-general at Boston, during a Massachusets Tercentenary broadcast from WLOE at 7:30 tonight.

COLUMBIA stations will inaugurate a new series tonight at 8:15 devoted to the romance of American industry. Tonight's speaker is A. E. Horst, president of the Associated General Contractors of America, and his subject will be "Construction's Relation to Prosperity."

A TOPLINER in tonight's Paramount-Publix broadcast on Columbia stations at 10 o'clock is Horace Heidt, who, with his Californians, will be featured at the Met in Boston in a fortnight. In addition to this orchestra, the hour will present in rapid review Marcia Freer, Paul Ash, Paul Small, Jesse Crawford, the Foursome Quartet and David Mendoza and his Paramount Orchestra.

THE PRESS and the loud speaker have had little to say in times past regarding the functions of the radio production director. What little has been written in radio columns has been far from complimentary, generally speaking. This specialized job, however, is taking on more and more importance with the increased elaborateness and complexity of radio presentations. The time is coming when these hard-working men will get a break. There has been plenty of lah-dee-dah about announcers, but, after all, the real work in a successful broadcast has been done before anyone approaches a microphone. And this has been done by the production manager through the torments of forced inspiration, and the chagrins of mechanical and human manipulation in all-to-brief rehearsal periods. If a movie director is entitled to credit and headlines, why not the man behind the guns in radio production?

MARY LEWIS, ex-Arkansas choir singer, ex-Ziegfield glorified caryatid, occasional Metropolitan Opera soprano and present star of the new talkie, "The Siren Song," sings in tomorrow night's Atwater-Kent hour. Somebody or other has set words of some sort or another to the "Meditation" from "Thais." Miss Lewis will sing these words. Somebody or other has set words of some sort or another to "The Beautiful Blue Danube." Miss Lewis will sing these words. Somebody or other has set words of some sort or another to the Intermezzo from "Cavalleria Rusticana" and to the Kermesse waltz from "Faust." Miss Lewis will not sing these words, praise be.

RADIO HAS ITS serious nights, and it has its frivolous nights. Last night was notable for hilarity. One program after another poured forth side-splitting nonsense all through the evening. One of the funniest things on the air was the singing of "Lo, Hear the Gentle Lark," by Mme. Mocha de Polka in the Nit Wit Hour. The singer apparently knows the difficult coloratura aria perfectly, yet succeeded in giving it all the shrilliness and violent intonation that the amateur star of parish dramatics usually inflicts upon unoffending audiences. The first part of the Nit Wit hour was a take-off on flattering vocal teachers. For persons who know something of what goes on in some of these temples of coming song, the situations were rich. Later came a burlesque Far West gambling-cattle-rustling draymа.

HILARITY bubbled and roared through Billy Jones' and Ernie Hare's broadcast in the Interwoven Hour. It is long since they have been so refreshing. Their gags had the semblance of spontaneity, as for example:

"I heard you got married to a movie actress last week."

"Oh, no. That was a couple of other fellows."

The antics of this lively pair are apt to divert the attention of the listener from the truly excellent work of the orchestra under Will Perry.

Daily Antique

—No. 86—

The brass bowl shown today is an interesting study. Its design is American Indian, but it came out of the ground in a region formerly inhabited by Redskins who did not know the art of working metals. Copper-working has always been confined to those Indians of Mexico, Central America, and the New Mexico-Arizona region.

The copper ore, even in the remotest ages, was brought down from the Great Lakes region by painful stages to these tribes in the South. Northern Indians do not seem to have acquired any skill in the art. Obviously the bowl pictured is a product of the Far South. It was plowed up from the ground in virgin territory in Kent County, N. B., 100 years ago by Jonathan Teed.

The piece is now owned by Teed's great granddaughter, Mrs. Florence Teed Thomas of 62 Bristol rd., W. Somerville.

In connection with the Massachusetts Tercentenary Year, the Boston Evening American is publishing daily photographs of interesting antiques. Owners of genuine antiques, particularly of Colonial or early American origin or of historic association are invited to forward photographs and records for publication. If a photograph is not available, the American will send a cameraman to photograph the antique, provided the owner lives in Greater Boston. Address the "Antique Editor, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston."

THE OFFICE WIFE

By FAITH BALDWIN

"I'm dead," said Lola, flopping on a couch and lighting a cigarette. "I haven't been in before 3 for weeks. You don't honor us often, Anne. Why not?"

"Busy. And tired at night. I saw 'Hurry Up' tonight. Good music. That's a pretty girl, by the way, over there in the leather frame. New, isn't it?"

"Doll? She's 40 if she's a day," said Lola carelessly. "But she photographs like 17. She even gets movie jobs!"

"What does she do?" asked Anne. She had looked at the picture before Lola came in, idly enough and then attentively when she saw the name written across it—"To Lola with Dolly's love."

"How do you mean, what does she do? She's out of the chorus nowadays, but she walks on in good-looking, giddy mama parts in the musical shows. She's playing now in 'Her Husband's Wife.'"

Anne said, with apparent indifference: "It sounds good. I must see it. She looks attractive."

"She's a fool," comented Lola, without malice.

"Why?" Anne wanted to know.

"Oh, you're too young!" Anne expostulated indignantly, and Lola went on: "It's just one of those things. She's got a 25-year-old sweetie, and he keeps her broke most of the time."

Anne's face was expressionless at the information and she asked, with studied naivete:

"Are they engaged?"

"Child, don't make me laugh!"

"Is he an actor?" persisted Anne.

"No visible means of support except the races," Lola answered. "By the way, he's met Kathleen and is keen about her. Doll's ready to scratch her eyes out."

Anne thought in despair:

"Then Molly was right!" and she remembered her father's warning: "If any harm comes of this . . ."

"Alour," she said idly: "Is that so? I'd like to meet him."

"Well, you could give Kathleen a run for her money," commented Lola, eying her critically. "There's a Sunday-night party up at Doll's. Why not come along? You can stay here overnight."

And that was that. When Kathleen came home much later she found her sister asleep on the couch.

Anne went to the party at Dolly Davis.' It was incredible, different from any party she had yet attended. There was considerable drunkenness and loose conversation, and much noise and laughter.

Kathleen remarked as they started out:

"Why on earth you want to come——"

"Curiosity. And just bored."

"Oh, very well. But if you fall down and go boom, don't say I didn't warn you. It's apt to be lively."

Anne made herself agreeable to the hostess. Dolly Davis was a cosmetic beauty, who looked amazingly young. She still had her fair hair and her Southern accent, and she was characterized among her close friends as a good-hearted fool.

The 25-year-old "sweetie" was much in evidence, playing the host—a narrow-chested, handsome boy, with sleek dark hair and lines under his eyes, and a vicious, over-red mouth.

His name, Anne discovered, was Georgie.

During a rabid encounter between Georgie and Dolly over the matter of too many dances with Kathleen, Anne was able to interfere satisfactorily.

"I like you," remarked Dolly, with maudlin affection. "I like you a lot. You're worth a thousand of that high-hat sister of yours. I like you, Anne; I want to do something for you. Have lunch with me tomorrow, next day. You're a good kid, and I like you," she repeated inanely.

Anne said quietly: "I'll come tomorrow."

The relationship between Dolly and her sleek-haired Georgie was obvious to Anne. But was it to Kathleen? Anne knew that opposition was fatal to a young person of Kathleen's nature—she knew, too, how futile it would be to try to force an admission from Kathleen as to her apparent interest in Dolly's "property," or to plead with her to see the error of her ways.

There was only one thing to do, Anne thought, and that was to become intimate enough with Dolly to get the story first-hand. And once having obtained it to go to Kathleen with it.

For the fist time in their association, she asked Eaton if she might get away early from her work. He consented, regarding her curiously. A few weeks ago she would have told him. But not now.

Anne went to Dolly's for tea several times and found her ready for confidences. She talked almost exclusively of Georgie, and told Anne that it was hard for such a sensative boy to get ahead in an unkind world.

"He's been unlucky with the horses," she said.

"Doesn't he work?" Anne asked.

"Well, he's a swell hoofer," Dolly said proudly, "and he used to dance in a night club, but his heart isn't strong. He can't stand the gaff."

But all Anne's cultivation of Miss Dolly did not result in any plain statement of fact. Dolly liked Anne in her careless, warm-hearted fashion. But Anne was Kathleen's sister, and Dolly knew how to be wary.

One afternoon, however, she delivered a warning.

"You tell that sister of yours to keep away from Georgie!" she ordered viciously.

Anne's face retained its serenity. "I didn't know she knew him. That is, well."

"What you don't know would fill books," said Dolly. "Now I'm not insinuating anything, you see, but just tell her to keep away—that's all."

"Are you engaged?" Anne asked, so naively that she overdid it, and Dolly looked at her with sudden suspicion. But naivete was a game two could play at.

"Well," drawled Dolly, "it isn't announced yet, of course!"

This encounter left Anne no better off than before. She knew Kathleen well enough to realize that an "unannounced engagement" would never stand in her way if she were really infatuated with Dolly's young man.

In the milieu in which Kathleen had settled herself, property rights were lightly regarded. But she had enough faith in the younger girl's basic decency to believe that if ever Kathleen could be brought proof of Dolly's actual relation with that young man her sister would turn away. So far her efforts to establish that proof had been wasted.

She determined not to lose sight of Dolly, and because of that determination she joined a party at a night club. Dolly was the titular hostess, although a certain breezy gentleman from the great open spaces paid the bill.

Anne found the party rather amusing. In those days Anne welcomed anything that helped to numb her acute and constant realization of Lawrence Eaton. The work in his office was becoming a nightmare to her. She couldn't stay, and she couldn't leave. She was staying out late at night so that she might sleep dreamlessly, worn with fatigue.

There were a dozen others in the noisy party, and Kathleen quite pointedly had not been included in Dolly's invitation. The fact that Georgie also did not appear was significant to several at the table, and Dolly grew morosely drunk as the night went on. Anne, dancing with the Westerner, suddenly became aware that a man standing in the low doorway was watching her intently. She looked up into her employer's eyes.

A moment later he cut in.

"I didn't know you went in for this sort of thing," he said, and held her closely as, mechanically, she followed the mazes of the music about the room.

"I don't often."

"My party hasn't shown up yet," he said. "May I come to your table?"

He did so and was presented to Lola and Dolly and the rest. He stayed with them until several uproarious gentlemen arrived and claimed him, after which the two parties merged.

At Mah Jong

Burlie and Ludlow, Adagio team, are entertaining patrons at Mah Jong restaurant.

Snappy Bill at Mah Jong Restaurant

Winton D. Bee, manager of the Mah Jong, grotto Chinese-American restaurant, announces that tonight will be the last time to see the bill of entertainment featured for the week.

Burlie and Ludlow, adagio team, are meeting with much favor, along with Kay Corbett's six-girl revue, and Dolly Hooper, prima dona, in the latest song hits. Sam Bittle and his Mah Jong orchestra are still on deck.

Ray Fontaine to Stay Over at Oasis

Ray Fontaine, master of ceremonies, has been held over for his fourth week at the Oasis Restaurant, 46 Winchester st., Boston's newest night club.

Ray Fontaine

Fontaine has a wide acquaintance and one never tires of hearing his fine tenor voice. During intermission he sings request numbers with a guitar accompanist. Vincent DeNunzio and his orchestra furnish the dance music.

Why Taxi Vote Shift?

Legislators Should Clean Up Situation

By one of those surprising and not always explainable somersaults, the House of Representatives suddenly shifted its attitude on the regulation of taxicabs in Boston.

On one day the House voted to vest some authority in the city of Boston to determine by whom and to what extent its public highways shall be used for gain.

In short, the House decided to clip the wings of the Police Commissioner, who is appointed by the Governor and who is responsible to him and whose administration of this taxicab situation in common with the other affairs of the Police Department was the subject of some misgiving and much doubt.

And five days later, after some process that has the aspects of legerdermain, the House changed its mind and voted to repose again that wide power in the Police Commissioner.

Its first pretense in favor of home rule proved to be but a pretense after all. It switched at a time when Attorney-General Warner was completing the report of his investigation of the scandals and when the air had been charged with insinuations of evil conditions in the taxicab administration.

The House owes it to itself and to the State to keep its reputation clean. A public official must not only be right but he must have always the appearance of being right.

It may well be that the members of the House who changed their votes were impressed by later arguments and facts in the case. And it may be equally true that those who originally voted for the bill but who did not respond to the call of the roll five days later have an ample explanation for their absence.

There were twenty-four legislators in those two classes which give to the House the appearance of instability in this matter. In order that their constituents may know from whom to expect the explanations, the names of those representatives are here listed:

Conry Acts Quickly

To Guard Deadly West Roxbury Crossing

Massachusetts has suffered a veritable slaughter of its people in automobile accidents.

The official records disclose that 777 persons were killed last year. Injuries were sustained by 46,450 men, women and children.

The record reads like the casualty list of a defeated army.

If an ancient warrior returned he could but observe that the State is a constant and deadly field of battle in time of peace. The utter disregard of the value of life is shocking.

So long as human nature retains its weaknesses, so long as some will load themselves with liquor and employ the highways for racecourses, the public officials must be increasingly alert to protect the innocent, prospective victims of this recklessness.

The dangerous driver who cuts down an unoffending person and races away like a coward in the darkness of night can lay no claim to the sympathy of the prosecuting officials and the courts.

All sources of possible temptation to heedless and thoughtless driving should be eliminated.

In this connection, the Boston Evening American, at the request of the citizens of West Roxbury, has called the menace of Centre Street to the attention of Commissioner Conry.

A main artery to the congested districts of the city, it is marked by a stream of speeding cars which endanger the children of the Richard Olney and the Robert Gould Shaw Schools, the worshippers at the numerous churches and the women on their way to and from the adjacent marketplaces. A high and regrettable toll of death and injury has been exacted from them.

Mr. Conry has interested himself personally in the requirements. He can be relied upon to install the traffic signals at the junction of Centre and Corey Street, the scene of greatest danger.

Pensioning Our Aged

Legislature Has Fine Opportunity Now

Massachusetts seems to be on the point of taking an advanced step in the care of her aged and indigent citizens.

Her labor laws are for the most part humane and conceived in justice. Her educational system has pointed a path for the Nation since Horace Mann here established free education. Her eleemosynary institutions are reputed to manifest a solicitous regard for the welfare of those who require progressive and corrective treatment.

But she has laxed miserably in her attention to those good people who enter their old age in straitened and unfortunate circumstances. The spending of eleven or twelve million dollars a year to mark them with the pauper brand of the poorhouse may have been regarded as kindly in the time of Uriah Heep, but the poorhouse stands today only as a relic of the barbaric conceptions of the past.

It would be far better to pay that sum outright to the aged people in the form of a pension for the service they have rendered society in their own way just as the reward for veteran service is given the military chief, the jurist and the public employe. Those people had been helping to pay the pensions of the favored classes all their lives.

The Legislature should adopt the Thore old-age pension bill ungrudgingly. It commands the support of the substantial and thoughtful people of this State who for years pleaded their case to the deaf ears of solons in name if not in fact.

H. G. Wells Writes

ON "THE SCIENCE OF LIFE"

Discontinuous distribution; the predominance of different groups of animals in different continents, the existence of unique species on remote islands; the total absence of many creatures from countries where they are able to thrive and multiply when introduced — these and many other facts of distribution are consistent.

If the assignment of different kinds and groups of animals to different regions of the earth's surface was made by a Creator, one is forced to admit not merely that these facts are unintelligible and even meaningless, but that the assignment was often definitely unfortunate.

But if we are Evolutionists the chaos becomes order, the mob of facts becomes a marshalled army, held together in complete consistency by that dominating idea.

The principles and apparent paradoxes of geographical distribution attenuate and vanish in the light of two chief principles of interpretation, the principle that connects isolation with divergence of type, and the principle of looking in the past for the explanation of the present.

Both principles rest upon the concept of Evolution as their basis.

Without that basis we should have to relinquish all hopes of rationalizing animal and plant distribution, just as we should have to give up all hopes of rationalizing recapitulation, or vestigial organs, and abandon the possibility of a science of comparative anatomy.

H. G. Wells

4. The Evidence Summarized

We have now passed in brief review a small fraction of each of the main kinds of evidence for Evolution.

We have found that the rocks of earth's crust make a book where our planetary history can be read, and that they contain fossil remains which, when deciphered with the same care which an antiquary bestows upon his inscriptions, yield knowledge as definite as any which he obtains, though it refers to epochs a hundred thousand times more remote.

The fossils, dated by the rocks, reveal the actual story of life's past changes. The story does not go back to life's first beginnings, nor does it cover all kinds of living things; but for the latter half of life's existence, and for the most elaborate and interesting of life's children, it is reasonably complete.

And the story the fossils reveal is one of steady evolution, of progressive changes, of multiplication and divergence of forms of life, of extinction of one type and its replacement by new[illegible] fossils are the remains of creatures other than those of today, which once were alive, living a different kind of life in different surroundings.

They testify to the past of animal and plant life in the same direct way as do the mummies of the Pharaohs, or the baked-clay bills and receipts of prehistoric Babylon, or the slaughtered retinue of the King of Ur, to the past existence of human beings who lived very different lives from ours; they testify to the evolution of life as directly as do the discoveries of archaeology to the evolution of human culture.

Then there are indirect evidences. There are the similarities of general plan which are not to be accounted for save by the descent from a common ancestor of all the animals showing the plan.

There are the useless vestiges which yet correspond rigorously with organs that are indispensable in other animals, inexplicable if their possessor be not descended from some ancestor in which the now useless organ had its use.

There are the extraordinary phases of the individual's development in which it passes from one strange likeness to another —likeness to other creatures often remote and primitive, to which the adult animal no longer betrays any resemblance, whether in plan or in mode of life.

These resemblances are meaningless and indeed deceptive if they are not recapitulations of ancestral phases in which the race once continued for long periods of past time, though our modern creature hurries through them on its way to its own new life and different adult life.

Listen, World!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Lock Them Up!

As I write over in a homicide court a 20-year-old creature is blubbering to go home to its mother.

You can't call him a man, this hulking, thick-lipped beast, with the furtive bloodshot eyes. Jungle eyes. Yet, according to our law, he must be tried as a man for a very terrible crime. Several persons burned in death because this creature liked to "look at fires." While they were screaming in their final agonies he stood in the frantic throng, bubbling, chuckling and twitching with horrible glee. "Pretty fire! Pretty fire!" he cried. Presently, I suppose, they'll commit him to an asylum as a pyromaniac. But that won't bring those lives back again.

Elsie Robinson

"How awful!" you say, shuddering. "What a dreadful fiend to do a thing like that!"

Awful, indeed. But how about OUR share in this thing? You and I are responsible for that horror as that poor simple-minded wretch. More responsible!

Our responsibility started the day a little boy began to "act funny." From that day on his folks knew, more and more surely, that something was wrong with the boy. What was wrong?

They didn't know. How could they know? Twisted bones, diseased flesh—these things they could have recognized and tried to heal. But twisted minds—"nobody knows about things like that except doctors." And there was no law which made them take that twisted mind to a doctor. Nor was any doctor appointed to come to them.

And so today people are dead, and, daily, others are being tortured or killed with unspeakable horrors by "funny people" who are allowed at liberty, without examination or any sort of restraint.

We could prevent those tragedies if we would make mental examination of all children compulsory, and compel parents to place all doubtful cases in public institutions.

Most of us, however, would fight such a law—partly because we are ignorant, partly because we are intensely sentimental. Our hearts ache for afflicted babies. We feel that they should be coddled as compensation for their terrible handicap. And after all, what harm do they do? Just talk nonsense—and spill their food—and maybe pull the legs off flies! What does that matter? It matters a very great deal —for that moment of mind may, without a second's warning, begin to torture human beings as mechanically as it now tortures flies.

No unbalanced mind is ever a safe mind. The most "good natured" idiot, whom the whole neighborhood loves and teases, is potentially as dangerous as the gorilla that mouths at you through the bars of the zoo. Don't take a chance on dangerous brutes, whether they have two legs or four. Don't sentimentalize about them or allow others to sentimentalize about them.

Make laws that will shut them up.

In Other Words

Our Naval Parley delegates made a triumphal return; with the accent on the try.

* * *

Returning statesmen did nothing spectacular enough to bring out the populace in frenzied millions. They at least should have failed in an attempt to swim the English channel.

* * *

Welcoming ceremonies made a big hit with the street cleaners, however; ticker tape hurled on the parade was 2,727,009 miles less than usual.

* * *

U. S. Navy reduction experts must have been puzzled to find a battleship still on hand to salute them.

* * *

Let's hope that at least one warship will be saved from the scrapheap for the purpose of saluting our diplomats returning in triumph from Naval Parity Parleys.

Wilbur Glenn Voliva repeats that the earth is flat and says the eclipse was not possible. And we sometimes doubt whether Wilbur is possible.

* * *

In our opinion, that eclipse of the sun on Monday afternoon failed, as a great public spectacle because there was no Tex Rickard to promote it.

And it was a tremendous event, because between 3 and 4 p. m. it created a darkness that caused the lights to be turned on in many speakeasies in Boston alone. Had the phenomenon been properly ballyhooed it would have drawn a gate of 120,000,000 eclipse fans and increased the sale of smoked glass by 9,726,029 square inches. And look out for a big tariff boost on imported smoked glass before the next eclipse!

Not Like This

But in SOME Way, We Survive Death

THEY RISE, BUT NOT IN THIS WAY

This strange picture, called "Resurrection," conveys an imaginative and exaggerated idea of the dead rising from the tomb, as conceived by Jean Viollier, a young Frenchman whose strange conceptions have aroused great interest.

The artist shows, as typical of death, two candles, and an angry snake, annoyed, perhaps, that the spirit has triumphed. In the distance is a man much dazed, and no wonder.

By absolute power of the spirit, represented by a flock of flame just above the head, this long-buried human being pushes away the tomb's heavy stone lid and with eyes unopened rises into daylight.

Exaggerated in fancy, a million miles from fact, the picture is interesting because it reminds us that we all must go into this grave, and it causes us to wonder JUST HOW we get out of it.

The Bible tells us: "And though after my skin worms destroy this body, yet in my flesh shall I see God."

Taken literally, this means that the body, scattered in endless directions by thousands of worms, will be reassembled miraculously, hair, bones, heart, blood, lungs, restored and life everlasting made possible.

However, modern religions teachers tell us that we are not to accept literally our own understanding of sacred writings.

Revelations are made according to the ability of men to receive them.

And what is adapted to human understanding at one period needs modification and elucidation in another.

Many believe that the body ONLY goes into the grave, body and soul parting company at death, the soul going on to another life, the body back into the earth whence it came.

And it came from the earth, LITERALLY, since the body is made up of things grown on the earth and eaten through life.

Just what happens we do not know, and never can know, until death comes to tell us, but we do know that we live again.

This picture is useful because it makes us think about the most important question: "AFTER THIS SHORT LIFE, WHAT?"

And whatever makes us THINK is useful.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

New York, May 3—Most of us yaps transplanted to the metropolis acquire a reputation back home of being distinctly high brow. And there is little we can do save take it on the chin. Until country cousins live in New York awhile they will never understand.

Every person with a job of any consequence here has to build a barricade around himself. Otherwise he would accomplish nothing. All the extremely pleasant and loose familiarity of the crossroads must be tightened, or disaster is certain.

* * *

Aloofness becomes not a decision of choice, but necessity if a person expects to survive. The moment one gets his head above water there are a thousand professional philanderers ready to clout him with an oar and he must resort to the well known expedient of ducking.

* * *

Old friends from home find they must first submit to the searching questioning of a private secretary. This they somehow regard as a bit of impertinence—a touch of snootiness or putting on the lug. Yet the process is bunkered in common sense.

* * *

Bill Jones calls up on the telephone and announces it is Mr. Jones. A secretary wants to know his initials. He is then asked the nature of his business, and Bill is likely to hang up in a snorting rage. Yet every New Yorker telephoning a friend submits to this formula. And it never offends.

* * *

The New Yorker, on account of the hurry and pressure of things, has to map out his working hours, his business and social appointments for at least ten days in advance. If he swerves from this, he soon finds himself in a hopeless muddle.

* * *

It is a custom for old friends to drop into town in the morning and invite some former townman located in the city to lunch. To their surprise, they learn an appointment cannot be made for that day or perhaps, indeed, for several days. And thus old friendships curdle in unfortunate misunderstanding.

* * *

The truth is, most New Yorkers, exiled from friends of long ago, crave this very back-home touch so often denied them. They are more at ease with those who speak their language—but they must also make a living. Right now I can think of no one to whom I would rather talk than Harry Maddy and George Boyd of Gallipolis, O.

* * *

Sunday draws many curious to Central Terminal. It is the day when theatrical troupers take to road tours. Young bloods are there to say farewell to chorus flames and great stars walk about in self consciousness before passing through the gates. To many it is the end of the world temporarily—they are leaving old Broadway. Even eyes of that hardened old trouper, George M. Cohan, grow moist every time he departs.

* * *

A Broadway lady smacker stood up in a cafe the other night to announce proudly he had never yet hit a lady who was not his own size.

* * *

Radio, it would appear, is a man's racket. Practically all the heroic figures of the air are men—Amos and Andy, Floyd Gibbons, Will Rogers, John B. Kennedy, etc. Two years ago in Paris I spent several weeks loafing around with Floyd Gibbons, who was fed up chasing wars. Then he came to America, began talking over the radio, and now four secretaries are employed to answer his mail. And he wears silk hats every evening—the big dude.

* * *

And it is reported several radio stars are already making vigorous efforts to reduce in preparation for elevated trains. There's precaution, with a bang.

* * *

A real estate letter gurgles: "We have a 20-room house on the Jersey coast overlooking the ocean which will appeal to you. At night you can throw open your windows and be lulled into dreamless slumber by the gentle swish of the ceaseless waves. In the morning you can awaken and without leaving your bed gaze out at the majestic expanse of ocean, dappled in sunshine. It can be acquired for an initial payment of $100,000."

Thanks, but I'm just a creek boy.
